TRAFFIC RULES KILL SPIRIT AND BUSINESS OF BROADWAY, SAY MERCHANTS; ASK CHANGE

WANT BANS LIFTED AT 9:30

Useless Once People Are in Theatre, Association Directors Contend.

FEAR 17 O'CLOCK CURFEW

DISCUSS ONE-WAY AVENUES

The Board of Directors of the Broadway Association, at a luncheon meeting yesterday at the McAlpin Hotel, unanimously approved a resolution asking Police Commissioner Whalen to abolish, after 9:30 P. M., the theatre traffic regulations installed on the night of Jan. 21. Further recommendations for revisions of the new system of traffic control will be made by the association to prevent the "curfew ringing at 7 o'clock on Broadway's carnival-like gaiety."

The resolution and other suggestions for a "modified plan of theatre zone traffic" were introduced at the meeting by Dr. John A. Harriss, president of the association and former Deputy Police Commissioner in Charge of Traffic, who asserted that the regulations, if continued, "could kill the entire district," and already are tending to curb Broadway's merrymaking.

Calls Rules Useless After 9:30.

"There is no use of regulating traffic after every one has gone to the theatre," Dr. Harriss said. "There is no reason why the regulations should not be abolished after 9:30. People are not in a hurry then. There is no need to hurry away from the theatre and I don't see why we should have these regulations in force after people have reached the theatre.

"They can kill the entire district if the present regulations are continued. People who come to Times Square, seeking pleasure and entertainment will quit coming if they have to tolerate the irritabilities they are subject to. It is really pathetic to see people huddled together on the corners with cordons of police around them as if martial law were in effect."

Dr. Harriss made it plain that no attack was directed on Commissioner Whalen's plan. He commended the system for traffic relief, but maintained it needed modification. Commissioner Whalen, he said, has made it known that he would make any changes that would improve conditions for the greatest number of people.

Declaring that Broadway, Eighth, Seventh and Sixth Avenues had been made "useless" by the new traffic regulations, Dr. Harriss asserted the right of business interests in the section to protection. Restaurant owners who formerly served 500 guests during the evening have reported, Dr. Harriss said, that they now serve only 100 patrons on account of the traffic restrictions.

Although many complaints have come to the association from its members of curtailment of their business, Dr. Harriss said, no action has been taken on their pleas because it was felt that Commissioner Whalen's plan should receive a fair trial. Restaurant owners outside the restricted zone have started advertising "no traffic regulations" and drawing patrons that rightfully belong to restaurants in the restricted districts, Dr. Harriss asserted.

Asks Change in Timing of Lights.

J. E. Harrington, chairman of the traffic committee of the association, suggested that the time periods, regulated by traffic lights, for north and south bound traffic be extended from the present sixty seconds to ninety seconds, since traffic in those directions was estimated to be greater than east and west bound traffic.

Other proposals were referred to the traffic committee for study. Chief among them is a suggestion to make Broadway and Seventh Avenue one-way streets, with surface car movements between Thirty-fourth and Fifty-third Streets one way during theatre hours, Broadway would be a southbound and Seventh Avenue a northbound street, above Forty-second Street.

This plan, Dr. Harriss explained, is much the same as the one he sponsored in 1921, when he was Deputy Police Commissioner, except that at that time street cars were left to follow their usual routes and

Status of Riverside Drive As Park or Street Up in Court

Whether Riverside Drive is a park or a highway is to be decided by Chief Magistrate William McAdoo within a few days. Yesterday he instructed attorneys in a case brought by the city against the Public Service Company, Inc., of Newark to file briefs, the point at issue hanging on the question of the status of the Drive.

A patrolman arrested a Public Service Company bus driver last September when the man admitted he had no license to drive his bus on the Drive. Other similar arrests have been made, and yesterday's hearing, in Magistrate McAdoo's office, is a test case. Assistant Corporation Counsel T. W. A. Crowe is prosecuting it for the city. Charles L. Craig, former Controller, is the bus company's lawyer.

THANKS SENT BY RADIO

Mr. and Mrs. Percy S. Straus have made a gift of $1,000,000 to the unrestricted endowment of New York University, the chancellor, Dr. Elmer Ellsworth Brown, announced yesterday. The donation is to be used as the Edith A. and Percy S. Straus Fund at the discretion of the university council.

The sum was put at the disposal of the university without any intimation that Mr. Straus, a vice president of R. H. Macy & Co., planned to give it. It came as a surprise to Dr. Brown and other university officers, in the week-end mail.

In fact, there was reason to believe that the letter announcing the gift may have been dropped into the mails late Friday night when Mr. and Mrs. Straus were about to board the steamship Paris, which left at midnight for France. Even yesterday the gift was unknown at the executive offices of R. H. Macy & Co.

Thanks the Strauses by Radio.

Dr. Brown sent the following radio to the couple on the Paris:

"We are overwhelmed with the surprise and wonder of your magnificent gift. Nobody knows better than you the greatness of the need which this gift helps to alleviate and the greatness of the educational opportunity which it help to realise. We are all of us overjoyed and agree that this marks the turning point in the long road."

Mr. Straus is an alumnus of Harvard University. Three years ago he and his brothers, Herbert and Jesse, gave funds to Harvard for the erection of Straus Hall, a dormitory, carrying on a tradition of philanthropy established during the lifetime of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isidor Straus, who were lost in the sinking of the steamship Titanic.

The interest of Mr. and Mrs. Straus in New York University has long been keen. Lately, Mrs. Straus has made several individual donations, particularly to the university's College of Fine Arts. Mr. Straus is a

CHURCH DENIES HAND IN REVOLT IN MEXICO; AGAIN ASKS RELIEF

CONDEMNS TRAIN BOMBING

Mgr. de la Mora Declares All but 4 or 5 Priests Have Obeyed Pope and Eschewed Arms.

ASKS JUSTICE FOR CHURCH

Renews Plea for End of Restriction on Catholics and Says Priests May Report to Government.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 18. The answer of the Episcopacy in Mexico to governmental accusations of Catholic complicity in recent outbursts of violence was issued today under the signature of Mgr. Miguel de la Mora, Bishop of San Luis Potosi and spokesman for the bishops.

The statement denies that the clergy had any connection with the recent attempt to dynamite the train of President Portes Gil, and in fact condemns the act as contrary to Christian morality. It declares the governmental order that all priests register their addresses does not conflict with church rulings, and that, therefore, priests are free to comply with the order on their own responsibility. However, it denies that the order is sound at law and warns that in registering their addresses the priests expose themselves to possible injustice on the part of "extremely radical elements" in the government.

The statement acknowledges that "possibly four or five" of the lesser clergy have been associated with armed rebellion against the government, but that this was done on their individual responsibility and in violation of instructions from the Holy See.

Text of Statement.

Following is a translation of Bishop de la Mora's statement:

"Serenely and calmly and with regard only to reason and justice and not to passion, keeping before our eyes only the welfare of the Church and the glory of God, we herein make known to the government and to faithful Catholics our attitudes toward the recent Presidential declarations.

"The tenor of the documents referred to indicates clearly that the government considers the Episcopate and clergy to have been involved in recent events which have so disturbed the public. In answer to that we declare solemnly that the Episcopate and clergy are entirely unconnected with such excesses and that we believe they are the spontaneous result of the abnormal circumstances of the moment.

"We declare that the conduct of the Episcopate and clergy has not been subversive; as regards the suspension of religious ceremonies, we have conducted ourselves with the full authority of the Holy See. We were guided by motives of conscience and not by anything ulterior: our conscience is clear.

Calles Quoted as in Agreement.

"On that point General Calles, in his reply to the memorial of the prelates on Aug. 20, 1926, said:

"'I consider, as you do, that the suspension of the exercise of religious rites is not an act of rebellion and that the suspension of Catholic rites in the churches, whatever may be its duration, is essentially a problem for the government.'

"Regarding the armed movement, we are also unconnected with that, although a very small number of the clergy, possibly four or five, have participated in it to some extent, entirely on their own responsibility.

Pat Crowe Reported a Suicide in Buffalo, But Man Here Insists He Is the Kidnapper

A man whom Buffalo police officials identified as Pat Crowe, notorious a quarter century ago as the kidnapper of Edward A. Cudahy Jr., was found a suicide in that city yesterday. His fingerprints were taken by the Buffalo Bertillon bureau and found to tally with records in that office.

Last night a man who, the New York police assert, is Pat Crowe walked into Police Headquarters here and asked why he had been reported dead in Buffalo. He had been living in a Bowery hotel for seven months, he said, and prior to that had made his home for several years in Connecticut.

The New York police compared their visitor, six feet two in height, clean-shaven, gray-haired and with handsome features, with photographs in their records of Crowe, and found the resemblance perfect. Old-time detectives recognized him, as did other officials, as the man they had casually known for years to be the former kidnapper.

The man disturbed by the account of his suicide because of its probable effect upon a son and daughter in Chicago, asked that it be denied.

The identification of the "Crowe" found dead in Buffalo was made by Joseph P. Whitwell, chief of the police Bertillion bureau there. Captain William Hildebrand and Detective George Phillips were others who had had dealings in the past with Crowe and who made identifications yesterday.

The Crowe who appeared last night at New York Headquarters told of his pursuits in the last few years. He described himself as a lecturer on prohibition and a writer who contributed articles to magazines, such as The National Advance Magazine, published in Hartford, Conn.

When Crowe and another man kidnapped the Cudahy boy in Omaha in 1900, he made $35,000 by the transaction and escaped detection for years. Later, on advice of counsel, he gave himself up to Omaha authorities, but the case against him was nolle prossed when the district attorney decided he had not sufficient evidence to convict him. Before that time Crowe had been active as a Western "bad man," and road agent. Afterward, he toured the country for several years lecturing on crime.

EASIER CREDIT SENDS STOCKS HIGHER AGAIN

Buyers Rule Dullest Trading Day Since Dec. 21 and Much of Recent Loss Is Regained.

RATE ADVANCE IS DOUBTED

Operators Optimistic on Policy of Reserve Board—Exchange Tries New Floor Posts.

With credit conditions more comfortable than they have been in a week, stocks rebounded yesterday in a spirited rally that cancelled the greater part of the losses recorded on Saturday. Active issues ended the day with net gains of 2 to 14 points. It was the dullest five-hour day, however, that the New York Stock Exchange has had in a month. Transactions totaled 3,475,550 shares, or only slightly above the low level of 3,468,000 shares reached on Dec. 21, in the quiet trading that followed the disastrous break of Dec. 6, 7 and 8.

Yesterday's recovery was ascribed in Wall Street to the improved technical position of the market after the violent downward readjustment of last week. Prices of many stocks, particularly those of an investment rating, had fallen to a point which aroused the interest of bargain-hunters. In addition, there was a retreat by shorts to help along the upturn. Urgent covering was seen in the performance of a considerable number of stocks which had been the targets of bear traders during a good part of last week.

Professional operators were convinced by developments yesterday that an increase in the Federal Reserve Bank's rediscount rate here is not imminent, although they admitted they had no real basis for their confidence on this point. Many brokerage houses read into the Federal Reserve Board's monthly bulletin, released on Sunday, a determination by the central banking authorities to exhaust their powers of persuasion in trying to shrink brokers' borrowings before resorting to drastic measures. Apparently many traders accepted this view and switched yesterday to the buying side.

Call money yesterday was easy, renewing at 8 per cent and then falling to 7 per cent as the supply of funds increased. The speculative element regarded this as a strong bullish argument following the advance in the rate to 10 per cent on Friday. Credit problems figured less importantly in yesterday's market operations than they have since the Federal Reserve Board's warning ten days ago against the diversion of funds into speculative channels.

Operations on the Stock Exchange were centred largely in the rapid steel and utility issues, while U. S. Steel reasserted its leadership of the market and rallied sharply on a fresh buying movement which Wall Street heard was sponsored by banking interests. The strength in this issue did more than anything else, according to the general market view, to

TELEVOX LIGHTS PORT AT CALL FROM PLANE

PILOTS PRAISE INVENTION

Wheeling about high above the dark flats of the Port of Newark last night, a pilot was seeking the new municipal landing field. It was shrouded in darkness. Below him he could see twinkling street lamps and faint beams from windows and trains, but that was all. No place to bring his plane down was visible to him as he swung around in mile-wide circles.

Then the pilot reached out and turned the handle of a siren fixed in the cockpit beside him. The howl of the siren, at first a low moan, rose to a shrill shriek, audible on the ground above the noise of the motor, and then—although the switches were actuated by no human touch—the great flood lights of the Newark Airport flashed on, showing the wide runways and the limits of the field, making a landing at night as feasible as one in broad daylight.

Televox Obeys Plane's Orders.

The howl of the siren was an order for "Lights," and it was obeyed immediately by "Mr. Televox," the electrical sentry, the watchman who never sleeps, the creation of the engineers of the Westinghouse Company.

As the siren's note reached a certain pitch in its climb up the scale, the sound waves were caught by a delicate instrument on the ground, which, with its tubes, resembles an ordinary radio receiving set. This minute energy, made active by the sound of the siren, was amplified through delicate apparatus to the point needed to turn on the great flood lights.

The televox has been demonstrated before by its designer, R. J. Wensley. It has turned on lights in a room, has opened doors and otherwise has proved its ability to replace routine human toil, but last night the mechanical man cooked its electrical ear and demonstrated more dramatically than ever before its usefulness to humanity.

The pilot, Peter Branson, flew off without alighting for another trial, and the lights were turned out. On his first call for lights Branson turned on his siren when about 2,000 feet from the field, approaching the field from the north. On the second trial the siren spoke while the plane was nearly 5,000 feet away, coming in from the west, and again the lights responded, faster than any human hand and mind could work. Mr. Televox flashed on the lights. There were persons standing by to watch, but they need not have been there.

More Trials Have Like Success.

Twice again Branson banked and climbed off into the darkness and twice again the lights came on in response to the shrill demands of the siren. Once persons on the ground thought that the sound of the motor had disturbed the sensitive nerves of the electrical sentinel as the lights flashed on before the ear caught the sound of the siren.

After the tests with the plane had been finished and it had come down on the lighted field, Sergeant Edward Tucker, in charge of motorcycle police at the airport, did a little research work. He turned to the siren of his motorcycle and Mr. Televox, respecting the law, responded instantly with the lights.

Pilots and aeronautical engineers who witnessed the tests said they were greatly impressed by the possibilities of this device in aviation. They pointed out the possible saving in labor and in airport light bills by the mechanical lighting of fields at the siren call of pilots.

With Branson in the plane were

CITY'S TAX RATE CUT 11 POINTS TO $2.55, LOWEST SINCE 1920

Berry Reveals Reductions in Basic and Gross Scales as Values for 1929 Soar.

EXTRA LEVIES TO BE ADDED

Manhatan to Pay $2.68, Bronx $2.62, Brooklyn and Queens $2.66 and Richmond $2.67.

SMALL OWNERS ARE AIDED

Rise Covers Budget Growth of $25,000,000 — Grimm Denies Actual Saving to Citizens.

The city's basic tax rate for 1929 will be $2.55 on each $100 of assessed valuation, according to an announcement yesterday by Controller Charles W. Berry. This represents a cut of 11 points under the basic tax rate for 1928 and is the lowest rate levied by the city since 1920. Because of the large increase in assessable valuations, due mainly to extensive new construction, some decrease in the rate had been expected, but not so large a cut as that made known by the Controller.

This, the Controller pointed out, will mean lower tax bills for the average small taxpayer, because, except in instances where land has been built upon, there are comparatively few cases where the assessed valuations of realty have been increased during the last year. The cut of 11 points is made possible because of the increase of more than $1,291,642,456 in assessed valuations, chiefly new construction.

The basic rate of $2.55 is not all that will have to be actually paid to the tax collector, however, because to that basic sum, which is uniform throughout all five of the city's boroughs, must be added the rate levied to defray the cost of local or purely borough improvements, the cost of which is assessed upon the borough at large. This latter increment is a variable quantity, the estimated cost of such improvements being larger in some boroughs than in others.

Berry Estimates Gross Rates.

Gross rates, including both the basic tax rate and the added borough rates for the five boroughs, as estimated by the Controller, are tentative, but he explained that in no case will they be higher than the figures shown in his tabulation. That tabulation estimates gross rates, including borough assessments collectable with the basic tax, as follows:

	This Year.	Last Year.	Dec.
Manhattan	2.68	2.79	11
Bronx	2.62	2.71	9
Brooklyn	2.66	2.76	10
Queens	2.66	2.76	10
Richmond	2.67	2.73	6

The tax figures, both basic and gross, are the lowest since 1920, when the gross levy was $2.48 for Manhattan and ranged up to $2.54 for some of the other boroughs.

Valuations Cover Budget Rise.

The Controller pointed out that the advance of $1,291,642,456 in valuations of taxable property more than covers the $25,000,000 increase in the 1929 city budget as compared with that for 1928. The budget for this year is $553,928,687.14 and that for 1928 was $512,521,631.49. The total assessment for city real estate and personal property for 1929 is $17,445,731,436 and in 1928 it was $16,154,088,949.

Figures made public by Controller Berry also showed the following tab-

Pope at Last Minute Cut From Treaty Lands That Would Have Given Him Subjects

By The Associated Press.

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 18.—Pope Pius, it was learned today, at the last moment of approving the Italo-Vatican treaty draft, cut out with a stroke of his red pencil that part of the land on the left of the Vatican territory looking toward St. Peter's, which would have included the buildings of the Holy Office and the Oratory of St. Peter. The latter is a recreation ground maintained by the Knights of Columbus of the United States.

The Pontiff explained that if he had accepted these tracts he would have acquired a number of subjects, and he wished to do everything possible to avoid that status. He reiterated that he had not been inspired by any desire for territory or purely temporal power in making the treaty.

Had he accepted the two pieces of land he would have had to allow there many families, including numerous children, from around the Vatican. There would have been several hundred such persons in all.

In the Oratory there would have been children belonging to families of perhaps different political opinions. The groups might have included members of the Balilla—the Fascist boys' organization—and youngsters belonging to the Catholic Boy Scouts, which were dissolved by the Italian Government decree of last year.

The Pope reasoned that under those circumstances almost anything might happen, and he saw no need of running the risk of inviting dissension. Moreover, the Oratory belongs to the Knights of Columbus, and while that organization was ready to present it to the Holy See, that step had not been taken.

The new Vatican boundary is limited by the arches leading into the Square of St. Peter's, so that the most valuable property adjoining it is that which is on the left side as one goes up to the Vatican gardens. There is a triangular plot there which would be highly suitable for building purposes. In fact, Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, remarked the other day to the French and German Ambassadors:

"If you wish to come here and live inside the Vatican you will be welcome."

REED DENOUNCES DRY LAW, BORAH CHAMPIONS ITS AIMS IN STIRRING SENATE DEBATE

Governor and Leaders Agree On Saratoga Springs Project

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 18. Development of the resources of Saratoga Springs with a view to making it a leading health resort will be undertaken by the Roosevelt Administration without much delay.

The Governor and the leaders of the Legislature are in accord on the creation of a commission to study the possibilities and bring in a comprehensive plan of development.

Bernard M. Baruch will be invited to become chairman of this commission. For other members Governor Roosevelt has under consideration a list of prominent physicians, engineers and architects.

It is proposed to include in the budget an appropriation of $35,000 for this preliminary survey.

HOUSE GETS DEMAND FOR WINSLOW INQUIRY

Power for Sub-Committee to Hear Charges Against Judge Asked in 2 Resolutions.

WILL BE ACTED ON TODAY

Next Congress Would Receive Report—Buckner Testifies Before Grand Jury Here.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—A searching investigation of the judicial conduct of Judge Francis A. Winslow of New York was proposed in two resolutions offered in the House today by Representative Graham of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee. One of them asked the House to empower the committee to inquire into the matter stated in the LaGuardia resolution affecting the administration of justice" by Judge Winslow.

The other, a joint resolution, requiring action by the Senate as well as the House, provided for the appointment of a subcommittee of seven to report whether in their opinion the said Francis A. Winslow has been guilty of any acts which in contemplation of the Constitution prove high crimes and misdemeanors requiring the interposition of the Constitutional powers of the House."

The first merely sought authority for the committee to inquire into Judge Winslow's alleged misconduct, as set forth by the LaGuardia resolution, while the second was designed to give the proposed subcommittee authority to act in the time between the adjournment of this Congress March 4 and the assembling of the new Congress. The resolutions will be called up in the House tomorrow. Mr. Graham will ask for their immediate passage. So far as known there will be no opposition to this procedure.

Sub-Committee Reports.

The decision of the judiciary committee to investigate the Winslow case was reached at a meeting this morning. A subcommittee appointed by Mr. Graham last week, composed of Representatives LaGuardia of New York, Stobbs of Massachusetts and Sumners of Texas, reported that it had called on Attorney General Sargent as instructed.

It also reported that the Attorney

GALLERIES ARE CROWDED

INSISTS LAW MUST STAND

Not Opposed to Repeal if Better Act Can Achieve Desired End, He Says.

REED CALLS ACT TYRANNY

Attacks Methods of Wheeler, Johnson and Dry League and Their Supporters.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Before galleries packed to overflowing, two great orators, Senator Reed of Missouri and Senator Borah of Idaho, firm friends in private life, arrayed themselves against each other in a stirring debate over prohibition today. Neither during the present session, nor in several years, has a discussion held the Senate and spectators more tensely. Hours before the gallery doors opened, long lines of men and women stood in the corridors, and the queues never lessened until the debate had ended.

Interest was added to the encounter by the current reports that Senator Borah might become Mr. Hoover's Attorney General.

Denunciation of the "hypocrites" of prohibition and of the Anti-Saloon League, the late Wayne B. Wheeler, "Pussyfoot" Johnson and other dry leaders were delivered by Senator Reed with his condemnation of practices under the "white cloak of purity."

"Let us repeal the obnoxious law," he exclaimed, "let us discharge the snoopers and spies, the sneaks and criminals who have been employed with our money to break down our doors and windows and murder our people. As they go, let us say that in this country such a system is abominable."

Borah Stands by Constitution.

Paying at the outset of his speech a sincere tribute to Senator Reed, who will step out of the Senate on March 4 after eighteen years of service, Senator Borah took his stand on obedience to the Constitution.

He was not completely committed against either repeal or modification of the Amendment or the Volstead law, but demanded their retention until better substitutes were offered. He believed they were the best solutions of the liquor problem so far offered.

"The Senator from Missouri, nor I, will never see the day when the Eighteenth Amendment is out of the Constitution," he predicted. "In the meantime, using our influence, moral leadership and public duty as Senators and citizens, let us see that it is enforced so far as it is possible for human ingenuity to do it."

"So far as I am concerned, so long as it is written in the Constitution of the United States that the sale of intoxicating liquors is injurious to the public welfare, and that it embodies the policy of the people, I propose in every reasonable and fair way to undertake to maintain that Constitution," he proclaimed. "Let us all combine in that effort."

When Senator Borah ended Senator Reed jumped up to reply but was forestalled by Senator Heflin. Senator Reed then walked over to Senator Borah and shook hands with him.

Opportunity for the debate was afforded by consideration of the Jones bill to make the maximum penalty for violations of the prohibition law $10,000 or five years in jail. Tonight Senator Jones laid before the Senate an amendment prescribing that courts in imposing sentence, under the proposed change, should "discriminate between casual or slight violations and so-called regular bootlegging or attempts to commercialize violations of the law."

This was drawn to meet the objections of Senators who contended that even comparatively minor offenders could be drastically punished, under the measure. Mr. Jones maintains that his purpose is solely to reach the "big" bootleggers.

Won't Tell on Wet Drys.

At the beginning of his onslaught, which was a continuation of his speech on Saturday, Senator Reed calmed the fears of certain Senators when he assured his colleagues that his threat of Saturday to list "the hypocrites in high places" who vote dry and drink wet was a jest.

"I am not going to do it," he said. "I might feel tempted to tell the

Cold Wave Sweeping Toward City From West; Drop of 25 to 30 Degrees Predicted Today

A cold wave is expected to hit New York today, when the balmy temperature of yesterday and Sunday will drop, the Weather Bureau believes, between 25 and 30 points. The spell of weather is hastening eastward from the Northwest, where blizzard-like conditions prevail.

The thermometer at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon reached 55 degrees, the highest for the day, and the sunlight was as limpid as on Sunday. The warmth continued well into the evening.

But the telegraph wires from the West, Northwest and Southwest were harbingers of bitterer times. A drop of 52 degrees brought zero temperature to Kansas City, and cold and unsettled weather was forecast, according to The Associated Press, for Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Northwest Arkansas, Nebraska and Iowa.

It was 12 below zero in Bismarck, N. D., and 10 below elsewhere in the State, while cities in Minnesota reported zero weather and a heavy fall of snow. The wind was from the northwest.

The same wind, the Weather Bureau said last night, was bearing down on New York. It might lose a little force, it was predicted, but was expected to range from fresh to strong. The temperature this morning at a rough guess should be about 20 degrees below yesterday's high mark, and is expected to keep on dropping.

For a short period, under these conditions, New York's rather unseasonably balmy weather will be supplanted, and residents can postpone getting their Spring coats back from the cleaner's.

Another crush of motor cars almost as big as Sunday's caused calls for extra traffic policemen in the Coney Island district yesterday, and twenty-five additional men were put on duty to control the traffic. Though yesterday was not a holiday, a crowd estimated at 25,000 paraded on the Coney Boardwalk. Many sunned themselves on the beach and there were several concessions open.

Borah and Reed in Lively Dry Debate

names of people who commit real crimes, but I would not violate the confidence of my friends nor the hospitality of my neighbors by ever telling anything about them when they were merely trying to get a bit of sunshine out of life. I have never fallen to the level of a prohibition informer."

The Missourian then read proposals, submitted in the Durant prize contest for the best method of enforcing prohibition, for capital punishment and "tortures rivaling the Dark Ages."

"We have abandoned the Bible, the prayerbook and the temperance texts for the axe, the prison, the gun and the blood," he exclaimed. "Law has been the instrument of tyrants and the weapon of brutes since time began. By it despots have sought to justify and cloak the villainies that have stained this earth with blood and saturated it with tears and filled it with the groans of the dying. An improper law, an unjust law, a cruel law may be as much a crime as is the act of an individual who assassinated in the dark.

Urges Humane Laws.

"Law! What, sir, is law? It is, and I speak now of proper laws, something that springs from custom and is adopted by general consent. But it must be more than that; it must be founded upon justice; it must express equity and right; it must be humane in its operations. It must be something that commends itself to the spirit to be a proper law, the soul of mankind.

"It is urged that we may pass any kind of law. Such was not the theory of the founders of this republic. They declared that all just laws derive their power from the consent of the governed. They declared against cruel and unusual penalties. They set down civil authority of government itself. They created checks and balances in order to preserve the natural liberties of man.

"They asserted as they unfurled the battle flags of the Revolution, that all men were entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, and that all just governments were established to preserve these inalienable rights.

"Law! Some people seem to think that if you can have a legislative body pass an atrocious law and fix a cruel punishment, that that is the end of the matter and that it is perfectly proper to enact such a law if you can gather the votes to pass it. Why, sirs, the Saviour of mankind was crucified according to the Roman law and according to the Jewish law.

Would Not Defy Law.

"I repeat now what I think I once before said in this presence, that the wretches who led Him to Calvary, who drive the nails into His fee and His hands, were as much criminals as though they had done it in the dark and by sheer violence and without the form of law. Joan of Arc was burned at the stake in strict accordance with the thing that was then called law.

"Let no man say because I have thus spoken that I am declaring we should defy this law. I do not so declare, because we have the power of kings, and having the power of kings and knowing full well that general defiance of the law would undermine the very structure of our government it is our business to proceed in the right way to remedy whatever wrongs exist, and the right way is to repeal bad laws and to change bad constitutions.

"I have been speaking upon the theory that this is a bad law, that it is a destructive law, and I now urge that it has introduced corrupting agencies and debased morals into the political life of our country."

Denounces the Dry League.

Wayne B. Wheeler in his lifetime and the Anti-Saloon League today, "care little how much a man may drink or how loathsome his personal habits may be as long as he votes right on prohibition," the Senator continued. He read a "confession" that "Pussyfoot" Johnson had "lied, bribed and cheated" to help put prohibition over. Then, standing near Senator Sheppard, author of the Eighteenth Amendment, he shot out:

"From that foul and polluted fountain you draw the waters of your purity."

He observed that the Anti-Saloon League listed "financial angels" among its contributors.

"One," he said, and it was plain he meant John D. Rockefeller Sr., "made his money by creating one of the greatest and most oppressive monopolies that have ever cursed this people. By the way, I am not sure but that his son, traveling on the highway of reform, is about to gain control of the single branch of the Standard Oil Company that is not now completely owned by the old crowd, but that is another tale."

Referring to what he said were confessions by Anti-Saloon League leaders that members of Congress had received pay from the organization, he shouted:

"I do not challenge the right of the league to stand for its principles but I do challenge its right to come to the men who were to pass the laws and put money in their purses, and no man ever did it who was not utterly depraved, had not lost all sense of honor, all respect for law, all the qualities of decency."

Flays Enforcement Methods.

Then he took up enforcement by under-cover agents.

"What is an 'under-cover man'? A spy. What is a spy? He is unquestionably the lowest order of animal life.

"Save the man who, in a great war, may bravely imperil his life for his country, the spy is a creature who has abandoned in advance every principle of honor. What is it that keeps men decent in this world except a sense of honor? Destroy that and man becomes a wild beast, for no law can control him, no espionage can hold him in check.

"The gorge rises in the stomach of decency when we contemplate the fact that prostitutes have been hired and sent out to decoy men into rooms. They have consorted with the refuse who were pretending to represent the majesty of the law.

"They have set their traps in hotels and there they have, by the expenditure of Federal money, induced some poor bellboy or waiter to bring a little liquor to a party supposedly of ladies and gentlemen instead of a collection of blacklegs and prostitutes. All this was done beneath the white cloak of purity, all this is sanctified by the glory of the cause."

Reading from a recent speech by Senator Sheppard, the Missourian noted that in the last fiscal year, 75,000 persons were arrested as dry law violators by Federal agents and 68,000 were sent to jails or prisons. "This is the glory of prohibition," he commented.

Borah's Tribute to Reed.

By the time that Senator Borah spoke, larger crowds than ever were lined up in the corridors, seeking admission. Virtually every seat on the Senate floor was filled. Before beginning his address Senator Borah spoke high praise of Senator Reed.

"How sincerely our regret deepens as the time approaches when the Senator from Missouri is voluntarily to retire to private life," he said. "Those of us who have served with him during these long years, some of them tragic years, and have come to know of his great qualities, regard his retirement as not only a loss to this body but a loss to the country.

"It is the retirement not of any ordinary man. It is the retirement of an extraordinary man; a man whose industry and courage and genius have placed him among the foremost men in his day. I regret that he is voluntarily to retire. I trust, however, that he will find time from the engagements of his profession, of which he is a distinct ornament, to consider and discuss public questions; that we may have the benefit, at least in that way, of those attributes of mind and qualities of character with which he is so richly and so royally endowed. As these are the closing days of the session, I feel I could not say less, and should I consult my feelings in full I would say much more."

Senator Borah agreed with Senator Reed upon "the fact that there are those who insist upon enacting laws like this and who nevertheless live in violation of the law." Mr. Reed had denounced them and Mr. Borah believed "all right thinking men and women will heartily agree."

"It ought to be an axiom of decent citizenship," Mr. Borah continued, "if those who make the law live in violation of the law, the axe has already been laid at the root of the tree of representative government. There is a peculiar and a heavier obligation resting upon those who make the law and upon those for whom the law is made, although, of course, it binds all.

Perhaps an Error, Not a Crime.

"But how can we distinguish between those who make the law and those whose duty it is to execute the law? If there be included the latter with the former, then let the Senator from Missouri unleash his fine irony and his scathing invective. He has a subject worthy of his talent."

It was deplorable, Mr. Borah said, that those who made and executed the laws did not often enough think of the fact that perhaps more important than laws "is the example which we ourselves set to the ordinary citizen."

He did not agree that prohibition was "the crime of crimes" in the legislative history of the United States, as Senator Reed stated.

"It may be a mistake, the people of the United States may have erred in their judgment," he went on.

"Time and experience alone will demonstrate that fact. But it was not a crime; the people of the United States were in sincerity struggling with that which was deemed to be one of the great evils of modern civilization. Every one had been brought to realize that in some way and in a more effective way it was the duty of the people of this country to deal with this problem. The object was an exalted one; the purpose embodied something of the ideal. Possibly, in the end, it was impracticable. That, as I have said, time will determine. But that which they would have accomplished was void of all intent to do injury to the people of the United States, but was to serve them.

"Nor, if it was not a crime to undertake to control and bring under the direction of law and under the domination of civilization that which would undermine and destroy civilization."

The fight against the liquor traffic "is not for ten days or ten years; it is an eternal fight," the Senator declaimed, and went on:

"I am not committed to all opposition to the modification or even the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, the repeal of the Volstead act. I am only committed against the change, the repeal either of the amendment or of the law, so long as nothing better and more effective has been or can be presented. If there be a better way to control the evil of drink, a more effective way, more thorough, and with better results to those whom we would serve, let us have it.

Open to Other Methods.

"The object is to secure the best possible that experience and the human mind can give us upon this subject, and while at the present, in my judgment, no better plan has been proposed, no better scheme devised, and I stand for the program as it is, let it be understood at all times that we are open to consider any plan which may be presented and which will possibly stand the test of reason.

"We are not quarreling with our friends about their right to urge a repeal; and, far from quarreling about a better scheme, we invite them to present it, to present it with all their power and ability and let the American people ultimately pass upon it."

Nevertheless, he forecast that the Eighteenth Amendment "will stand in the Constitution of the United States until the moral forces of the United States decide that there is something better presented to control the liquor question and there will be no going backward upon the efforts of the human family to control this evil which has been torturing and tormenting them for 2,000 years and more."

Mr. Borah maintained that the Constitution, including the prohibition laws, must be supported.

"The obligation is upon us, it is the paramount law of the land," he insisted. "The question of enforcing the law as it stands is infinitely more important than the question of liquor or no liquor. That involves the foundations of our Constitution itself. This was the adoption of a great national policy. The people have struggled with the liquor question one way and another. The people finally decided to write the policy into the Constitution."

Attacks the Liquor Forces.

Senator Borah refused to take issue with his opponent upon the question that there are violations of the dry law.

"I know that," he said. "I certainly shall not take issue with him upon the question that the law has led to corruption. I call his attention to the fact, however, that there never has been a law placed upon the statute books of any civilized nation on the earth with reference to liquor that the liquor forces did not undertake to break down, to violate, to undermine, to corrupt the officials. It is the history of liquor legislation from the beginning until this hour. It is not within the ingenuity of the human mind to devise a liquor law that will be satisfactory to the liquor interests."

He reviewed the past to prove that "the same question of violation, of corruption, of deceit, of fraud" existed in 1812.

"What the liquor interests crave," he exclaimed, "is the right uncontrolled and unhampered to prey upon the human race to its full filthy appetite."

"I wish," he continued, "that violation of law and corruption were confined to the liquor problem. What a fortunate country this would be! I wish that we could feel that only with regard to prohibition or enforcement is a violation a crime. Unfortunately, it is not so.

"What are the violations of the liquor law compared to the saturnalia of corruption in this country in 1921, 1922 and 1923? The highest officials, men most responsible in government, with corruption permeating the whole country; more money involved and more taken in one transaction than these pilfering thieves in the Prohibition Department would take in 100 years."

The United States, Mr. Borah said, "had not yet learned the science of enforcing its criminal law—the greatest and most profound domestic problem in this country."

"We have been so busy conquering a continent, reclaiming the forests and deserts and getting ourselves ahead in the great struggle for dominancy of our natural wealth that perhaps we have not given this other problem the consideration which older communities have given it," he said.

"Let us appeal to the moral law, invoke it here. The highest evidence of morality in a democracy is to observe the law which the majority have written."

Mr. Borah read from an unnamed author, who said that nullification of the slave law developed men like Lincoln. He called this "a miserable slander." An author who said that a Supreme Court decision "purporting to authorize transfer of police power from the States to the Government under the Eighteenth Amendment was not binding," he said, should receive the $10,000 fine and five years imprisonment of the Jones bill.

"I believe in free speech, but when a man preaches a doctrine against his government," commented the Senator, "he ought to take the responsibility for violating free speech."

Says Young Are Corrupted.

Referring to Senator Reed's advocacy of State control, Senator Borah said:

"While we have for many years been disposed to jeer at the temperance reformer, at those who are advocating prohibition, I think they have accomplished one thing: They have made drink a luxury and therefore popular.

"Then the cocktail becomes a luxury, the highball follows on, and men and women who in the old days would never have served a drink in their homes, or, if they did, would serve a little glass of wine, now dish it out, and mothers hand their daughters the liquor, girls of the same type who a few years ago would never have received anything but warning from their mothers.

"Girls gussie it with boys, and it is served in clubs, not by the clubs, oh, no; not by the proprietors of hotels and eating houses, oh, no. All they furnish is the glass and the ginger ale or some other liquid. And all the boy does is to furnish the moonshine. That is corrupting a class of young men. I say to you prohibition friends, and I say it as solemnly as I have ever uttered anything in my life, it is corrupting a class that rarely was endangered or tainted in the past, and upon your souls and consciences the weight of the burden must rest."

Opposes State Control.

State control meant going back to the saloon, Senator Borah went on, saying on that point:

"I do not think any one wants to go back to the saloon. That is one monument to those whom we regarded for so long as cranks, as fanatics. They have convinced the American people that the saloon is intolerable, that it is a cancer upon the body political; that it cannot be tolerated, and no one, I presume, wants to go back to it.

"However, would they have ever closed the saloon by moral suasion? Good as they were and noble as were their purposes, effective as they were in their appeal for needed reform, how long would it have taken the temperance reformer to have closed one saloon?

"We had to invoke the law somewhere in order to incorporate and Christianize the effect of the work of these people for seventy-five years. The moral influence and the moral suasion and the teaching had their place; let that never be abandoned; but there must be something more, and that is the law and the authority of the government back of the law. That finally resulted in the destruction of the saloon and, in my opinion, if we go back to the States we shall inevitably go back to the saloon in some of the States.

"When you go back to the saloon in some of the States the result will be that you will go in all the States.

"I live in a State which was bone dry according to law before the Eighteenth Amendment was adopted and there was no way by which the people of Idaho could protect themselves from those States which were not bone dry. The people who are now urging their belief in State rights—I am not speaking now of individuals but of the liquor interests—in no sense respected the right of Idaho to be dry. They shipped their wet goods into the State over the border, established their saloons within five feet of the border and supplied the State in a way that the State was powerless to prevent. State rights was then not so sacred in the eyes of the liquor interests as it is today.

Says Violations Would Go On.

"It was impossible to enforce the law with all the States who were engaged in the liquor business undertaking to break it down.

"Suppose we should go back to the States. Suppose the State of Missouri adopted the old system. How will you protect the border states? You will have to have your spies, you will have to have your policemen, you will have to have your militia to protect the borders of the 48 States if you expect the law not to be violated by those who intend to go across. There is no more reason to believe that they will respect the borders of the State of Idaho than that they will respect the Constitution of the United States.

"So, do what we will and try as we may we have got these two evils to contend with. They are a part of any effort to undertake to control or deal with the liquor problem and I had rather undertake to deal with the Government of the United States having to protect only the borders of the United States."

During his speech Mr. Borah termed Mussolini "a marvelous man" and praised him for his handling of the liquor problem.

During the debate Senator Caraway made a sarcastic reference to Senator Reed.

"The Senator who has kept the floor two days denouncing prohibition, gave out an interview last Summer, offering to lead the drys," Senator Caraway asserted.

DEMOCRATS NAMED TO VISITING BOARDS

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 18.—Democrats in most instances will succeed Republicans who have held positions on the visiting boards of several State hospitals and other State institutions and whose terms have expired in the event that a long list of nominees for such positions sent to the Senate tonight by Governor Roosevelt are confirmed.

As these positions are non-salaried, purely honorary, and in the past have been filled as a rule without regard to the politics of the appointees, the Governor's apparent preference for men and women of his own party in such positions caused the Republican leaders of the Senate to take notice.

Chairman Hewitt of the Senate Finance Committee, to which the nominations were referred, said that each appointment would be carefully scanned.

Former Representative Peter G. Ten Eyck of Albany was nominated as a member of the board of trustees of Cornell University to fill a vacancy created by the death of Thomas B. Wilson. Mr. Ten Eyck, who was a candidate for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination last Fall, has been greatly interested in farm movements and is identified with a number of organizations which have done much to promote the agricultural industry in this State.

Hospital Post for Mrs. Spencer.

The Governor nominated Virginia Spencer of Croghan to fill a vacancy on the visiting board of the St. Lawrence State Hospital due to the expiration of the term of Carrie T. Mitchell. Mrs. Spencer is the widow of a Democratic supervisor. Mrs. Mitchell, formerly was vice chairman of the Jefferson County Republican Committee.

On the visiting board of the Buffalo State Hospital Beatrice H. Diamond, wife of a Democratic district leader, was appointed to fill a vacancy due to the expiration of the term of B. Gertrude O'Connor.

On the visiting board of the Gowanda Homeopathic, Mrs. Mary L. Ryan of Lackawanna, a Democratic woman district leader, was reappointed. Mary D. Manard of Buffalo, another Democratic stalwart, was named to succeed Allan I. Holloway, a Republican, as a member of the board of visitors of the Albion State Training School.

Frank E. Gannett, publisher of a chain of newspapers, and Dr. Arthur W. Booth of Elmira, were reappointed as members of the Finger Lake State Park Commission. Harry C. Walker of Binghamton, former Democratic Lieutenant Governor, was reappointed as a member of the Central New York State Park Commission.

List of Other Nominations.

Other nominations sent in by the Governor are as follows:

MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF VISITORS OF THE BINGHAMTON STATE HOSPITAL—Moir T. Tanner of Cooperstown, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mary A. Johnson; Anna Seymour of Binghamton, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Benjamin F. Welden.

MEMBERS OF THE BOARD OF VISITORS OF THE HUDSON RIVER STATE HOSPITAL—J. Wilson Foucher, M. D., of Poughkeepsie, reappointed; Elizabeth Lamont of Millbrook, reappointed.

MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF VISITORS OF THE NEW YORK STATE SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND—Lorenzo J. Burns of Batavia, to fill the vacancy caused by the expiration of term of William Collins Casey.

MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF VISITORS OF THE NEW YORK STATE REFORMATORY—Harry K. Brown of Hornell, to fill vacancy caused by the expiration of term of Marvin Olcott.

MEMBERS OF THE BOARD OF VISITORS OF THE STATE AGRICULTURAL AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL—Howard R. Bacon of Pittsford, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Fannie W. Whitney; G. Thomas Goode of Irondequoit, to fill the vacancy caused by the expiration of term of Charles F. Wray; Dr. W. Eugene Powell, M. D., of Rochester, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Cyril Summer.

NO DECISION GIVEN ON SEVEN-CENT FARE

Court Room at Washington Is Crowded but New York Case Is Still Undetermined.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The expected decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case involving the proposed seven-cent fare in New York City failed to materialize today.

In the belief that a decision might come during the day, the court room was packed. It took the Court nearly three hours to hand down decisions prepared in the recess that began on Jan. 19, but the New York case was not among them.

The case has been twice argued here, in October and January. It was brought here last May, following the decision of the statutory court prescribing a seven-cent fare and enjoining the city and Transit Commission from interfering, by suit in the State courts or otherwise, with its collection.

The stay of the high court held up the operation of the seven-cent fare, and the five-cent fare accordingly is still in force. The question presented to the Supreme Court is whether to affirm or reverse the injunction of the statutory Court.

The court will meet again next Monday to hand down opinions, the usual day for such business. If the case should not be decided next Monday, the chances are a decision will be deferred at least until March 11.

On Monday, March 4, the day of the Hoover inauguration, it is thought that there will be no opinions, as the Chief Justice, who administers the oath to incoming Presidents, and other members of the court, have places in the inaugural ceremony.

DUVEEN ASSERTS RIGHT TO CRITICIZE

His Counsel Asks Court to Dismiss Hahn Case on Principle of Law.

ARGUMENT IS ATTACKED

Malice Alleged in His Remarks on Painting—Justice Black to Decide Today.

Counsel for Sir Joseph Duveen argued in the Supreme Court here yesterday that it was his constitutional right, and also his civic duty, to say publicly in 1920 that a painting, then being offered to the Kansas City Art Institute by a Mrs. Andree Hahn for $250,000 was only a copy.

All afternoon Louis Samter Levy, George W. Whiteside and Walter Pollak argued that Mrs. Hahn's $500,000 damage suit, which has already interfered with Sir Joseph's great art business by keeping him nine days in court, should go no further.

"It's a very interesting argument," said Justice William Harman Black, "and I am not watching the clock at all." He held court an hour longer than usual before deciding the argument would have to be continued today.

Sir Joseph's counsel undertook to dispose of the suit in this way yesterday after Mrs. Hahn's counsel, under S. Lawrence Miller, decided to rest the plaintiff's case. The jury was dismissed until the opposing lawyers finish their arguments and until Justice Black rules whether or not these twelve jurymen of assorted occupation are proceeding legally to distinguish a fifteenth century Italian masterpiece from a copy.

The last evidence the jury heard yesterday before painting gave way to law was the opinion of Georges Sortais, official expert of the French courts, to whom the Hahn painting was brought in 1916, and who pronounced it an original by Leonardo da Vinci. Mr. Sortais declared the counterpart of the Hahn painting, which hangs in the Louvre with the title "La Belle Ferroniere," is really the copy.

In contradiction to Mr. Sortais, who said he was an "expert in all schools of painting," the jury has heard the testimony of Sir Joseph, who said his firm had "sold all schools of painting." Sir Joseph, who was summoned by Mrs. Hahn's counsel as a witness against himself, not only admitted saying her painting was a copy in 1920, but repeated it here in court.

Wants to Win on One Point.

Sir Joseph leaned forward in his seat and seemed about to applaud occasionally as his lawyers argued yesterday about the constitutional right of a critic to utter an opinion. "I should like to win my case on that one point," he said.

Mr. Pollak had pointed out that the Kansas City Art Institute was a semi-public institution and that the acquisition of a Leonardo in America was an event of outstanding public interest. He continued: "Sir Joseph had an interest further in maintaining the standards and authenticity of the art business and, if he believed a semi-public institution was about to purchase a doubtful painting, he had not only the right but the duty to comment. That right can be voided, if at all, only by proof of express malice on his part. Any submission of such an issue to a jury is a destruction of constitutional right—it is a substitution of the right of the defendant to express his own view in place of expressing a view that is acceptable to a jury."

As a further application of the "right of fair comment," Mr. Pollak argued Sir Joseph had "the right to express an opinion on what is matter of opinion." He cited a ruling of the Appellate Division that objects of art offered for public inspection are subjects of fair comment.

He dealt with Sir Joseph's condemnation of the Hahn painting as art criticism. "There can be no progress in any adventure of the human spirit unless each man's offerings to the public are subject to public criticism."

Justice Black, who was making notes of all cases cited, interrupted to say, "I concede Sir Joseph the freest possible right to criticize a picture as to its execution, to say whether it is a daub or not."

"Ah-h-h," said Mr. Pollak. "Then, is it legally different to say of an antique work that it is not an authentic masterpiece, or to say of a contemporary work that it is a daub and not a real masterpiece? One thing may be less a matter of opinion than the other? Surely the authenticity of an alleged antiquity can never be more than a matter of opinion. What is a matter of taste and opinion is a matter of fair comment. The jury must not be allowed to substitute its opinion for the one which Sir Joseph had the right to utter, no matter how mistaken he might be in holding it. His opinion must not be submitted to a jury to decide whether it was a good opinion or a bad one."

Cites Newspaper Criticism.

Mr. Pollak pointed out that the right of fair comment was daily exercised in the public prints in multifarious ways, but rarely resulted in a suit for slander of title. In dealing legally with the Hahn painting, he cited precedents from the cases of the Buster Brown cartoons, the Cardiff Giant hoax and Dr. Cook's trip to the North Pole. He rested his argument finally on the right inscribed in the New York State Constitution, of "any citizen to freely speak, write and publish his sentiments."

A reply was made immediately for Mrs. Hahn by Mr. Miller, pointing out that Mr. Pollak had talked entirely of Sir Joseph's "right to comment" but had not mentioned the attendant "responsibility" which accompanies the exercise of any right. "If Mr. Pollak is right," said Mr. Miller, "then there is no such thing as slander of title. Yet part of the responsibility which Sir Joseph must face is set out under that title in the law in words that no one may misunderstand. I read in the statute now in my hand that the elements of slander of title are three: that a statement made about a property be false; that it be without justification or privilege, and that it result in damage."

Justice Black turned to George R. Whiteside, who had introduced Mr. Pollak to make the constitutional argument for Sir Joseph. "Do you want me to rule on that argument," the Judge asked, "before proceeding to the considerations of the secondary argument you have indicated, as to whether or not a sufficient case was made out for submission to the jury?"

"I am willing to wait for your Honor's decision," said Mr. Whiteside. Counsel then proceeded to argue whether or not Mrs. Hahn's counsel had enough evidence before the court at this stage to prove she should be allowed to continue.

Charges Malice.

"After hearing Mr. Pollak's eloquent speech," Mr. Miller told the court, "I begin to see little wings sprouting on Sir Joseph's shoulders. As a matter of fact, Sir Joseph has made his millions through his knowledge of how to sell paintings. He has built up a ring for the sale of old masters. There is rarely a sale made that he doesn't have his finger in the pie. He knew of the intended sale to the Kansas City Art Museum and he put his foot on the little Kansas City dealer who was trying to sell it; and if you can't spell malice out of that you never will be able to. To call the painting a fraud without ever seeing it was reckless, and that is proof of malice."

Sir Joseph's counsel replied first to the accusation of malice, which Mr. Pollak had conceded "might alone void the right of fair comment, if it is voidable at all." This and subsequent sections of the argument, relating to the insufficiency of proof of the three elements of slander of title, was undertaken by Mr. Whiteside.

"There is no proof of malice in Sir Joseph's opinion being given without seeing the painting," said Mr. Whiteside. "Sir Joseph has testified he decided long ago the original was in the Louvre; consequently any counterpart appearing elsewhere must be a copy."

The final testimony for Mrs. Hahn was that a "La Belle Ferroniere" described in the royal collection of France at Versailles in the eighteenth century had hands that showed "a piece of mesh lace."

M. Sortais testified he was convinced "that these hands will be found under the strip of painting which now covers the bottom of the Hahn painting."

Mr. Hahn told reporters during a recess yesterday that X-ray photographs showed there really were hands under the band of paint, but Mr. Miller grinned when asked why he did not offer X-rays in evidence, and said: "We believe we will still have an opportunity to get them in."

The sufficiency of the proof already presented to set up a presumption that Leonardo da Vinci had painted the Hahn "Belle Ferroniere" was still being questioned by Mr. Whiteside when Justice Black adjourned the discussion last night.

The discussion of the third element of slander of title was touched only in a declaration by Mr. Whiteside that it has not been proved legally that any one was really deterred from purchasing the painting by Sir Joseph's opinion."

Justice Black said: "As I view the case, it appears all dependent on the fact that the Kansas City dealer testified that the museum man said if Sir Joseph would retract they would still take it."

Thereafter an affidavit was presented to the court yesterday by Sir Joseph's counsel, signed by Jesse C. Nichols, president of the Kansas City Art Institute, controverting the testimony given by Mrs. Hahn's Kansas City art dealer.

In the affidavit Mr. Nichols, who is now ill in bed in Kansas City, said the institute was only a small school of art on the top floor of the Y. M. C. A. building and never had $250,000 to spend, and that the negotiations to purchase the Hahn picture for $250,000 never got any further than his own willingness to help raise a purchase fund by contributing $5,000.

This affidavit was not introduced as evidence but only to obtain an order which both sides agree to present to the court today, permitting the examination of Mr. Nichols by representatives of counsel who will go immediately to Kansas City.

ROSE STOKES SEIZED WITH 229 PICKETS

She Is Discharged, but Court Orders Trial for Not Sending Adopted Boy to School.

Two hundred and thirty pickets, including Rose Pastor Stokes, divorced wife of J. G. Phelps Stokes, and Adolph Wolff, described as a sculptor, were arrested in the garment district yesterday and booked at the West Thirtieth Street police station, following which they were arraigned in Jefferson Market Court. Twenty-eight pickets, including Mrs. Stokes and Mr. Wolff, who had been charged with disorderly conduct, were discharged, while sentence was suspended on the 205 others.

In dismissing the disorderly conduct charge against Mrs. Stokes, Magistrate Flood directed that she be summoned to appear on Thursday in Municipal Term Court for violating the State education law dealing with keeping children from school. This action was taken because when Mrs. Stokes was arrested, during school hours, she had 9-year-old Jerry Romaine with her. The boy, whom she described as her son "by every right but birth," was taken in charge by the Children's Society. Mrs. Stokes said the child was being educated by tutors.

In describing herself in court Mrs. Stokes said she was 39 years old. She gave her address at 1 Union Square, headquarters of the Workers' International Relief, and said she took her place on the picket line as a protest against the return of the sweatshop.

The picketing demonstration was arranged by the left wing Needle Trades Industrial Union as "Left Wing Artists' day. Less than the usual number of pickets were on hand, according to the police. As usual on Monday mornings the police emergency truck and six patrol wagons were in service carrying the prisoners to the West Thirtieth Street station, where they sang songs and joked with their captors.

The pen and yard of Jefferson Market prison were crowded with prisoners. They sang Communist songs and shouted until their counsel, Jacob Mandelbaum, appealed for quiet, telling them the court proceedings were being hampered. His appeal had only a temporary effect and the singing was plainly heard in court. Sympathizers brought coffee and sandwiches to the prisoners.

Julius Hochman, in charge of the dress division of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, declared that the picketing was "merely a demonstration to support a paper strike, but the left wing and Communist elements are interested in publicity rather than in alleviating the condition of the workers."

PARIS HEARS RIVERA HAS KING IN CORNER

Alfonso, Eager to Extend His People's Freedom, Checked by Dictator, It Is Said.

LATTER WON'T RESIGN NOW

SEEK ARMY AID TO OUST HIM

With Mass of the People Apathetic, Present Conditions Are Expected to Drag Along for Some Time.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—Mail and other advices from Madrid say that every week seems to threaten some acute development in the situation in Spain, but somehow these threats are never realized. Madrid itself is always full of rumors. Of these the latest is that a definite split has occurred between King Alfonso and the Directorate on the question of amnesty for those who participated in the recent attempt at Ciudad Real to overthrow the present régime.

That matters have got to the point of General Primo de Rivera resigning is, however, denied. It is even stated officially that there is no difference of view on amnesty between the King and his Prime Minister.

Such official statements must, of course, be taken as representing the true situation. It may, however, be remarked that on former occasions when there have been real differences of opinion between the King and the Directorate they have been ended by a communiqué stating that no such differences existed and by the Directorate getting its own way. This may or may not be the case now, but Madrid believes it is.

King Inclined to Liberalism.

The outcome, at all events, is taken to show that the Directorate has still sufficient strength to control even the King's will. What is most troublesome, both in the situation itself and in understanding it, is that this strength is very largely negative. The King is a man of positive policies. He is an absolutist certainly, but at the same time he believes in liberty of thought and expression of opinions, parliamentarism and politics of the kind Spain has been accustomed to.

He thinks a measure of liberalism is safest. Until Primo de Rivera seized power in just the same way as the other generals have since tried to seize it from him, Spain enjoyed under the monarchy at least progressive democratic laws, universal suffrage, freedom of speech and press, freedom to hold public gatherings, trial by jury and individual liberty.

Five years ago all that disappeared, although it is denied by the government that individual freedom has been entirely crushed. Taxation, fines, prison sentences and expatriation are all dictated by the government. The press has been completely muzzled and now no one can say a word against the Directorate without running the risk of imprisonment and exile.

Against that must be set as accomplishments termination of the Moroccan war, opression of organized robber bands, certain excellent pieces of public construction, some administrative improvements and the raising of the public revenue from 2,500,000,000 to 4,000,000,000 pesetas. These accomplishments have won approval for the Directorate both at home and abroad.

In Spain, however, the other side of the government's record is beginning to count more and more against its popularity. The mass of people is, as always, indifferent and resigned. It is among those few hundred thousand educated people who in this country, as indeed everywhere else, direct opinion and make for progress that opposition has begun to develop strongly.

Dissatisfied Turn to Army.

Naturally enough revolt takes the shape of repeated military movements. The army is the only organization through which the enlightened classes can now seek to affect a change. The press is closed to them. Public meetings are forbidden. The court seems nearly entirely in the hands of the Dictator. And it is the intellectual class which is suffering most from Primo de Rivera's harmful modification of the judicial system of the country. All those who disagree with his methods and views live in constant dread, with the result that there is no progress anywhere except that which the Dictator directs, and he is far from having a monopoly of the constructive and progressive brains of the country.

In the situation one very great danger is seen. His failure to provide any mechanism for government of the country if and when he dies or is overthrown has resulted in a kind of personal ambition among other Generals to do what he did and seize the succession. There may easily result much the same situation as in Mexico after the brilliant dictatorship of General Porfirio Diaz.

Of course, the Dictator is always talking about the creation of a new constitution and a new parliamentary system of government. At first it was to be created within six months, then a year, then two years. Now five years have passed and nothing has been done except to create a kind of hand-picked debating society which approves after the event everything the Directorate decides.

Two Years Now Set as Limit.

Now two more years are being set by the Directorate as the limit for remodeling the country. With this monologue every one except Primo de Rivera himself is wearied. He is a man who, though a General, has always had a weakness for literature and oratory, but his theme is so constantly the same since he came into power that it has lost its effect. Moreover, in his monologue he has impeached and threatened so many people and shown himself so resentful of criticism and suggestion that he has made more enemies than he had when he seized power. What is worse is that this government by monologue has produced in the masses complete apathy, which will all too easily lend itself to acceptance of the designs of any political or military adventure which does succeed where so far others have failed. No one can forecast how any change may come. Between the King and his Premier there is certainly a strained situation. But the King is in the position where he does not know any longer on what forces in the country he can rely and Primo de Rivera has shown himself clever in preventing the court from seeing how to escape his control, though matters seem just now to be moving toward some kind of crisis, which is not unlikely to drag along in the present unsatisfactory fashion for a considerable time. It is hoped for the sake of Spain that when the change does come it will not take too violent a form.

AIR MAIL EFFICIENCY PRAISED BY GLOVER

New's Assistant Holds Reports of Delays Not True of Service as a Whole.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Public appreciation of the air-mail service is growing and this is indicated best by the great increase recently in air-mail poundage, W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster General, said today.

Most instances of delay, Mr. Glover said, he believed were due to ignorance of proper methods of using the air-mail service and the schedules of its operation.

In contrast to delayed test letters which have been reported, Mr. Glover pointed to three letters he received today. Two were from San Jose, and were delivered within two days after mailing. A letter from Los Angeles was received 31 hours after it was mailed on the Pacific Coast.

"The air mail service must be good," Mr. Glover went on, "or the poundage carried would not increase from month to month as it does.

"It is true, as in the case of Chicago banks, that our air mail service does not deliver bank clearings 100 per cent of the time in time to reach the clearing houses, yet the banks are pleased beyond measure if we make the clearing house twelve times out of 23, because of the many thousands of dollars in interest that are saved."

The cause of most of the avoidable delays in transmission of air mail was eliminated Feb. 1, Mr. Glover said, when railway mail service crews were put in charge of air mail sorting at the principal airport junctions in the United States, displacing local postoffice crews.

STATE INQUIRY VOTED ON ENDING CENSUS

Senate and Assembly Adopt Plan for Committee of 6 to Consider Using Federal Enumeration.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 18.—Paving the way for abolishing the State Census, both the Senate and the Assembly tonight adopted a resolution to create a commission of six to consult with the Federal Director of the Census on the possibility of using the Federal count for the determination of legislative apportionment within the State.

Senator Bernard Downing, Democratic minority leader and sponsor of another resolution, still in committee, to abolish the State census by constitutional amendment, mildly chided Senator John Knight, Republican majority leader and the author of tonight's proposal, for delaying to consult with Federal authorities. Although he said that there had been enough investigation of the subject already, he finally withdrew his objection.

The adopted resolution called for a commission of two Senators, two Assemblymen and two persons appointed by the Governor to confer with the Federal Census Director "with reference to the adaptation of the census to the requirements of the Constitution of the State of New York relative to reapportionment and generally as to the feasibility and advisability of a constitutional amendment eliminating the State enumeration and substituting therefor the Federal census as the basis of the reapportionment now prescribed by the Constitution."

Use of the Federal census is expected to avoid expense and provide a more accurate enumeration.

The Senate tonight also passed the bill of Assemblyman F. L. Porter, Republican, of Essex, authorizing the State Conservation Commissioner to construct a bobsled run in the town of North Elba in the vicinity of Lake Placid as an added inducement to the Olympic Games Committee to hold the next international Winter games in that territory. The bill now goes to the Governor and with its signing the Olympic committee would be notified at its meeting in Alexandria, Egypt, at the end of this monta.

HOOVER ON TRAIN WORKS ON ADDRESS

Speeding Toward Washington, He Spends Much of Day on Inaugural Speech.

ITS TENOR STIRS GOSSIP

By L. C. SPEERS.

Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

ABOARD HOOVER TRAIN EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, Jacksonville, Feb. 18.—With his Florida vacation ended, President-elect Hoover is tonight on his way to the national capital, where his special train is due to arrive at 1:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. There are no political advisers of the President-elect on the train, and most of his time today was devoted to the final revision of parts of his inaugural address. The speech is not yet finished and probably will not be until some time next week.

Incidentally, the form Mr. Hoover's inaugural address will take and the subjects he will discuss are beginning to interest the political guessers. The Cabinet forecasting contest being a stalemate at the present moment, the "guessers" have switched to conjectures on the statements Mr. Hoover will make when he takes office two weeks from today.

The facts as to the Hoover inaugural address are, first, that it is not yet completed, and secondly, to date Mr. Hoover has, as has been his policy as to his Cabinet selections, taken few persons into his confidence. None of his close political advisers has conferred with him in the last two weeks, and only a few, such as Chairman Work of the Republican National Committee, Associate Justice Stone of the Supreme Court, Senator Smoot of Utah and T. T. C. Gregory of San Francisco in the first two weeks he was in Florida. When they were here, only parts of the speech were in skeleton form, and whether or not Mr. Hoover talked the matter over with any or all of them has not been made public.

It can be stated on the very best of authority that any forecasts at this time as to what Mr. Hoover will say after he takes the oath of office at noon on March 4 are speculation, pure and simple.

Has Traveled Much Since October.

On his arrival in Washington, Mr. Hoover will go at once to his home at 2,300 S Street, Northwest, where he will in the next two weeks hold his pre-inaugural conferences, political and otherwise. He will then have traveled by rail and by water more than 30,000 miles since the November election. Adding the miles traveled by automobile, the total will exceed 35,000.

Mr. Hoover's program after he reaches Washington calls for no more trips until after he takes office. Then the first will probably be early in April to New York, where he will be the guest of honor and make the principal speech at a luncheon of The Associated Press, which will be in session there at that time.

In the next two weeks Mr. Hoover is expected to meet and talk over administrative matters with the men he is asking to become members of his Cabinet. With the possible exception of the selections for Secretary of War and Attorney General, the opinion is that the final make-up of the Cabinet was decided some days ago, although the Secretaryship of Agriculture may also be a post still undecided.

When Mr. Hoover came to Florida a month ago the only definite indication about the new Cabinet was that Andrew W. Mellon would continue as Secretary of the Treasury. Since then the probability has been brought out that Henry L. Stimson, Governor General of the Philippines, will be Secretary of State.

As to all other Cabinet posts, no word has been forthcoming in confirmation or in denial of the designating of any of the scores of prominent Republicans who have from time to time been reported as having received invitations to become members of the official family. It was again asserted today that Mr. Hoover had no intention of making any Cabinet announcements until after he is sworn in as President, when the slate will be sent to the Senate, sitting in extra session after the inauguration exercises for confirmation.

Crowds at the Station.

Mr. Hoover's departure from Miami this morning was in striking contrast to the scene that greeted him on his arrival a month ago. Then more than 100,000 people jammed the streets of Miami and Miami Beach to welcome him. Today probably not more than 1,000 were at the station when the Hoover special pulled out.

Mayor Sewell of Miami and Glenn B. Skipper, Republican National Committeeman, were the last to say good-bye to the President-elect and Mrs. Hoover. Both expressed the hope that he would come again next Winter. Mr. Hoover thanked them but made no promise.

As the train, which is running on a fast schedule, passed through cities and towns between Miami and Jacksonville, appending crowds were at all the stations to wave a safe journey and good luck to the next President. There was a large crowd at West Palm Beach and another almost as big at Fort Pierce, where brief operating stops were made.

As the train went through Melbourne the Mayor was on the platform holding up for the inspection of Mr. Hoover a giant tarpon.

"Now I know you are sorry you didn't come here," he shouted as the special, which had slowed down because of the crowd, passed. Mr. Hoover saw the fish and smiled his broadest.

New Smyrna All for Hoover.

At New Smyrna it appeared as if all the people in that little city were at the station. Here the train stopped again for inspection, and for ten minutes Mr. and Mrs. Hoover chatted with the orange growers and others who crowded about the observation platform of his private car. From what those nearest the President-elect said Mr. Hoover must have received about all of the votes in the district.

The biggest of all the crowds and the noisiest of the demonstrations was staged at Daytona Beach, which the special reached soon after 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The train slowed down to a snail's pace here while Mr. and Mrs. Hoover waved their greetings to the crowd. A negro brass band was playing "A Hot Time in the Old Town," while probably a thousand school children waved miniature American flags.

When Mr. Hoover passed through Jacksonville on his way south to Miami Beach it was 5 o'clock in the morning and no one saw him. Tonight Florida's biggest city had its chance. The train arrived at 7:10 o'clock, and as Jacksonville is the point where the special switched from the Florida East Coast lines to the Atlantic Coast Line, the community had a visit of nearly half an hour. Democrats as well as Republicans took part in the welcome. A little girl said she hoped the next time he came Mr. Hoover would stop at least one day in Jacksonville.

Leaving Jacksonville, the train headed at high speed for Georgia and the Carolinas. The heat was tropical when Mr. Hoover left Miami. As he neared the Georgia line he began to realize it was Winter time in most of the rest of the United States.

Greeted by Jacksonville Mayor.

ABOARD HOOVER TRAIN EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 18 (AP).—Herbert Hoover's special train, bearing him back to Washington, left Jacksonville tonight at 7:50 o'clock, after an operating stop the President-elect was greeted by Mayor John T. Alsop and other city officials in his car, as he did not make an appearance on the platform.

Before the departure from Miami, Mr. Hoover stopped to express his appreciation of the manner in which the people received him.

"I want to express my appreciation to the people of Miami and Florida," he said. "They have given us a very happy vacation and we hope to be able to come again."

TOKIO TO GREET STIMSON.

On Way From Manila, He May Get Japan's Disarmament Views.

TOKIO, Feb. 18 (AP).—Baron Tanaka, the Prime Minister, today cabled Colonel Henry L. Stimson at Manila an invitation to take dinner with him March 4, when he is expected to be in Japan en route to the United States.

The Japanese press assumes the appointment of Colonel Stimson as Secretary of State in Mr. Hoover's Cabinet is assured and considers his visit to Tokio as most important.

The Tokio Asahi, one of the largest papers, says Baron Tanaka and the Naval Ministry will seize the opportunity to discuss naval limitation, and will apprise the future chief of America's foreign affairs of Japanese disarmament desires.

NO PAROLE TO BOOTLEGGERS

Middlesex County (Mass.) Prosecutor Scores Politicians.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 18 (AP).—District Attorney Robert T. Bushnell of Middlesex County announced today that he had suspended the operation of the parole law relative to bootleggers and that in the future a bootlegger must serve his full sentence. This action was taken, he said, because of the practice of politicians in attempting to intercede for convicted and sentenced bootleggers.

"This parole law," the District Attorney said, "was passed before the law was able, by use of probation, to save deserving parsons from jail sentences. Today, with the probation system in full effect, there is little need for such a law."

He also declared that in the future he will make public the name of any politician who seeks to have a bootlegger paroled.

two engineers of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company of Pittsburgh, in the laboratories of which Wensley developed his apparatus—Robert Ellingsworth and Clyde Bouer. Peter J. O'Toole Jr., municipal airport supervisor, and Lieutenant Richard Aldworth, air traffic expert, also witnessed the experiment.

The engineers will conduct further experiments before the televox is installed at airports on regular duty. Those who witnessed its action at Newark airport predicted that soon no well-equipped airport would be without it.

"Mr. Televox will never go out for a drink nor will he hunt a map in the corner of the hangar when the boys are coming in at night," one pilot said. "Cold weather won't keep him away from the switches. All you have to do is holler and he gives you the lights."

The device which receives the sound waves resembles an old-fashioned phonograph horn, which might be described as the ear of the mechanical man. Through this the sound is carried to the Knowles grid glow-tube and the delicate vibrating reed-selector, with accompanying relays and switches.

The Knowles tube is said to be the most sensitive device of its kind. The energy required to set it in operation is said to be equaled by that expended by a fly in crawling one inch up a wall. Through amplification the tube controls more than a million times the energy exerted by the initial impulse.

AIR MAIL ON TIME AT NEWARK.

Officials of the Newark airport declared last night that the first twenty-four hours of the field's utilization as the Eastern terminal of the air mail had gone off smoothly, all planes departing and arriving on schedule.

Officials of the New York Postoffice said that after test runs by train and automobile truck it had been decided to move the mail to and from the postoffice and field by train.

R. R. Williams, superintendent of the Railway Mail Service, under which the air mail is operated, said the mail trucks took fifty-eight minutes from the airport to the Thirty-third Street Post Office, a distance of about thirteen miles. From the airport to City Hall station the mail trucks took sixty-five minutes and to the Varick Street station forty-five minutes.

The trains, Mr. Williams said, moved the mail to the Thirty-third Street office in twenty-two minutes from Newark station and the time consumed between the station and the field was also about twenty-two minutes, including a stop at the Newark Postoffice.

A large crowd visited the airport, watching the mail planes arrive and depart and observing also the flights of a big tri-motored Wasp powered Fokker, one of the new transport planes of Universal Air Lines, whose planes meet New York Central trains at Cleveland to carry passengers to Chicago, Minneapolis and Kansas City.

Major P. G. Kemp, vice president of the system, said the Western Air Express was planning a passenger route between Los Angeles and Kansas City, completing a transcontinental air-rail system, cutting travel time between New York and the Pacific Coast to less than forty-eight hours.

REICH ABILITY TO PAY OCCUPIES EXPERTS

Some at Paris Suggest How This May Be Increased So as to Assure Reparation Annuities.

CHOOSE PROCEDURE TODAY

Subcommittee Will Advocate Either Going Ahead on Known Data or Asking Berlin to Make an Offer.

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—The Committee of Experts, under the Chairmanship of Owen D. Young today began to get to grips with the problem of how much reparations annuity Germany is capable of paying and is expected to pay.

Up to today the experts had listened to the German plea that the situation is in every way bad and that nothing much is to be expected. It was the usual plea, but Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, the chief German delegate, presented it in a moderate and attractive manner. He advanced no figures and no arguments to which exception could be taken.

But today, after two days' private deliberation and possibly in some cases of exchange of views with their governments, some of the delegates opened discussion on how Germany's position is to be improved.

Aim of Germany's Creditors.

As last week, the conversations were exceedingly courteous and businesslike. There were no table thumpings, no dramatic accusations of attempts to camouflage the truth. However, the experts of those countries which have a direct interest in securing from Germany the maximum which she can pay so that they themselves may be enabled to pay their debts, raised the question of how the German position could be improved so as to assure a bigger yield from increased prosperity. For Germany has still something of the appearance before the committee which she had in 1924 of a bankrupt who must be helped to her feet if her creditors are to get even a part of what they claim.

In accepting the proposition of making a definite and final settlement the Allies have renounced the safeguard clause of the Dawes plan which provides for bigger annuities in proportion to the increased prosperity of Germany. They therefore are anxious to discover as far as possible what the future holds and what possibility there is of development of their debtor's means of payment.

For instance, it is argued that if the discovery of making synthetic gasoline should be developed by German chemists the profits would probably enable the Reich to pay off the whole debt in a very few years. If, therefore, a capital sum or annuities are fixed now at a low figure to accord with the present commercial situation her creditors may be doing themselves a very great injustice.

That, of course, is an extreme case, but it represents one possibility of the situation when one is dealing with the matter of payments over a period of possibly sixty years.

Subjects Touched Upon.

It is believed that the development of German agriculture was one of the subjects mentioned. Its poverty has been stressed by Dr. Schacht, but bad harvests are temporary misfortunes, and one delegate was quick to reply today that improved methods had nearly doubled the agricultural productivity of his own country in the past four years.

Today's discussions may therefore be summed up as an attempt to envisage the future of Germany and at the same time to find methods by which future prospects might be improved in a manner which would not be too harmful to her creditors. Tariffs were touched on, but, of course, the experts have no power to deal with such a question. Evacuation of the Rhineland also was in the minds of some delegates as likely to give impetus, at least indirectly, to German prosperity, but that also is a question with which they are not authorized to deal.

The whole morning session was spent in these discussions and a small subcommittee was appointed to consider future procedure. This subcommittee will report tomorrow morning and it is only then that the conference will have got really under way.

French Demand Information.

PARIS, Feb. 18 (AP).—By adoption of a method of procedure, it is understood, the committee will decide whether to go ahead on the strength of the presentation of Germany's economic situation and fix her capacity or whether to invite Germany to say how much she can pay, ask her creditors how much they would be satisfied with and then proceed to compromise the divergent views.

Routine matters and generalities which have been given as the official explanation of the work which has occupied nine successive meetings of the experts' committee has begun to irk the French public. They are now demanding to know how far the experts have progressed.

The feeling even in semi-official quarters is that negotiations have now progressed beyond the mere preliminary stages and that the public is entitled to know the trend.

This stiffening in the general French attitude is coincident with the appointment of an "agent de liaison" between the French delegation of the committee and Premier Poincaré. The Premier has been observed at the Hotel Georges V several times in the last few days.

Miles matter little to a LINCOLN

In a car so finely tuned as the Lincoln, miles traveled cannot gauge engineered service. This splendid car so valiantly resists mechanical wear that you cannot tell by its quiet-powered, capable performances whether it is months or years old.

Lincolns which have been in service are occasionally offered at prices that cannot possibly indicate their worth. These fine cars provide an opportunity to purchase superlative service at most advantageous rates. They have been inspected and tested most thoroughly by factory-trained Lincoln craftsmen in Lincoln shops. They are marked by the same satisfying performance of style and distinguished performance perceptible in every Lincoln you see on the boulevards.

A few such Lincolns are now to be seen on local dealers' floors. Every one is in perfect mechanical condition. Authorized Lincoln dealers are always glad to demonstrate them to you, without the slightest obligation. Drop in today.

KELLOGG OPPOSES PENALTY FOR PACT

Secretary Says World Public Opinion, Now Backing It, Suffices to Enforce It.

NOT A 'GESTURE,' HE HOLDS

In Speech at Georgetown University He Calls the Treaty the Greatest Peace Step.

DEFENDS FOREIGN SERVICE

Praising the Calibre of Our Diplomats, He Lays Stress on Advancing "Career" Men.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—World public opinion rather than sanctions were declared by Secretary Kellogg to be the main reliance of the multilateral treaty against war as an effective instrument of peace when he spoke tonight before the Foreign Service School of Georgetown University.

Without mentioning the resolution of Senator Capper by name or other suggestions that have been made with the view of providing for concerted action by economic or armed force against an aggressor nation violating the anti-war treaty, Mr. Kellogg said that "the only enforcement behind any treaty is the public opinion of the people."

"I do not believe war will become outlawed and universal peace come to the nations by maintenance of armies and navies to punish an aggressor," he added.

Asserting that the treaty was not a mere "gesture," but rather an instrument that would "make it more difficult to declare war," he hailed the pact as the greatest step ever taken for the furtherance of "peaceful adjustment" of international disputes.

World Conscience Rejecting War.

"I am gratified that nearly every nation in the world has signed the treaty or adhered to it and that the ratifications are coming in almost daily," Secretary Kellogg said in his address.

"There is a reason, in my judgment, why the public opinion and the conscience of mankind have been stirred by this subject. We have just passed through a war the most far-reaching and appalling recorded in history.

"For the settlement of international disputes there must be a change not only in public sentiment but in the very principles which lie at the foundation of international cooperation. The legality of war must be denounced.

"It must, not only in the opinion of peoples but in the conduct of nations, be made an international crime. We must reverse the order of international conduct and instead of war being an acknowledged institution among nations it must be made an offense of nations.

"It is not necessary to dwell upon the appalling results of the last war, but with the discovery of science, improvement of the means of destruction on sea and land, nobody can look upon another war without shuddering at its inevitable result.

Public Opinion Held Unanimous.

"It is my opinion that Western civilization would not survive another such calamity. World opinion has been changed largely by its results. It is on account of these considerations and the public opinion of the world that it has been made possible to enter into the treaty renouncing war as a national policy and agreeing to settle all disputes by pacific means.

"It can be made effective if it continues to be backed by the public opinion of all nations. I know there are those who claim that the treaty has no value—that it is a mere gesture.

"I cannot believe that the act of practically every nation in the world, not swayed by sudden impulse but deliberately entering into a treaty solemnly pledging renunciation of war and backed by the almost unanimous opinion of the world, can be a mere gesture.

"After all, great reforms can only be brought about when backed by public opinion. This treaty certainly will make it more difficult to declare war. It is a rallying point for the mobilization of world opinion.

"Some say that no means are provided in the treaty to enforce it. My answer is that the only enforcement behind any treaty is the public opinion of the people.

Says Punishing Won't Outlaw War.

"I do not believe war will become outlawed and universal peace come to the nations by maintenance of armies and navies to punish an aggressor. A treaty emphasizing armament recognizes war as a means of maintenance of peace. Before peace can be maintained there must come a changed attitude of the world. We must learn to settle international disputes through arbitration, conciliation and diplomatic intercourse.

"We have been making treaties of arbitration and conciliation with the nations of Europe and have just signed a multilateral treaty with all Central and South American countries for the same purpose. All of which is a part of public education to bring about a sentiment for peaceful adjustment of international disputes, and I believe the greatest step ever taken for the furtherance of peaceful adjustment is the multilateral treaty signed by all the nations solemnly pledging, in the name of their people, the renunciation of war."

Career Diplomats Defended.

The occasion on which Secretary Kellogg spoke was the tenth anniversary of the founding of the Georgetown Foreign Service School, and in praising its work he entered upon a defense of career diplomats. He denied that the professional diplomats of the United States were primarily concerned with attending social events, and asserted that they were able, educated and efficient men.

"The foreign service as a whole furnishes the best men for chiefs of missions," he said. "Not more than twenty-five years ago we had no specially trained foreign service.

"The offices of consul, secretary of embassy and legation, Ambassador and Minister were considered political patronage, and most, if not all, of these were appointed from civil life, many of exceptional ability, to be sure, but with no training whatever in the complex and intricate problems arising in our dealings with foreign countries.

"At the present time all officers below the grade of Minister are from the trained personnel, and twenty-seven out of fifty-two Ambassadors and Ministers entered the service after examination and have been promoted to their present position after many years of faithful and efficient service.

Quality of Service Rendered.

"Much has been said in the press of late about the relative merits of foreign service officers for the position of chiefs of missions, both Ambassadors and Ministers, and I have seen some very unjust and uninformed criticism that the principal duties of our secretaries and counselors in these missions were to attend social events. I know, from an intimate knowledge of the foreign service, that this is not true.

"Of course, there are, as in all services, men who do not come up to the ideal standard, but as a whole I know that our foreign service officers are able, thoroughly educated and trained, industrious and efficient men in all work which naturally comes to our embassies, legations and consulates. And, as a whole, I believe that this service furnishes the best men for chiefs of missions.

"But we often forget that those men have in their offices assistants trained in every branch of the service. In many smaller missions it is impossible for this government, with its present force, to appoint Ministers with an adequate staff of trained assistants, and for these missions a thoroughly trained chief is essential.

"It is and it will be impossible to keep such a trained force if there is no hope for promotion above a mere secretaryship. Men of ability and ambition will not fill these places for a lifetime without hope of recognition and promotion. The experience of the whole world has shown us the advisability and the necessity of such a trained personnel.

"To be sure, the transition from the old system to the new did not come suddenly nor without opposition. From an experience of twelve years in the Senate and as Ambassador and Secretary of State I am sure that the foreign service has received the most sympathetic support from the Congress of the United States."

TREATY WITH BRITAIN NEAR.

Kellogg Expects to Complete Arbitration Pact Soon.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP).—Secretary Kellogg said today he expected the Anglo-American arbitration treaty would be completed very soon.

The treaty has been in course of negotiation since Dec. 29, 1927, when a draft treaty, similar to that signed with France, was offered as a basis of negotiation.

The delay in signing the treaty has been attributed by British Government officials to the necessity of the Foreign Office consulting with the Dominion Governments. It has been intimated in London dispatches that the principal cause of the delay has been that Canada was insistent upon concluding her own arbitration treaty with the United States.

Negotiations are continuing with the Japanese and with sixteen other governments for similar arbitration treaties. Mr. Kellogg has been hopeful that all would be signed before he left office.

WICKERSHAM HITS AT 'WARLIKE SPIRIT'

Calls Pact Only Lip Service to Peace—Warns Against War as Toy of Democracies.

FRIDTJOF NANSEN HONORED

Receives Plaque for His Service to World Amity—Calls War the Survival of the Unfittest.

Declaring that enactment of the fifteen cruiser bill and the debate which preceded it demonstrated that the ratification of the Kellogg-Briand treaty renouncing war was "but lip service to the cause of peace," George W. Wickersham, attorney and worker for world amity, delivered a warning last night against "loose talk" in Parliaments and Congresses lest war become the "toy of democracies" as it once was the sport of kings.

The former United States Attorney General was addressing 500 guests at a dinner, given at the Waldorf-Astoria in honor of Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, Norwegian explorer, statesman and humanitarian, who, in an address entitled "How Shall We Obtain World Peace?" declared it is less the scrapping of armies and navies than "the disarmament of the human mind," that is needed to establish lasting peace among the nations of the world.

The aim of the conference which will convene at Geneva in 1930 was explained by Dr. William P. Merrill, president of the Church Peace Union, which is sponsoring the movement and conducting a campaign to raise $270,000 to defray the expenses of the delegates who will come from all parts of the world.

"We plan to bring the whole force of the religions of mankind to bear on the movement to do away with war and make peace secure," he said.

Plaque Presented to Nansen.

Dr. Nansen recently presided at a preliminary meeting of the conference in Geneva and addressed 2,000 persons at a mass meeting there. In recognition of his services the conference presented to him last night a plaque by the French medalist, Ovide Yencesse, depicting a child strewing roses in his path. It was engraved with the inscription, "Flowers of appreciation from the Church Peace Union to Dr. Fridtjof Nansen—Apostle of world peace, New York, Feb. 18, 1929." Marcus M. Marks, former Borough President of Manhattan, made the speech of presentation.

Dr. Stephen S. Wise, another speaker, declaring that "religions and their visible embodiment, the churches," have done too little in the past to promote peace among nations, said they no longer could afford to forget the precept, "Thou shalt not kill." He pledged the "heartfelt support of my own people," in the effort to join the religions of the world in the interest of peace.

Letters of congratulation were sent by Frank B. Kellogg, Secretary of State, Governor Roosevelt, Colonel Edward M. House, Chief Justice Taft, John W. Davis and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the late president. Mr. Wickersham presided.

Since the end of the World War, Mr. Wickersham said, the nations have been groping for some means of preventing another conflict, whose result would be not a weakening of civilization, but its destruction. Since the Armistice, he continued, peace has been preserved "through the conference and other machinery of the League of Nations."

"The execution and the ratification of the Briand-Kellogg treaty renouncing war as an instrument of national policy and solemnly undertaking never to seek the solution of any international question save by peaceful means, marks a long step forward," he declared. "But the almost unanimous vote in its favor in the United States Senate scarcely was recorded before there was pushed forward a bill providing for the construction of fifteen cruisers at an expense of nearly $300,000,000, avowedly as a means of compelling Great Britain to agree to terms of a naval limitation agreement satisfactory to the American government.

"Senator Borah, in the course of the debate over this measure, proclaimed that we are on the eve of a naval race with Great Britain and likened conditions between our two countries to the conditions existing between Germany and England in 1914.

"Lip Service to Cause of Peace."

"The whole debate over the cruiser bill and its enactment into law demonstrates that the approval of the Pact of Paris was but lip service to the cause of peace and did not embody a conviction to renounce war. So it is high time that the spiritual forces of humanity united in a determined opposition to the warlike spirit which finds expression in the council of the greatest democracy of the modern world. We used to think that war was the sport of kings. It is in great danger of becoming the toy of democracies. There is as much danger in the jingo spirit, the demagoguery and the loose talk of delegates in the congresses and parliaments as there used to be in the rattling of sabres by monarchs."

Dr. Nansen told of his experiences during eight years of relief work among prisoners of war, starving non-combatants and and flying refugees, Greeks and Armenians, old men and women and tiny children.

"All this incredible suffering and misery," he said, "was due directly or indirectly to the war. That is why I am so ardently, so passionately against war, with its shamefulness, its absurdity and its criminal folly. We need have no war unless we wish to. It depends entirely upon our free will.

"The worst of it is that war is the very institution for the survival of the unfittest. Since the beginning of history the white race has wasted its choicest blood through wars and massacres. A new war might wipe out our civilization as other civilizations have been wiped out in the past. Therefore there is no political question, no international work more important than the prevention of a new war. The disarmament of the war forces of armies and navies is very important, and we must do what we can to further it.

"But," he continued, "if we would work really efficiently for peace among the nations of the earth we must begin from within—in the people themselves. It is not so much the disarmament of armies and navies that is important; it is the disarmament of the human mind, of the soul of the peoples. It is necessary to bring about a complete change in the international way of thinking. We must give the coming generations new ideals; we must teach them history in a way different from the method we have used before. It should not be merely a history of wars and battles; the heroes should not be merely heroes of the battlefields. There are other and greater heroes who have worked for a better and happier future for their people and for mankind."

Religion can do much toward the accomplishment of the will to peace, Dr. Nansen said, pointing out that a system of ethics among individuals has been developed with religion's aid while nations have been allowed to perpetuate the idea that "might is right."

SCHNEIDER COURSE FIXED.

Mystery War Tower in Solent Is One of Marking Points.

Wireless to The New York Times.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Visitors for the Schneider Trophy race next September, which a number of shipping companies hope to accommodate in large liners anchored along the Solent, will have the opportunity of seeing one of the famous "mystery towers" built during the war as part of Britain's channel defense scheme against submarines.

One of these great concrete structures, which were not completed until after the armistice, has replaced the old Nab lightship off the eastern end of the Isle of Wight and will be used as one of the turning points for the fast-flying aircraft of four nations which will be competing for the blue ribbon of the flying world.

It has been arranged that the racing seaplanes will start at Cowes, home of English yachting in the Isle of Wight, whence the machines will fly out to the mystery tower. They will then turn toward a marking boat moored off Selsey Bill, then to a point off Calshot, and so back to Cowes.

The rectangular course decided on this year, instead of the former triangular courses, will have the effect of raising the average speed, and it is expected the winner will average between 310 and 320 miles an hour.

The United States, Britain, France and Italy together have entered ten seaplanes for the race and it is estimated the organization of the race will cost between $75,000 and $100,000.

REPORTS ON OPERATION OF HOLLAND TUNNEL

Jersey Board Says $34,473,880 in Contracts Are Fulfilled—1928 Income $1,816,864.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 18.—In a report to the Legislature tonight on the construction and operation of the Holland Tunnel for the past year, the New Jersey Interstate Bridge and Tunnel Commission pointed out that $34,473,880 in construction contracts have been completed and fully paid, and that one other contract involving about $575,000 worth of work has been completed and the final estimate on this work will have been settled early this year.

The operation of the tunnel shows a distinct growth and it is reported that the interest and amortization charges of $1,287,111 on the bond issues authorized in 1920 and 1924 have been taken care of out of New Jersey's share of the receipts of the tunnel, and in addition $529,752.46 will be turned over this month to the State Sinking Fund Commission. This shows a net return to the State of New Jersey over maintenance and operations costs, up to Dec. 31, 1928, of $1,816,864.

This report shows that in 1928 8,744,674 vehicles passed through the tunnel and that the gross income from all sources amounted to $4,843,201.

RESIGNS OVER A BOOK.

Professor Schuecking Quits German Shakespeare Society.

Wireless to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—The sudden resignation of the politician and scientist, Professor L. Schuecking, from the German Shakespeare Society has caused so much astonishment in wide circles that the Shakespeare Society has published the explanation that Professor Schuecking resigned because the society expelled Hereward T. Price.

Price, who was an Englishman, lived in Germany before the war and after marrying a German woman became naturalized. During the war he served on the German side and was taken prisoner in Russia. After his return he wrote a book entitled "Boche and Bolshevist" which the Shakespeare Society asserts contains insults to high German officials and the German people. This did not prevent Price until recently being employed by the Society for World's Economics at Kiel as English lecturer.

Since this society has disowned him and his book was condemned in open discussion in the Prussian Legislature the Shakespeare Society thought it was time to take action and expelled him almost by unanimous vote. Professor Schuecking, however, is of the opinion that the Shakespeare Society had no right to censor Price's book.

This will be the address of the executive offices of many of the leading American business institutions.

THE PLACE OF GAS FUEL IN INDUSTRY

The use of Gas Fuel for production purposes is recommended solely for two reasons. These are—Improved Workmanship and Better Economy...In almost all cases, Gas Company engineers, when permitted to make a survey of plant or shop conditions, have been able to demonstrate both of these claims for nearly every type of heating process...HERE ARE A FEW TYPICAL EXAMPLES:—

Bearing Metals—A manufacturer of bearing metals utilized the accurate temperature control of his gas equipment to reduce shrinkage and improve the quality of his product for the market.

Baking—A baker, who was particularly proud of his plant, ordered his ovens to be converted from solid fuel to Gas when he saw a magazine reproduction of a picture taken in his own bakery as evidence of unsanitary conditions in the production of bread. Today he invites the public to inspect his premises at every opportunity.

Garment Making—Industrial Gas engineers, working with a manufacturer of women's apparel, devised a method of correcting imperfections in the finishing of plush coats and velvets, through the use of a gas-fired steam boiler and superheater, which materially reduced return orders and rejections from retailers and buyers.

Metal Melting—A brass melting concern, by adopting Gas as its source of heat supply, reduced metal losses by 50%, increased the number of heats from 3 to 8, improved conditions of employment, and eliminated time wasted in feeding fuel to fires.

Die Casting—Manufacturers producing a great variety of metal specialties have eliminated all the expense of cleaning castings, sandblasting, machining and inspecting through the employment of die casting machines, in which the use of Gas is fundamental.

Automobile Servicing—Because of restrictions against the use of open flame burners in garages, Gas Company engineers developed a completely enclosed type of tank immersion heater, which enables automobile service stations to avoid the necessity for a fireproof room sealed off from the rest of the garage. The space thus saved is used for storing cars and other purposes.

GAS is today the ONLY AVAILABLE FUEL that can be burned smokelessly without special handling or the use of costly mechanical accessories.

Representatives of your Gas Company are constantly surveying local industrial conditions to determine where Gas can be employed more economically than the fuel in use at present. Why not let us give you a complete report of your shop or plant, without any obligation, showing just what benefits and economies you can expect by installing proper Gas-burning equipment? We will gladly arrange our tests so as not to cause you any inconvenience.

REPORTS $10,500,000 BID FOR GUELPH ART

But Berlin Paper Suggests 'Offer' Is Bait to Get German Museums to Buy It.

DUKE POSSESSES TREASURE

Hanover Collection, Now in Swiss Bank, Was Once Appraised at $2,500,000, It Is Declared.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—Some newspapers this afternoon published a story of how some American Maecenas or the German Republic is to be persuaded into buying the "Welfenschatz" collection of paintings, jewelry and other pieces of art for a large sum of money.

The present ownership of the Guelphic treasure is somewhat doubtful. Originally it belonged to the State of Hanover, and in 1866, when the kingdom of Hanover ceased to exist, it was confiscated by Bismarck. Later, for diplomatic reasons, the treasure was turned over to the heirs of King George V of Hanover, and is now in the possession of the Duke of Brunswick, who is keeping it in a bank safe in Switzerland until, as the Duke intimates, it shall be sold in America for $10,000,000.

Once, to please the Duke, the treasure was appraised at 10,000,000 marks (about $2,500,000) by an expert. The Duke, like most Germans, apparently believes that one mark is equal to one American dollar, and so he fixed the American price at $10,000,000, it is reported, and sent the Viennese art dealer Glueckselig across the ocean to sell the historic pieces left by his forefathers.

"There is no news that the American collectors are falling over one another to put in their bids," says the Vossische Zeitung. "Nevertheless, certain persons who 'are in the business' keep whispering that an offer of 42,000,000 marks (about $10,500,000) has been made in the United States. Evidently this is meant for the ears of our museum directors, who naturally would like the historic collection to remain in Germany. These whispers mean 'Get your money ready or the collection will go to America.' It is to be hoped, however, that the Minister of Finance will have sufficient command over himself not to drain the already almost empty exchequer of the Reich for the purpose of making the sons of the Duke of Brunswick rich."

BRITAIN IS EXAMINING AMERICAN POWER DEAL

Minister Says Efficient Control Is More Important Than Source of Capital in Utility Purchase

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Questions concerning the reported American control of British power companies were showered upon the Minister of Transport, Colonel Wilfrid Ashley, in the House of Commons this afternoon. Wilfred Wellock, Labor, asked whether Colonel Ashley was aware that an American utility company, through the Greater London and Counties Trust, Ltd., had acquired control of seven British power companies and substantial interests in others, each of which enjoyed a statutory monopoly, and desired to know if the government would consider whether and in what ways this step might affect British interests.

Colonel Ashley replied that he could not usefully say more than that the matter was engaging his attention. The Minister made no comment when Mr. Wellock pressed the point whether it was not a serious position that a monopoly created by Parliament should be controlled by foreign capital.

"Would not the Labor party" he asked, "not only be justified but in duty bound to nationalize it?"

Commander O. Locker-Lampson, Conservative, suggested that the more money that came to Great Britain for the development of industry the better it would be for the country.

Colonel Ashley replied that it appeared to him that more efficient control over such companies was more important than whether the capital happened to be foreign or British.

"That is what we have to consider, more than the origin of the money," he said.

Sir N. Grattan-Doyle asked whether it was not a fact in the case of this particular company that control of the company lay in British hands and that the British directors were in a majority.

"I believe that is so," was Colonel Ashley's rejoinder.

QUEEN MARY AT EXHIBITION.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—"The King is much better and getting on nicely," Queen Mary was overheard to remark cheerfully when greeting her friends today at Lansdowne House, the Mayfair home of H. Gordon Selfridge, where she opened an exhibition of English decorative and domestic art.

The Queen herself appeared to be in much better health than recently, and was in excellent spirits.

Today's was her first social event since the King fell ill, and she kissed and warmly greeted her friends among the notable women assembled there.

The Queen asked that Mr. Selfridge should be presented and Lady Algernon Gordon-Lennox brought him forward. Afterward Mr. Selfridge's daughter, the Princess Wiasemsky, was also presented.

Queen Mary is an authority on furniture and decoration, and she found in this beautiful mansion one of the finest collections of furniture, tapestries, pictures, china and silverware ever got together in a private house. The exhibition was arranged for the benefit of the Invalid Children's Aid Association, in which the Queen takes a lively interest. The King had lent a Bible and prayer-book of Charles II from the library of Windsor Castle.

It was stated today at Craigwell House, Bognor, that the King had a good day. He sat up for some time while the sun was shining. The weather has been less cold on the south coast, and with no morning frost.

5,000 ADVERTISERS TO MEET IN BERLIN

Youngreen, American Head of International Body, Confers There on August Meeting.

COMMITTEE SETS PROGRAM

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—The president of the International Advertising Association, Charles C. Younggreen of Milwaukee, arrived here from Paris today in company with M. Damour, president of the Continental Advertising Association.

Mr. Younggreen came to Berlin to look over and prepare the ground for the visit of from 2,000 to 3,000 Americans, all members of the association of which he is president. They will attend the jubilee meeting of the international advertising convention in the middle of August.

Mr. Younggreen immediately got in contact with the Foreign Office, under whose supervision the preparations for the reception of the guests are being conducted.

Later Mr. Younggreen received the German press representatives, to whom he spoke of the importance of the Berlin meeting, which, he said, would be attended by delegates from twenty-two nations, and at which the delegates would exchange their experiences and tell of their different methods and the results achieved.

He said it would be the first meeting of the international convention in any Continental city. Five years ago the meeting took place in London. Till then it had always been held in America.

The Foreign Office has appointed a reception committee for the jubilee, of which the former Chancellor, Dr. Luther, is president. Frau Stresemann will preside over the ladies' committee.

To Study European Conditions.

BERLIN, Feb. 18 (AP).—Mr. Younggreen was closeted here for several hours today with an international committee which included advertising representatives from England and France as well as from this country.

It was agreed that the central theme of the program for the coming convention should be advertising as a key to world-wide prosperity and a better understanding between nations.

"We expect that fully 5,000 advertising men of all countries will come to Berlin," said Mr. Younggreen. "The interest evidenced in the United States has been greater than advance discussion of any previous international meeting.

"The best minds in the distribution and advertising business will attend. The American delegation is coming to Europe to study European conditions and to give whatever information may be of service to Europe. We expect to learn a great deal about things in which Europe excels."

It was semi-officially announced today that the German Government had cooperated with the German advertising clubs in appointing a committee of arrangements consisting of former Chancellor Luther; former Minister Krohne; Director Riesebrodt, vice chairman; Frau Gustave Stresemann; Carl Kaufmann; vice president of the Reichsbank; Herbert Guttman, director of the Dresdner Bank; Dr. Franke, former Under-Secretary of State; Walter Zechlin, chief of the government press division; Lord Mayor Gustave Boess; former Chancellor Wilhelm Cuno; George Bernhard, member of the Reichstag; Frank von Mendelssohn, president of the Federation of German Industrialists; Cary Stimming, director general of the North German Lloyd and twenty-three others representing shipping, agriculture, the press, printing, banking and other German interests.

Mr. Younggreen has just recovered from an attack of influenza in Paris, which lasted a week. He said that he had not fully recovered his strength, but that he was improving daily.

R. J. LEONARD LEFT $25,000.

Widow Gets Estate of Teachers College Official Killed by Fall.

Mrs. Eugenie Andruss Leonard of 106 Morningside Drive receives all of the $25,000 estate of her husband, Professor Robert J. Leonard, director of the School of Education at Teachers College, Columbia University, under the terms of his will, filed yesterday in surrogate's court. The testator died Feb. 9 after a fall from the ninth-floor window of his home at the Morningside Drive address.

The will directs that all his possessions are to be used by Mrs. Leonard, a native of Seattle, Wash., "or distributed by her among their children or relations, in accordance with her judgment." The Leonard children are Eugenie, 15, and Robert Jr., 11. Most of the estate is in accident insurance.

BRITAIN OPPOSES TRIP OF ZEPPELIN TO EGYPT

But Eckener Still Hopes to Be Able to Make the Proposed Voyage.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—News that the Graf Zeppelin's proposed trip to Egypt next month would have to be given up for "diplomatic reasons" caused much surprise among Dr. Hugo Eckener's many friends when it was announced today. They contend that the Foreign Office was wrong when it said it had conclusive proof that England considers a flight to Egypt and Palestine by the Graf Zeppelin inopportune at this time.

The Lokal Anzeiger says it is better informed concerning the English Government's attitude toward such a trip. England, the paper says, would welcome it, because like all other nations, she would profit from the experiences of a dirigible flight over Palestine and Egypt.

The Foreign Office, however, announced this evening that official inquiries had been made in London at the British Foreign Office and had resulted in an intimation that an official request for permission for the Zeppelin to make the flight would not be desirable.

The Boersen Courier says today that "officials" in London who were consulted by the German Foreign Office regarding the trip did not make inquiries among representatives of the Egyptian Government, but instead consulted the English occupation authorities, the Lord High Commissioner and the Commander of the Royal Air Force, and that their replies created the impression that the flight would be inopportune.

King Fuad himself is said to have been decidedly enthusiastic when he learned through the newspapers of the visit planned to Egypt and an eventual landing in Ismailia. However, the choice of this landing was afterward given up for technical reasons and it was decided that the dirigible would merely cruise over Cairo and the Pyramids and then proceed to Palestine. Dr. Eckener still believes that this program can be carried out. If not, the Graf Zeppelin will skirt the coast line of Egypt and Palestine and cruise around the Mediterranean.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Feb. 18 (AP).—The dirigible Graf Zeppelin made a successful trial flight of six hours today. Heating apparatus was tested for the first time and worked so well that the passengers took off their coats. Then the apparatus froze and had to be disconnected.

Dr. Eckener said today that he expected a satisfactory settlement soon of arrangements for a flight to Egypt.

"I cannot imagine any need of putting out feelers to ascertain whether such a flight is agreeable," he said. "I think there is a misunderstanding somewhere which will soon be satisfactorily settled."

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ESSEN, Feb. 18.—Some time ago the Graf Zeppelin works invited architects and contractors to submit plans and estimates on the cost of construction of a new Zeppelin hangar at Friedrichshafen. The "Gute Hoffnungshuette" at Oberhausen has now been entrusted with the construction involving an expenditure of 4,000,000 marks [about $952,000]. Work will begin in May.

Saarland Rebukes Michelin.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The publishing house of Michelin, the French "Baedecker," recently addressed a letter to all Saarland burgomasters asking information of their towns and cities to use in the new edition of their "Guide Through France." The reply sent was short. "Saarland is an integral part of Germany and has no place in a "Guide Through France,"" it read.

LENROOT NOMINATION HELD UP BY BORAH

Committee Also Delays Action on Glassie for Judgeship but Assents to Garrett.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP).—The Senate Judiciary Committee gave quick assent today to the nomination of Representative Garrett of Tennessee, the retiring Democratic leader of the House, to be a judge of the Court of Customs Appeals. Two other judgeship nominations, however, were held up for further consideration. They were those of Irvine Lenroot, former Republican Senator from Wisconsin, and Henry Glassie, former Democratic member of the Tariff Commission.

Senator Borah, Republican, of Idaho, asked for some information about Mr. Lenroot's connection with power companies a year ago at the time when the utility companies opposed the resolution of Senator Walsh, Democrat, of Montana, for an inquiry into their affairs.

'TROTSKY' PLEA ASKS ENTRY TO GERMANY

LOEBE FAVORS ADMISSION

He Recommends It to Cabinet—Moscow Finally Admits Expelling Ex-War Lord, Still in Turkey.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—The President of the Reichstag, Paul Loebe, received last night the following telegram from Pera, the foreign quarter in Constantinople:

"Referring to your speech in the Reichstag Feb. 6, I request the German Consulate at Pera to grant a visa. LEON TROTSKY."

The speech referred to was made by Herr Loebe in commemoration of the tenth anniversary of the adoption of the Republican Constitution. When interrupted by Communists, Herr Loebe retorted:

"We [who form the government today] have granted you your rights as citizens. Perhaps we shall some day even grant Trotsky an asylum of freedom in Germany."

Herr Loebe has turned the telegram over to the government to act upon. Although it bears all the appearance of being genuine, there is talk in the Reichstag lobby of a joke such as Communists would perpetrate.

Cabinet Delay Is Likely.

BERLIN, Feb. 18 (AP).—Paul Loebe, president of the Reichstag, sent to the Cabinet today with a recommendation for favorable action a message he had received from Leon Trotsky asking permission to come to Germany.

It was understood that the Cabinet would take no action on the request of Trotsky until a report is received from the German Consulate at Constantinople.

It was pointed out that such requests must be accompanied by certain official documents, which in this case have not yet been received here.

Stay in Turkey to Be Limited.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ANGORA, Feb. 18.—Official circles here confirm the news that Trotsky will remain in Constantinople for only a limited time, keeping the name of Seipoff, under which he landed last week.

The Turkish authorities will not allow him to see any one, and he will virtually be as much a prisoner there as he was in Russian Turkestan.

Moscow Admits Expulsion.

MOSCOW, Feb. 18 (AP).—Official announcement was made today for the first time that Leon Trotsky, former head of the Red army, has been sent into exile.

The announcement did not state where Trotsky had gone, restricting itself to the bare statement that by a decision of the State political department he had been exiled from the Soviet Union for his anti-Soviet activities and that in accordance with his wishes his family had gone with him.

CALLS RATE HEARING ON LABOR INSURANCE

Conway to Hear Views on Excess Compensation Increase as Companies Protest Move.

Albert Conway, State Superintendent of Insurance, ordered a hearing yesterday to be held next Monday on the uniform rates which the Compensation Inspection Rating Board has asked to have established for excess workmen's compensation insurance covering employers who, under bond, arrange to pay their own damages for small accidents but who carry insurance against large losses.

The General Reinsurance Company and the American Reinsurance Company, which carry this type of insurance directly, but which as reinsurance companies are not members of the Compensation Inspection Rating Board, have protested the proposed rates as has the Newton-falls Paper Company of Newtonfalls, N. Y., a policy holder. The reinsurance companies maintain that the rates sought, of from 9 to 24 per cent of the regular manual rate for workmen's insurance, are excessive and will force employers to seek insurance outside of the United States.

A minority group represented on the rating board also is understood to be opposed to the proposed rates. A committee from this group, one from the majority group on the board, one representing all reinsurance companies, and James McGinnis, in charge of this type of insurance for the State Department of Labor, have been invited to the hearing Monday.

The rate now proposed is similar to one which James A. Beha, former Superintendent of Insurance, refused to approve in 1926, according to Joseph J. Magrath, acting chief of the State Bureau of Insurance. Mr. Beha at that time ruled that the insurance was subject to regulation, but held the rate proposed excessive, Mr. McGrath said. Since then individual companies have been allowed to establish their own rates.

LAUDS OUR ANTI-DRUG AID.

London Times Hails Cooperation With Other Nations.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—A tribute will be paid by The London Times tomorrow to the action of the American Government in helping to stamp out the opium traffic. "It is welcome news," The Times will say editorially, "that the United States Government has now concluded its series of informal agreements for the exchange of information on international trade in narcotics, and thus brought itself into line with other countries."

"The United States has her own way of assisting in European movements," continues The Times. "Her new agreements with the chief countries concerned—among which, however, Switzerland is notable by its absence from the published list—will be another welcome proof that she is not unwilling to support the combined efforts of others in a good cause. The control of the trade in narcotics is still very far from being complete. The tricks of unprincipled chemist smugglers have been wonderfully ingenious, but they are gradually being detected and exposed."

SALVATIONISTS HAIL CHIEF IN BIG RALLY

Cheers and Fervent Prayers Greet New General and Speed Parting Councilors.

LOYALTY HERE IS PLEDGED

Evangeline Booth, in London, Tells Affection for Her Brother and Support for Higgins.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army in the United States, stood before 3,000 cheering Salvationists tonight and declared her affection for her brother, General Bramwell Booth, at the same time pledging her unswerving loyalty to the new general, Edward J. Higgins.

"No man in Christian history," said Miss Booth in tones that rang through the historic Congress Hall at Clapton, "ever came into office with a greater wealth of affection laid a his feet than did General Bramwell Booth. No sister's heart ever gave deeper affection, and continued to give it, than mine for my brother. Standing before all of you, and before Almighty God, I say no heart beats tonight that gives Bramwell Booth more tender and deeper affection than mine.

"And now comes General Higgins." Commander Evangeline turned and faced the man who had defeated her for the highest post in the Army. "General Higgins," she said, "there will be no people to surpass the Army in America in their affection for you, in their following of you, in their matching of your ambitions for the Army. I give you my hand of welcome. I give you my assurance that you shall find me, as you have always found me, ready to lead and serve."

Fervor Marks Meeting.

A storm of cheering broke out in all parts of the hall. It was the culmination of a memorable meeting to welcome General Higgins, bid farewell to the High Council, and incidentally mark the end of the crisis which has shaken the Salvation Army for two months.

Old Salvationist battle cries rang out again. Favorite old hymns were sung with rousing fervor, and "amens" and "hallelujahs" came from the gathering as they did in the days of William Booth, the Salvationist founder.

On all sides it was said the Army was having a rebirth and opening a new epoch in its history.

References to General Bramwell Booth were kindly and affectionate, and invariably stirred applause. His daughter, Colonel Mary Booth, sat in a conspicuous place on the platform, just below the red-coated bandsmen. Commissioner Booth-Tucker, son-in-law of the founder, sat near the front of the platform and received a special demonstration all his own. Commander Evangeline sat between General and Mrs. Higgins in the first row. Behind them were most of the members of the High Council, who had overthrown the Booth régime and substituted the rule of an elected General for the first time.

Half an hour before the meeting time the hall was packed with long lines of people outside vainly trying to get in. The first ovation came when Commander Evangeline was seen making her way to her place on the platform. The crowd arose, cheered and fluttered handkerchiefs, keeping up the din for fully five minutes, while the Commander saluted again and again.

Cheers for New Chief.

Still more spontaneous cheers arose when General Higgins walked to his seat with his wife. The crowd sang "To the Front! the Cry Is Ringing." Then Commissioner Charles H. Jeffries offered prayer. General Higgins knelt and covered his face with his hands.

When the General arose to speak another great demonstration brought a glow to his cheeks. Electric lights shone on his silvery gray hair. Beneath his blue Salvation Army uniform he wore a red jersey. The General gave an impression of sturdiness in making his first speech as leader.

"The Salvation Army has been passing through a time of stress and storm," he said. "It would be idle to deny it. I do not think we shall come through the storm unscathed. There will be wounded hearts and spirits because of diverse loyalties. But I detect here the spirit of determination, love and zeal that will never let the old flag fall.

"We saw the storm coming. For years there was a fear that methods proper in 1878 were inadequate for the conditions prevailing in 1929. It was most unfortunate that just as those fears and desires were finding expression, the General should have been stricken with illness. The consensus of the leading officers whose motives could not be challenged—was that in this storm it was essential to have a captain who could stand on the bridge, alive to every changing current, every hidden rock.

Tribute to General Booth.

"Thus, with the deepest regret, and with tender remembrance of the incalculable services rendered by General Bramwell Booth—services the world will never forget—it was decided to relieve him of responsibilities which his health and age had made too much for him.

When General Higgins defended the High Council's action cheers indicated that the crowd approved. Another burst of cheering came when he mentioned General William Booth's services.

"When I realize some of the great qualities possessed by my two great predecessors," he said, "it makes me wonder how I can be equal to my task. At any rate, I can equal them in giving my all to the Army. My message to the Army throughout the world is 'To arms, to arms—against wrong and oppression, and want and sin.'

"Yes, there will be constitutional changes, but there will be no change in our great purpose."

With each day of the Higgins régime it appears more and more likely that General Booth will continue the litigation he once threatened. Strong pressure is being brought to bear on the old General to accept the situation peacefully.

General Higgins has not yet named his chief of staff, but the likeliest candidate is Commissioner George Mitchell, who is generally conceded to have made a brilliant record with his command in Sweden.

People Driven From 5,000 Sao Paulo Homes As the River Tiete Overflows for Miles

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Feb. 18.—The Tiete River continues rising on account of the rains in the regions of its tributaries, though it has not rained recently in this city. The flooded river has forced many people to move.

Mont Serrat, in Santos, continues slipping, and the slides have caused the greatest sufferings of the city hospital and the withdrawal of residents near the mountain.

Immigrants arriving in Santos now take the railway to the base of the plateau and then ascend to the top by foot, proceeding afterward to the city of Sao Paulo by rail.

The lack of railway service is beginning to cause Sao Paulo merchants serious concern. Many have been planning to use trucks to Santos, but the damaged automobile road, which is now passable, may be further damaged if the rains resume. The railway from Sao Paulo to Santos has two tracks. If service begins on one this week end, with the other unusable for several weeks according to present predictions, the freight congestion there and the delays in forwarding goods to Sao Paulo will probably cause heavy commercial losses.

SAO PAULO, Feb. 18 (AP).—The heavy rains which have caused the Tiete River to overflow its banks for several miles have placed 5,000 houses under water and rendered 25,000 persons homeless.

AUSTRIA MOBILIZES TO AVERT DISORDERS

Government Calls 100,000 Men to Watch Parades of Socialists and Fascist Foes Sunday.

MACHINE GUNS TO BE READY

Leaders of Factions Agree Not to Arm Followers and to Limit Each Group to 8,000.

VIENNA, Feb. 18 (AP).—Leaders of the rival political organizations, the Heimwehr [Fascist] and the Schutzbund [Socialist] agreed today not to arm their followers for the demonstrations to be held here Sunday and to limit the number of participants on each side to 8,000. They declined, however, to give any further guarantees that peace would be maintained.

The government decided to place field cannon, machine guns and a battalion of soldiers outside each projected demonstration place. Mobilization was begun today of the 100,000 men in the combined army, gendarmerie and police. All officers and soldiers who have been on leave were ordered to return to their regiments.

The Schutzbund had asserted that the Heimwehr would appear in full war equipment, including revolvers, swords and helmets. The government has forbidden the wearing of military uniforms or helmets, as these constitute the exclusive equipment of Austria's national army. The Chancellor has also said that the Heimwehr must not come into conflict with the disarmament provisions of St. Germain, which limits the standing army of Austria to 25,000 men.

The concessions made by the rival leaders were at the behest of Police President Schober. He is determined to compel the rivals to meet in widely separated parts of the city if he is unsuccessful in prevailing upon one of them to conduct its meeting at another date.

Rivalry between these organizations culminated in riots in July, 1927, with resulting deaths of 100 persons and the burning of the Palace of Justice. Although it is believed that the situation is now less threatening, the independent press deplores the government's consent for permitting the demonstrations.

The present situation is parallel with one created several months ago by assemblies of the Heimwehr and Schutzbund at Wiener Neustadt. On that occasion, as on others, the intention of one faction to hold a mass assembly was promptly met by the calling of a similar gathering for the followers of the other. Vienna became an armed camp in anticipation of trouble, but the day passed without any clash.

BOLIVIA DENIES ADVANCE BY TROOPS

Foreign Office Declares Charges by Paraguay Are Without Foundation.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Feb. 18 (AP).—The Foreign Office made complete denial today of recent Paraguayan charges that Bolivian troops were again advancing into the disputed Chaco territory.

The communique said:

"President Siles, informed of the new charges by Paraguay regarding military advances, instructed our legation in Washington today as follows:

"'It is not true that we have advanced on any point of contact along the Bolivian-Paraguayan frontier. The protocol signed at Washington sometime ago contained a solemn promise to suspend all hostilities and to cease all concentration of troops in points of contact guarded by the military forces of both countries. President Siles recalls this promise and affirms our loyal execution of it.

"Diplomatic representatives resident in La Paz have surely advised their governments that demobilization of the army has been effective and sincere in Bolivia, and that public opinion, so deeply disturbed by the Paraguayan attack on Fort Vanguardia early in December, has been restored to moral equilibrium.

"'We have confidence in the investigation and ruling of the Washington commission, and continue to maintain a defensive position regardless of the alarmist news emanating from Paraguay daily. We have suggested to Paraguay a solution by arbitration of the frontier dispute with demarkation of the disputed area.'"

Forger Was Not George E. Bolton.

Through an error in transcribing the record in General Sessions last Friday George E. Bolton was given as the name of the man who was sentenced by Judge Mancuso to fifteen months in Sing Sing for forging the name of Peggy Hopkins Joyce, the actress, to a check for a small amount on a trust company. The forger's name is Joseph E. Bolton, and George E. Bolton had no connection with the case.

House Approves Lakehurst Chapel.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP).—The House today passed a bill to grant permission to the American Legion to build a memorial chapel at the Naval Air Station, Lakehurst, N. J. The measure now goes to the Senate. The bill would give the Secretary of the Navy supervision of the design of the chapel and authority to accept it as an unconditional gift to the Government.

PRINCE ADVISES BRITISH ON SELLING

Heir Sees Something Wrong in Methods That Produce Goods Unsuitable Overseas.

HE DENIES HE IS SALESMAN

"I Never Tried to Sell Anything in My Life, Except a Few Horses," He Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—In a speech at the Mansion House tonight, the Prince of Wales, who has been described as "Britain's best salesman," ventured to tell a gathering of British manufacturers and others interested in exploitation of British goods, what, in his opinion, were the faults which prevented their obtaining, as against foreign rivals, that share of business in the overseas markets which they should possess.

He was speaking at a government dinner held to mark the opening of the British Industries Fair. Those in attendance included Premier Baldwin, Ambassadors, Ministers and commercial attaches of many foreign countries, and high commissioners and commercial representatives of the various British Dominions.

The Prince modestly disclaimed any knowledge of salesmanship, and aroused laughter by saying "I never tried to sell anybody anything in my life except a few horses," but he went on:

"I travel a good deal, and sometimes come up against this somewhat sad state of affairs—a British community, many thousands of miles away, anxious to buy British goods but unable to do so because those goods are not suitable or practicable to the locality.

"There must be something utterly wrong for such a state of affairs to exist, and I can only surmise that local conditions and requirements have not been sufficiently studied. Either a quantity of the wrong type of certain articles has been sent out, which is quickly scrapped by your agent in favor of the goods which our foreign competitors have sent out to suit the requirements, or there have been no orders at all. The same applies in foreign countries."

The Prince disclaimed any wish to interfere with the methods of British manufacturers, because he had no right to do so, but he felt it his duty to tell them what he had found wrong at the market end. He added:

"Even on such an occasion as this, when we are congratulating ourselves on the British Industries Fair, no good can come of patting ourselves on the back. We can congratulate ourselves on our successes only when we have ...en and rectified our faults. Some faults there undoubtedly are in our salesmanship, because I know from personal experience—and a good deal of it—that there is a desire, and a very strong desire, not only in the British possessions overseas but in foreign countries as well, to buy goods manufactured in Britain in preference to others if—but only if—the goods suit their requirements.

"I am glad to hear that salesmanship is now being studied by a representative committee, and it would be out of place for me to anticipate its report, which I am sure will include, among the other requisites it advises, personal knowledge of the goods, knowledge of the conditions and language of the country where the goods are to be sold, and then tact and good manners.

"I think we might put personality first. When a lot of men come to sell you something you will be much more likely to buy it from the fellow you look on as a friend. Apart from learning local conditions, try to learn the language, because you will sell the thing better in that way. If the 'boss' of the firm can go out and do business, he will sell his goods very much better than by leaving it to other people."

At the outset of his speech the Prince, speaking with emotion, expressed his thanks for the world-wide sympathy shown over the illness of King George.

"The prayers and affection of the country, and indeed of the whole world," he said, "have been a source of great encouragement, and the King's determination to win through, which, thank God, appears likely to be successful, has been an inspiration to the whole nation."

The Prince then stressed the serious conditions of unemployment which had existed for some years in Britain. There were, he said, 1,400,000 workless people, and he appealed to every one in the country, and also those from the Britis- Dominions, to assist in every way possible to effect a solution providing work for this vast multitude. He strongly favored the overseas settlement of the unemployed, and he urged the "cooperation of our kinsmen in the Dominions" in reaching a solution of the problem.

The Prince's stirring call to the British manufacturers to take advantage of the opportunities offered them, and not lose them through lack of initiative and careful study of foreign markets, was greeted with much applause by the audience. He has emphasized the same views before, and trade returns have shown that his perseverance has not been in vain. Hence his title of "Britain's best salesman."

Premier Baldwin, who spoke after the Prince, dwelt on the significance of the British Commonwealth of Nations. He said it did not lie in the fact of so much of the map being painted red, adding:

"It lies in this, that in our vast expanses of the world, with its millions of races and hundreds of faiths and tongues, there is peace, and no one dare break it. I hope the day will come in the world when, if two nations want to fight, there will be some power which will say, 'Move on!' the same as a London policeman would say if he found two men fighting in the street.

"The more people go about in pursuit of business, the more they meet each other; the more they learn to do business, the more they must learn to trust each other, and the more certain it will be that when certain elements become disturbed, or certain elements try to blow up the flames of hatred between nations, there will be a solid substratum in every country who will set their faces against anything that may lead to permanent want of harmony.

"I believe, and always have believed, that the great ally of trade in keeping the peace of the world will be ordinary, simple, daily wireless broadcasting between nation and nation."

Walker in Florida Asks Quiet and Rest; Starts on Fishing Cruise on Houseboat

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 18.—Mayor Walker of New York arrived here tonight on William F. Kenny's private car and after announcing that he intended to "rest in seclusion" until he regains his health, departed on a fishing trip and cruise on the houseboat Harmony.

Stepping from the train, the Mayor asked the photographers not to take his picture. Explaining to newspaper men why he was in an uncommunicative mood, he asserted that he was ill.

When questioned about his contemplated fishing trips the Mayor said he desired above all to get away from telephones, telegrams and business until he feels better. The houseboat Harmony, which he used on his last visit to Florida, had been prepared for him.

Although Mayor Walker has reservations for the Sharkey-Stribling fight at Miami Beach on Feb. 27, he said the time of his return from the cruise was uncertain. He then hurried away to call Frederick Rand Jr. of Miami and complete arrangements before boarding the boat.

The houseboat started on her cruise about 8:30 P. M.

Mrs. Walker has reservations at a Miami Beach hotel beginning tomorrow and is expected to join the Mayor after the cruise.

CHARITY ACTS ON VOID WILL

The Servants of Relief for Incurable Cancer at Rosary Hill Home, Hawthorne, N. Y., will investigate the revocation of the will of Mrs. Ada Coman Courtenay, late of 2,025 Broadway, under which the organization was to receive half of the residue of her estate of $70,000, according to a statement last night by Mother Mary Rose, Mother Superior of the home. Similar action is contemplated by the Holy Name Mission at 219 Bowery, to which the other half of the residue was bequeathed.

Mrs. Courtenay, who died Jan. 18, was the widow of Frederick Courtenay, actor, and the daughter of the late Thomas Coman, a president of the Board of Aldermen and for one year Mayor of New York.

Surrogate Foley revoked the will on the application of Mrs. Coman's brother and sister, Morgan E. Coman, also an actor, and Miss Teresa J. Coman, both of 35 West Seventy-sixth Street, Woodside, L. I., whom he appointed administrators of the estate.

The first two pages of the invalidated documen were signed at the bottom by Mrs. Courtenay, but the signatures of the two other sheets were cut off. The names of three witnesses to the document, however, remained. According to James A. O'Gorman, counsel for the brother and sister, Mrs. Courtenay probably mutilated the document after a dispute with his clients about eighteen months ago. A reconciliation occurred before her death, he added.

CLARK TESTIFIES BEFORE GRAND JURY

ELECTION CLERKS HEARD

Newcomba Announces He Will Have Handwriting Experts Examine Slip Tomorrow.

The Queens County Grand Jury resumed yesterday its investigation into the charges made by John Holley Clark, legal adviser to Borough President George U. Harvey, that his enrolment ballot cast during registration week last Fall had been tampered with. Mr. Clark complained to District Attorney Newcombe that certification had been refused to him as an enrolled Republican, although he had cast a properly marked ballot.

Carl Vogel, chief clerk of the Board of Elections in Queens, previously testified before the Board of Elections that the ballot had no mark in the enrolment column when it was first examined in the bureau, but after the visit of two men, one of whom said he was Major Clark, a mark was found in the circle reserved for Republic enrolment.

Mr. Clark, who testified last week before the Grand Jury, was again called yesterday. He is said to have testified that he marked his ballot properly. Mr. Vogel, who was another witness, is understood to have repeated the testimony given to the Board of Elections. His version, it was said, was substantiated by Arthur Schreyer, now a private detective who was at one time a temporary employe in the Bureau of Elections. Other witnesses before the Grand Jury were Samuel Werl and Henry Schulz, also temporary Election Bureau clerks.

The disputed ballot is in the possession of District Attorney Newcombe. Mr. Newcombe said yesterday he would have handwriting experts examine the ballot tomorrow. He said "satisfactory progress has been made in the investigation."

MEN AND CATTLE DIE IN GRECIAN FLOODS

Seven Rivers Overflow as Cold Snap Ends, Turning Town Into Lake.

DANUBE ROUTS THOUSANDS

Vienna Uses Dynamite to Blast Graves for Hundreds of Unburied Dead.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Feb. 18.—Terrible floods have begun in Greece and it is feared many lives have been lost and thousands of cattle have been swept away.

Seven rivers have overflowed their banks. The river Struma has formed a vast lake across the country from which it reissues as five distinct streams. The floods have been particularly destructive in Greek Macedonia and along the Turco-Greek frontier. Many incidents of Greek and Turkish frontier guards rescuing each other from drowning have been reported.

Premier Venizelos has placed himself at the head of the national relief forces to aid the distressed peasantry. All available motor boats have been commandeered for rescue work by the government.

Ancient Towns Submerged.

ISTIP, Macedonia, Yugoslavia, Feb. 18 (AP).—Part of the city of Cavalla, a great American tobacco depot, is submerged. The historic city of Heraclea, famous for the operations of Alexander the Great, has been transformed into a vast lake with merchants plying their trade in boats.

Fear Danube Floods.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Feb. 18.—From the Black Sea, where the Danube begins its long ice-bound stretch ending at Duernstein, near Vienna, the eyes of all living on the river banks are fixed.

Rumania is anxiously awaiting news of the melting of the ice. If the thaw sets in first at the mouth of the river, floods may be avoided. If, however, this ice holds while that in the northerly countries melts, disastrous floods appear inevitable.

The Danube in Rumania is still frozen, and the only means of communication with Bulgaria is by sledge across the river. The Black Sea harbors are still blocked, and drifting icebergs continue to be frequently sighted.

Flee From Danube Threat.

VIENNA, Feb. 18 (AP).—Rising waters in the Danube and its tributaries have caused widespread warning of coming floods, and already thousands of settlers on both banks of Europe's longest river are making for higher ground, many of them taking household effects with them.

Army engineers are constructing buttresses to protect threatened districts. Children and invalids are being moved and all cattle, agricultural implements and tractors are being sent into the hinterlands. Local fire brigades of villages and towns along the streams are keeping watch of the waters so as to sound alarms.

The millions of tons of ice and snow have covered the Danube in some places to a depth of six feet. There has never been such an accumulation in the history of the famous river which gives occupation and water supply to hundreds of thousands of persons along its 1,800 miles.

Dynamite and electric drilling machines are being used by the Viennese authorities to dig graves for the capital's increasing number of victims of influenza and the cold weather.

The emergency measures are being taken not only because of the deep freezing of the ground but because of a serious shortage of grave-diggers, many of whom have succumbed after working day and night. Several hundred bodies are awaiting burial.

Storms Off Spanish Coast.

MADRID, Feb. 18 (AP).—Storms off the Spanish coast have done serious damage to the fishing fleet. One boat was wrecked and another made its way into Bilbao with great difficulty. All fishing out of Ameria has been suspended.

Asturias Province is feeling a cold wave, and sharp freezing weather was recorded in Oviedo this morning.

Swedish Ice Barrier Grows.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Feb. 18 (AP).—The ice barrier along the southwestern and southeastern coasts of Sweden is steadily growing, but communication is maintained once a day with Denmark and Germany. No American craft is among the numerous steamers icebound in the Baltic Sound and the Cattegat.

Another huge snow storm stopped all train services in Southern Sweden, and in some sections of Scania the inhabitants had to dig their way out of their houses through second-story windows. The forecasts are for continued intense cold.

Famine Ravages Lithuania.

KOVNO, Feb. 18 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Suffering in Northern Lithuania on account of famine is great, according to detailed reports submitted at a conference of merchants and manufacturers opened Sunday at Schavel.

Two More Gifts for Neediest Cases.

Two contributions to the Hundred Neediest Cases fund were received yesterday by THE NEW YORK TIMES. One was for $20 from Mrs. Josephine Myers and another for $10 from Mrs. Benjamin Briscoe. This total of $30 brings the fund to $338,155.01.

Spain Approves Kellogg Treaty.

MADRID, Feb. 18 (AP).—The Cabinet, with Premier Primo De Rivera presiding, ratified tonight the adherence of Spain to the Kellogg pact for renunciation of war. The treaty now goes to King Alfonso for his approval.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 18.—Ice is still binding the Danish waters and paralyzing the inter-island traffic to an almost catastrophic extent.

The ferryboat Tyr has been stuck in the ice in the Great Belt for two days, with 300 to 400 passengers, among whom an epidemic of influenza has broken out. But neither doctors nor drugs could be found aboard.

Ice breakers, which hastened to give aid, only succeeded in approaching to within 650 feet and had to send drugs across the drifting ice.

stimulate interest in the main body of stocks.

As measured by THE NEW YORK TIMES averages, the advance was not as striking as would appear from the wide gains in leading trading vehicles. The combined averages, covering fifty representative stocks, were up $1.80 net on the day. Twenty-five industrials gained $2.53, while twenty-five rails were up $1.06.

For the first time yesterday the Exchange tried out the new semi-circular trading post with which it has been experimenting. It is different from the present circular posts in many respects, the most important of which is in the arrangement to have telephone clerks work along with the specialists out on the floor, instead of in the separate booths at the sides of the board room. The new post is to replace the one now in use. Each new one will have twice the facilities of the old and fewer will be required.

Members of the Exchange were asking yesterday for a three-day suspension at the week-end. More than 300 names were on a petition requesting a holiday on Saturday, between Washington's Birthday and Sunday.

INJUNCTION SUIT DELAYED.

Electricians' Issue Will Be Argued in Court Tomorrow.

By agreement between counsel, arguments in the injunction begun last week by the Building Trades Employers' Association against Electrical Workers' Union No. 3 were postponed yesterday when the case was called in the Supreme Court to tomorrow morning before Justice Townley. Walter Gordon Merritt represented the employers and James E. Smith Sr. appeared for the union.

The Building Trades Employers' Association, it was announced yesterday, will appeal to the Appellate Division the decision of Supreme Court Justice Bijur, who set aside last week the temporary injunction against the Electrical Contractors' Association which prevented it from enforcing the five-day week. The appeal will be based on the allegation that Judge Bijur misinterpreted the three contracts existing between the Building Trades Employrs' Association and the Electrical Contractors' Association.

The committee on buildings and sites of the Board of Education will confer tomorrow afternoon with electrical contractors and union officials with a view to ending the school building tie-up caused by the strike of electrical workers. Five buildings under construction in Brooklyn are affected by the strike. They are Public Schools 96, 204, 200, 121 and 227.

TANNERS ASK DUTY ON 'FREE' LEATHER

Cooper Tells Tariff Hearing $100,000,000 Industry Is Menaced by Importation.

LUGGAGE INCREASE ASKED

Rise on Glove and Garment Leather and Gloves Also Asked—Free List for Carillons Sought.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—A 20 per cent tariff duty on shoe leather, which is now on the free list, was urged by spokesmen for tanning interests, with others asking higher duty on glove and garment leather and an increase on gloves and luggage products, at the tariff hearing today before the Ways and Means Committee. Appeals for greater protection for several additional sundries were followed by requests that the present duty of 40 per cent ad valorem be taken off carillons, for which the pleaders say there is a growing demand that cannot be satisfactorily met by domestic production.

Discussion of carillons is listed for continuance tomorrow, when opposition to removal of the duty is expected. There were statements today that Treasury officials had allowed church towers to be designated "storehouses" in order that carillons might be set up, with tariff payments in suspense pending a legislative decision on maintenance of the duty.

It was also stated that large sums have been paid in duties on several importations. The customs tax paid by Edward W. Box on the carillon set up in Florida was $33,588, it was disclosed.

Witnesses Praise Carillons.

Several witnesses told eloquently of the value carillons as instruments of music for the public, and said production of them was an old and intricate art which could not be duplicated for the present in the United States.

Representative Gifford of Massachusetts, William G. Rice of Albany, N. Y., George O. Fairweather of the University of Chicago, William R. Conklin and Kamiel Lefevre of New York City and Frederick Mayer of Westpoint, N. Y., made earnest pleas for removal of the duty.

An English concern, moved by the gibes of a clergyman, rediscovered the art of making carillon bells, it was recalled by Mr. Mayer. Mr. Conklin told how it was impossible to produce in this country a carillon to be installed at a cost of $250,000 by John D. Rockefeller Jr. in the Park Avenue Baptist Church of New York City. The duty on this at present rates would be $100,000, the witness said.

W. Curtis Bok told of the duty paid by his father, and members of the committee noted installations with duties in suspense by reason of sympathetic officials designating church towers as "storehouses." It was brought out that the House of Representatives three times has passed a bill for repeal of the duty.

Cooper Asks Leather Protection.

The opening appeal for a duty on finished shoe leather was made by Representative Cooper of Ohio, who said the tanning industry represents an investment of about $100,000,000.

"There is a chance of it all being lost unless protection is provided against ruinous foreign competition," he declared.

Walter T. Creese of Danvers, Mass., for the calf leather producing branch of the New England Shoe and Leather Association, asked that the duty on calf and kip leather be made 20 per cent ad valorem. The plea was supported by August H. Vogel of Milwaukee, Wis., for the Calf Leather Association. Importations had increased until they have approximated to 42 per cent of consumption, he said.

"What is your view as to a duty on hides?" Mr. Bacharach of New Jersey asked.

"If the farmers want it, I am not opposing it, though theoretically raw materials should be on the free list," he replied.

Tanners Urge Increase.

"We tanners cannot run a free-trade show in a protected country," declared V. G. Lumbard of Girard, Ohio, for the calf-leather producers. He said high duties apply to chemicals constituting 25 per cent of tanners' raw material costs.

C. F. C. Stout of Camden, N. J., on behalf of producers of goat, kid and cabretta leather, asked for the duty, saying exportations by this branch of the industry have fallen from 50 to 20 per cent of production.

Maintenance of present duty on fancy leather for non-shoe use was urged by Louis M. Muslimer of New York City, who joined with others in asking that the law be so worded as to prevent "bootlegging" operations in these leathers.

Howard Donnell, for the National Leather Company, said importations had put 4,000 leather workers out of employment in Peabody district, wherein half of the country's upper, including three-fourths of its patent, leather for shoes was produced.

"Give us enough duty to pay a fair wage and we don't care how much you put on hides."

A. J. Worsdell of New York City asked on behalf of tanners of bag, case and strap leather that a 20 per cent duty apply to East Indian tanned cattle and kip hides.

Abraham Mittenthal of New York City asked that the duty on luggage manufacturers be increased from 30 to 60 per cent.

Higher duties on rope wreaths was asked by Henry M. Robinson of Boston; on hard rubber combs by E. S. Boyer of New York City, on bone combs by John Walton of Philadelphia, on laminated paper products now under an embargo by J. K. Johnson of Wilmington, Del., and on musical instruments accessories by J. H. Chapin of New York City.

ASSEMBLY FOR TARIFF RISE

Legislators Pass Resolution Asking Hoover for Special Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 18.—With only three dissenting Republican votes, the Assembly tonight adopted a resolution introduced by Assemblyman Sargent, Republican, of Syracuse, calling on President-elect Hoover to convene a special session of Congress as soon as possible after March 4 to revise the tariff upward.

Assemblyman Maurice Bloch, Democratic leader, made a futile effort to amend the resolution so that Mr. Hoover would have been called upon to "revise the Volstead law." A standing vote showed that the proposed amendment had been defeated, although all Democrats voted for it.

"There is just as much reason why the Volstead law should be revised as the present tariff law," Assemblyman Bloch said. "If there are speakeasies in this State they are under the patronage of the Republican party."

A TIP ON THE STORK MARKET

NOW see here, Fathers and Fathers-To-Be, there's a lot of shopping to be done for that actual or prospective baby. The storks are soaring pretty much as they did in the old days, but times have changed and a blessed event today means more than just bringing down the ancestral crib from the attic. Nowadays there are motor bassinets and juvenile beds and screened cribs and play chairs and colored sheets and layette chests and a thousand and one other things to make a baby's life rosy and a father's pockets anemic. But what superior babies they are—these twentieth century products whose comforts and best interests are looked after so carefully! Naturally you Fathers are indulgent when you see what results you can get by surrounding your children with the best of everything. But let us give you a few tips before you mortgage the house in order to furnish the nursery . . .

OUR NEWEST DEPARTMENT

The new department for nursery furniture which has been opened on the Fourth Floor in Macy's West Building occupies four times as much space as was used by the old department, and it is so conveniently and helpfully arranged that it simplifies the whole business for even the most pathetically inexperienced father. There are five model nurseries designed to meet the needs of children ranging in age from practically nothing to approximately eight, and the rooms are so attractive that a doting papa is apt to want to go off with all the prescribed furniture and the wall paper to boot.

Due west of the new nurseries is the baby carriage room where you can buy anything from a simple domestic model to an exclusive French import with the most spectacular wheel base. Let it be added that by making all your transactions in the crib market at Macy's, you will save so much, the 6% underselling policy being what it is, that you'll be wanting to have another baby at least 6% sooner than you would if you did your shopping elsewhere.

WARDER SEEKS SALE OF THE CITY TRUST

Tries to Arrange to Have Some Other Institution Take Over Closed Bank.

TO SAVE GOOD-WILL VALUE

Proposal Based on Preliminary Audit—Stockholders' Body Demands Information.

The State Banking Department, which a week ago took over the City Trust Company, 2,118 Second Avenue, and its four branches, is negotiating for the sale of the bank. These negotiations are based on a preliminary audit on the status of the bank made to Frank H. Warder, banking superintendent.

Though Mr. Warder has refused to make public the figures compiled by his examiners the sale of the bank would mean that the losses, if any, of depositors and stockholders would be considerably lessened. Such a sale would realize upon whatever good will value exists, which otherwise would be lost.

Mr. Warder issued the following brief statement yesterday:

"The preliminary audit has been made and at this time it is being used to see if arrangements can be made for another bank to take over the business of the City Trust Company so as to realize for the depositors and stockholders the full good-will value of the institution. When these negotiations are either concluded or abandoned a summary statement of the conditions will be given."

Neither Mr. Warder nor any of the officers of the bank would say what institutions were being considered as possible purchasers. The Bank of America has been mentioned in this connection. Dr. A. H. Giannini, who is president of the board of the Bank of America, was elected president of the City Trust Company shortly after the death of F. M. Ferrari, the president. Dr. Giannini, however, did not exercise an optional agreement to purchase stock of the bank and, although nominally president, has no financial interest in the bank. One of his associates in the Bank of America yesterday denied that any negotiations were pending for the purchase of the City Trust Company.

Judge Francis X. Mancuso, chairman of the board of directors of the trust company, also refused to discuss the proposed sale.

A committee representing 3,000 shares of stock, made formal application yesterday to the banking superintendent and to the chairman of the board of directors, for information regarding the status of the bank. This committee, composed of Morris Bernhard, Harry Mabel and Joseph I. Schick, was formed on Saturday by stockholders who, it was said, were indignant at the secrecy surrounding the closing of the bank.

The City Trust Company was an accredited depository for city and State funds. It was learned yesterday, however, that at the time of the failure no city funds were deposited there. The State had $75,000 on deposit. This money is protected by bonds and the State will suffer no loss.

Great Northern Loses Tax Case.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP).—Minnesota today won a $500,000 tax case in a controversy with the Great Northern Railway. The case, pending since 1913, involved the demand of the State that the earnings of a dock company at Allouez, Wis., should be included in the earnings of the railroad, which hauls ore there from the Mesabi Range in Minnesota. About 81 per cent of the railway trackage is in Minnesota and the State insisted it was entitled to tax that percentage of the total receipts of the railway and dock company. The tax was contested on the ground that a large part of the earnings of the dock company came from mixing and grading ores, a service distinct from transportation.

WINSLOW INQUIRY DEMANDED IN HOUSE

General made it clear that he did not believe he had authority to investigate the LaGuardia charges. Thereupon Mr. LaGuardia urged that the committee should ask for authority to make an inquiry on its own account. The committee accordingly instructed Chairman Graham to draw up and introduce the two resolutions above outlined. The first resolution follows:

Resolved, That the matter stated in the LaGuardia resolution affecting the administration of justice by Francis A. Winslow, a Federal judge in and for the Southern District of New York, shall be investigated by the Judiciary Committee of the House and a report be duly made thereon.

Names of Subcommittee Proposed.

The second resolution names the seven members to act as a subcommittee of inquiry and clothes the subcommittee with broad powers. The subcommittee is authorized to send for persons and papers, administer oaths, and sit in Washington "and elsewhere." All those named on the subcommittee will be members of the new Congress. They are: Representatives Dyer, Missouri; Christopherson, South Dakota; Hickey, Indiana, and Stobbs, Massachusetts, Republicans; Summers, Texas; Montague, Virginia, and Dominick, South Carolina, Democrats.

It is understood that in pursuance of its authority to sit "elsewhere" than in Washington the subcommittee is very likely to hold prolonged sessions in New York City, probably this Spring.

Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled: That Leonidus C. Dyer, Charles A. Christopherson, Andrew J. Hickey, George R. Stobbs, Hatton W. Summers, Andrew J. Montague and Fred H. Dominick, being a subcommittee of the Committee on Judiciary of the House of Representatives be and are hereby authorized and directed to inquire into the official conduct of Francis A. Winslow, United States District Judge of the Southern District of New York, and to report to the House whether, in their opinion, the said Francis A. Winslow has been guilty of any acts which in contemplation of the Constitution prove high crimes and misdemeanors, requiring the interposition of the constitutional powers of the House; and that the said special committee have power to hold meetings in the City of Washington, D. C., and elsewhere, and to send for persons and papers, to administer the customary oath to witnesses, all process to be signed by the clerk of the House of Representatives under its seal and be served by the sergeant-at-arms of the House or his special messenger; to sit during the sessions of the House until adjournment sine die of the Seventieth Congress and thereafter until said inquiry is completed and reported to the Seventy-first Congress.

Section 2: That said special committee be and the same is hereby authorized to employ such stenographic, clerical and other assistance as they may deem necessary, and all expense incurred by said committee, including the expense of such committee when sitting in or outside of the District of Columbia, shall be paid out of the contingent funds of the House of Representatives on vouchers ordered by said committee, signed by the chairman of said committee; provided, however, that the total expenditures authorized by this resolution shall not exceed the sum of $5,000.

Graham Explains Action.

Chairman Graham explained today that when he requested the Attorney General to make an inquiry into the LaGuardia charges it was because he had received unofficial information that the Attorney General was ready to do so. He declared that in view of the Attorney General's declaration that he had no authority to conduct such an inquiry it was the duty of the Judiciary Committee to go ahead with an investigation of its own. Chairman Graham remained in the House until a late hour this afternoon with a view to asking for the passage of the resolutions. Owing to pressure of business in the House he was obliged to defer taking that step until tomorrow.

The LaGuardia resolution which forms the basis of the proposed investigation, is the outgrowth in part of certain charges that have been made with respect to bankruptcy administration in New York courts. This is now the subject of investigation by United States District Attorney Tuttle. The LaGuardia resolution, broadly, accuses Judge Winslow of nepotism, favoritism and other acts of alleged improper conduct.

GRAND JURY HEARS BUCKNER.

He Says Afterward He Made No Recommendation in Kaplan Case.

Former United States Attorney Emory R. Buckner was questioned for fifteen minutes yesterday by the Federal grand jury which is investigating the bankruptcy situation in this district. The calling of Mr. Buckner and the recalling of Marcus Helfand, Harry Halpern and Frank H. Drucker indicated that the grand jury was still seeking the facts in connection with Representative F. H. LaGuardia's charges against Federal Judge Francis A. Winslow.

Mr. Buckner was United States Attorney when Meyer Kaplan, mentioned in the LaGuardia charges, was admitted to probation. Mr. LaGuardia alleged that Kaplan's probation and its subsequent revocation were due to irregularities in which both Marcus Helfand, an attorney, and Judge Winslow had a part. Mr. Buckner, after leaving the grand jury room, made the following statement:

"I appeared in the Kaplan case when sentence was to be imposed, but I made no recommendations nor did I oppose his application for probation because I was unfamiliar with the facts in the case. The case had been tried while Colonel Hayward, whom I succeeded, was United States Attorney. I recall that a delegation of business men came to see me and that I merely brought them into court as a formal matter."

United States Attorney Tuttle said yesterday that he would continue the bankruptcy inquiry with the present grand jury so long as it was possible to obtain a quorum of two-thirds of the twenty-three members. He pointed out that this might soon become difficult, as the present grand jurors have served long over their time. The investigation will continue under a new grand jury should this one be discharged.

Kaplan was in the grand jury anteroom yesterday, but was not asked to testify further. Mr. Tuttle said he had no intention, at this time, of calling Judge Winslow before the grand jury.

David H. Gladstone and Merrill E. Gates Jr., attorneys and former bankruptcy receivers indicted for embezzlement in the present investigation of the bankruptcy situation, will be brought to trial today before Federal Judge William Bondy and a jury.

ADOPT COUNTY TAX TABLES.

Westchester Supervisors Set 1928 Assessment Equalizations.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 18.—The Westchester County Board of Supervisors adopted today the county equalization of assessments table for 1928, after several Supervisors had voiced objections to the assessment ratings as given their municipalities by State Tax Commissioner Mark Graves and the equalization committee of the board. These ratings are based upon assessed valuation of property as compared to the true values, the rating being determined by the percentage. A few of the municipalities have received higher rating this year than last, while others have been cut. Supervisors from East Chester, Mount Vernon and White Plains voted against the adoption of the table, as some felt that their municipalities were assessing property at a higher percentage than that given in the table. The first tax levy in the Blind Brook Valley sewer district was announced today, as $64,395, of which the town of Harrison is to pay $3,367 and town of Rye the balance.

The Bronx Valley sewer district tax apportionment was announced as $169,198 and is divided as follows:

East Chester $27,954, Greenburgh $12,473, Mount Vernon $6,315, Scarsdale $17,571, White Plains $57,545 and Yonkers $47,336.

FIRE LOSS DECLINED $2,632,834 IN 1928

PER CAPITA DAMAGE $2.76

1,608 More Conflagrations Than in 1927—7,150 False Alarms—41 Pyromaniacs Arrested.

Fire losses in the five boroughs of New York City were $16,624,381 in 1928, and the number of fires was 25,949, according to the annual report of the Fire Department compiled by Fire Chief John Kenlon and made public yesterday by Fire Commissioner John J. Dorman. Although the number of fires reported was an increase of 1,608 over 1927, the losses showed a decrease of $2,632,834, the report reveals.

Manhattan, with losses totaling $6,993,970, led the boroughs in fire damage. The figure, however, was $2,338,045 less than the losses in 1927. In Queens the losses amounted to $1,845,205, a decrease of $99,230. In Richmond, the losses were $1,022,624, a decrease of $281,766. In Brooklyn and the Bronx the fire losses were considerably larger than the 1927 figures. The Bronx increase amounted to $337,905, the total being $1,709,030; and the Brooklyn increase was $489,160, or a total of $5,794,410 for the year. The year's total was $3,013,584 less than the total loss by fire and water in 1923, the report said.

The battalion district covering the Brownsville section of Brooklyn led all in the number of fires with a total of 1,301. The second largest figure was in the Fifteenth Battalion District, which embraces the northern part of the Bronx. The east side of Harlem, which includes the negro sections, the Yorkville district and the midtown hotel and theatrical sections were next, in the order named, the report reveals.

The department confined 89 per cent of all fires to the point of origin, which is approximately the same percentage that has been recorded for the past few years, according to the report. The loss by fires figured on a per capita basis was $2.76, a decrease of 54 cents, compared with 1927, while the number of fires per hundred buildings last year was 4.31, an increase of .53. The number of fires per thousand of population was 4.31, an increase of .23.

Although there were 25,949 fires, there were actually 33,099 alarms turned in, of which 7,150 were false; 15,339 of the fires were in buildings, an increase of 624 over the preceding year's figure, and 10,610 outside of buildings, in lots, streets, fences or in automobiles. Of the building fires 7,111 were in tenement houses, 3,161 were in other places, 1,810 were in stores and 1,519 were in factories.

Other statistics contained in the report reveal that the fire fighting force used 86,011,490 gallons of water extinguishing fires, and that forty-one pyromaniacs were arrested on arson charges. The arson figure was thirty-five less than 1927, although the number of convictions, twenty-four, was 4 per cent higher than the 1927 percentage.

FEDERATION TO STUDY PROBLEM OF WORKLESS

Unemployment to Be Chief Theme of Labor Chiefs' Conference in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 18.—Members of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor opened their midwinter conference here today with a brief session, cut short by news of the death of the father of Frank Morrison, secretary of the federation.

The next meeting of the council was set for Washington, May 28. Speaking of that meeting William Green, the president, said that unemployment in all its phases, organization, legislation, workmen's compensation, maintenance of standard wage scales and the five-day week were among the subjects that would be considered.

"Problems of unemployment are perhaps the greatest which the American Federation has to face," Mr. Green said. "They will receive the council's closest and most serious attention. The council will consider the methods of replacement of men displaced by the increased introduction of machinery into industry, and the unsound economic conditions prevailing in some industries, particularly coal mining, and textile and shoe manufacturing.

Mr. Green described unemployment as "spotted," being serious in some districts but not generally menacing. He remarked:

"Great numbers of workers are constantly being displaced by machinery and mechanical methods in industry, and the Federation must find means of replacing them."

By "unsound economic conditions in certain industries," Mr. Green explained that he meant overdevelopment, overproduction and over-organization.

"It is important," he said, "that the council work out some line of action for the stabilization of this condition."

CAMERON, MICHEL ON TRIAL FOR FRAUD

The brokerage concern of Cameron, Michel & Co., Inc., now in receivership, and several individuals, went to trial yesterday before Federal Judge Knox on a charge of using the mails to defraud investors in the stock of the Canario Copper Company of Arizona. The senior partner of the brokerage concern was former United States Senator Ralph H. Cameron of Arizona, who severed his connection with it in 1920. His name did not appear in any of the investigations made by the government into the alleged illegal activities of any of the defendants. Herbert C. and John T. Locke are individual defendants.

The name of Mr. Michel, Mr. Cameron's partner before the latter's election to the United States Senate, is only used to indicate the firm under indictment. The officers of the concern, now among the defendants, are the two Lockes and George F. Shurtleff. Associated with them as defendants are John Carter Anderson, mining engineer; Oscar Regel, newspaper writer, and Garry C. Carragher, Harry B. Cutches, Richard Blechner and W. H. Dey, salesmen and employes of the company. The Cameron Holding and the Copper Exploration Corporations are also defendants.

It is alleged in the indictment that the defendants schemed to defraud the two Canario companies and thirty-five individuals, that in 1925 the stock of these companies was boomed on the Curb, that later the stock was stricken from the Curb and that reports followed that the companies were in bad financial condition. Mr. Wadmond and Elbridge T. Gerry 3d, who is also engaged in the prosecution, said that between 1918 and 1925 the defendants sold $9,240,000 of the stock of the companies and that their share of this amount was approximately $5,000,000. The sales were the greatest, they said, in 1924 to 1926.

Boy "Wrecker" Sent to Prison.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Percy Smithers, 17 years old, was sentenced at Winchester today to three years' penal servitude. In pleading guilty to the charge of burning haystacks worth $3,250 and breaking into three offices he declared he might have been influenced by a play, "The Wrecker." Postcards from him signed "The Wrecker" were received by the police at Newport, Isle of Wight, threatening to destroy the town. Nevertheless the severity of the sentence has caused much comment in the newspapers.

CHURCH DENIES HAND IN REVOLT IN MEXICO

The clergy as a whole have received instructions from the Holy See not to participate in such activities.

"We had even less to do with the attempt against President Portes Gil and, indeed, we disapprove of it as being against Christian morality.

"Dealing with the decree of the Ministry of the Interior, we declare that to obey it does not endanger the rights of the Church and that priests conforming to it do not commit a sin nor are they unfaithful to the sacred duties of their ministry, for the matter is simply one of giving their addresses without any relation to the exercise of their sacerdotal functions.

Decree's Legality Challenged.

"It is true, however, that the decree has no legal basis, for the Constitution says in Article XVI that no one can be molested in his person, family, papers or possessions except by virtue of a written order on competent authority. It has even less legal basis in contending that those who do not give their residences shall be considered as accomplices of those in rebellion. Catholic priests obviously might have other and graver reasons for not giving their addresses, especially when it is remembered what they have suffered in recent times, and the government has no reason for branding as a crime what really is not so. Crimes are not invented. They must be clearly esta' ished by law. Nor can penalties be applied except as declared by law.

"It is further true that the decree of the Ministry of the Interior is for us a great humiliation and one totally undeserved, for the government has evidence that we are not dangerous persons, in that after the horrible sufferings in our lives, the clergy as a whole has remained apart from the armed movement and that a great portion of the clergy is subjecting itself patiently to impositions which are seriously injuring its welfare and interests. That shows our spirit is pacific and that it is an error to attribute to us any connection with the armed strife. Of this the entire nation's conscience is well aware.

Priests Declared Free to Register.

"Therefore, as regards what is lawful, we cannot prohibit the priests from doing what they wish, provided always it is in accord with what their respective congregations may decide. They may, therefore, if they think it convenient, subject themselves to this humiliation and make known their residences. But if they do so it must be as a result of their own decision, for we cannot assume the responsibility of affirming the legality of such action.

"It is further true that the government has promised not to abuse its knowledge of the priests' residences, but it must be remembered that there are elements in the government, radical in the extreme, whose judgment as to our responsibility might be adverse despite our innocence, and such elements would be difficult for higher authorities to control.

"Finally, we would remind the government that it is within its power to make a peace satisfying the just demands of the nation, without requiring cruel sacrifices, by reforming the laws, as has been petitioned on various occasions with millions of signatures. To those petitions no reply has been received. What is needed is generous reform. The reforms which the people seek are just, not excessive, and do not affect the government's sovereignty.

"Lastly, we protest that in making these declarations, based on truth and justice, we have not sought to wound any one, but have made them in a spirit of making peace by means of the truth, for only by the truth shall we be a free Mexico.

"MIGUEL DE LA MORA,
"Bishop of San Luis Potosi.
"Feb. 14, 1929."

Confiscation to Proceed.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 18 (AP).—Close on the heels of the statement today by Bishop de la Mora, the Attorney General's office declared tonight that in accordance with the instructions of the President it would proceed to nationalize the properties of all persons convicted of giving aid to insurgents and that confiscation would be carried out only after thorough and impartial investigation of charges against those accused.

CONSULS IN MEXICO MEET.

American Agents Exchange Ideas at General Conference.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 18.—The first general conference of American consular officers in Mexico in many years was held this morning at the American Embassy.

A statement from the embassy says the meeting was for the purpose of exchanging information and establishing contacts with a view to coordinating the activities of the various representatives of the United States. In addition to the meeting at the embassy there will be other conferences at the Consulate General to consider administrative and technical questions.

The conference today was attended by representatives of the twenty American Consulates in Mexico, by Arthur Bliss Lane, Chief of the Division of Mexican Affairs at the State Department in Washington; by Monnett Davis, former chief of the visa office of that department, and by representatives of the Department of Commerce stationed in Mexico.

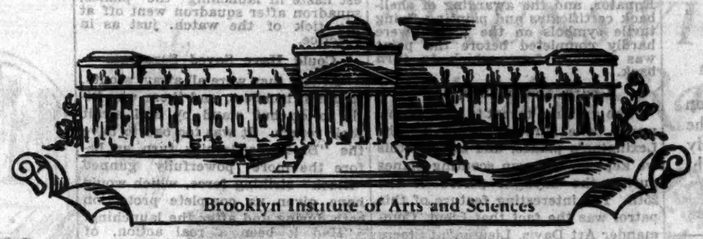
MISSIONARIES OF BEAUTY

The following are extracts from a speech made the other day by Robert W. de Forest, President of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, before 2,000 members of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. He said:—

Metropolitan Museum of Art

"MUCH as I want to bring good art to the museum, I am more interested in bringing good art into the home. That is your opportunity . . . There is just as much art in furniture, curtains, table coverings, silverware, as there is in the pictures or statuary in the museum . . . A beautiful room can bring enjoyment and happiness.



Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences

"A HARMONIOUS room is like a strain of music. You can feel it. That is the kind of home I want to see in this land of ours. Here is where you (retail dealers) can serve. You can become missionaries of beauty. There is no reason why every department store should not be a museum. Your influence can be far greater than that of all the museums. You can be the most fruitful and useful source of art in America."

Art in the Home

HERE, in the Abraham & Straus store, we agree with Mr. de Forest with all our hearts. We recognize our responsibility. We think of our store as a permanent but ever changing exhibition of the world's merchandise, that may be viewed with pleasure and purchased with profit. Indeed, shopping in A & S has become so popular that we are now erecting a new building which will have three times as much floor space for exhibition as the Metropolitan Museum itself.

COMMANDER'S STORY OF SARATOGA'S RAID

TWO NO. 13 PLANES LOST

The following is a continuation of Mr. Freeman's cabled descriptions of the recent war game at the Panama Canal. A further dispatch will appear in a subsequent issue. More extensive mail articles by Mr. Freeman on the significance of the manoeuvres also are being printed from time to time in this paper.

By LEWIS FREEMAN,

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
Special Correspondent of The New York Times with the fleet.

ON BOARD THE U. S. S. CALIFORNIA AT BALBOA, Feb. 18.—I am transmitting here only such portions of Admiral Reeves's story of the Saratoga's bombing raid on the Panama Canal as fill the gaps in the accounts already sent of the action, as followed from the California.

The full epic recital as I heard it, with Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh on the bridge of the Saratoga, in the intervals of plane launchings and landings and simulated destroyers attacks, can be told only when the navy has determined what portions of the epoch-making achievement can be passed on to the public.

As already described, the Saratoga was detached from the "Black" fleet [the attacking force] and sent far to the south just preceding the bombing raid, in order to minimize the risk of discovery and attack by the Lexington and other "enemy" ships.

"I would have taken her further still beyond the zone of possible discovery," said Admiral Reeves, "but the Omaha's bottom was so foul, her fuel was so low, and she could not have kept up with us at the 33 knots or more the Saratoga would have had to steam on the return north to the rendezvous with the striking force of battleships on the morning of the 26th.

"The ship's company had the usual Neptune ceremonies on crossing the Equator, and the awarding of shellback certificates and painting flying turtle symbols on the planes were hardly completed before the point was reached from which to turn back.

Guard Against Surprise.

"The greatest threat to success now would be a surprise attack by the Lexington's planes, and against this we kept up our own scouting planes during the daylight period of the 25th. The interesting feature of this patrol was the fact that Lieut. Commander Art Davis, Lieutenant Storrs and one or two others actually flew back across the line [the Equator] on the northward run, this event being commemorated by painting a notation 'no fooling' below the flying turtles on their planes. These spirited young men of mine have to have their little jokes.

"The first contact with the enemy came that evening when a destroyer, turning out to be the Breck [of the Canal Defending Force], broadcast that she had sighted a large plane carrier. As she seemed in doubt whether we were friend or enemy, the bright young men of my staff did a bit of quick thinking and radioed an order to take 'station astern,' thus evidently convincing her that we were the Lexington. She turned and headed in like a lamb to the slaughter, until at 10,000 yards we sent a signal saying she could consider herself out of action by gunfire.

"The harm already had been done, however, by the Breck's signal, and not long afterward the enemy cruiser Detroit came charging in from the outer darkness and engaged the Omaha. As the Detroit was under the Saratoga's 8-inch guns for some time, we were inclined to feel she also had been eliminated as a factor in the problem, but the complication of umpiring a three-cornered fight resulted in the Omaha being ruled as damaged and slowed down, while the Detroit was following at a safe distance and calling for help.

Planes Launched Before Daylight.

"Knowing this would bring both the Lexington and the "Blue" battleships full speed to attack the Saratoga, I gave an order to get ready to launch planes, although it was still some time before daylight. A bright moon made it possible to do this with a minimum of lights, but the roar of warming up the planes and the flashes from their exhausts quickly revealed what was going on to the enemy. The Detroit's signal, 'Saratoga preparing to launch planes,' sent about 3:30 A. M., we knew would be a warning to the Lexington, the naval station at Cocosolo and the army air stations to get everything they had into the air against us.

"It was now a race as to which would get up first. Determined not to be caught by a surprise attack, we had kept our planes tuned up all day, ready for immediate launching. Now, I ordered the pilots of fighters equipped with oxygen, so as to go up 20,000 feet if necessary in pressing home the attack.

"It was disappointing, of course, not to find the striking force battleships at the rendezvous, according to plan, to protect us during the launching, but the impossibility of taking observations on account of overcast skies and the strength of the ocean currents had forced me to consider this contingency in advance and prepare to carry on in any event.

"But luck was with us, and long training told in our favor. Even under the difficult light conditions, and the imperative necessity of the greatest haste in launching the planes, squadron after squadron went off at the tick of the watch, just as in practice.

Could Have Saved Saratoga.

"At last they were all away, scouts, fighters, bombers, and there was little to do but stand by and await their return. It was too bad to have the "Blue" battleships turn up before the more powerfully gunned "Black" striking force, which would have given us complete protection both during and after the launching.

"Had it been a real action, of course I could have used the Saratoga's superior speed to run away and avoid action, simply paying the price of planes and pilots for the serious damage to the canal locks such a raid must inflict. Since it was only a game of war, however, and since my planes were already winging back and needed a landing deck, I simply headed up into the wind and let the enemy do his worst.

"We had struck our blow demonstrating, we feel, conclusively, not only the value of properly coordinated aircraft carriers as a naval arm, but also vindicating again the navy's competence of conducting its own flying affairs.

"It was a great stroke of luck having the destroyer Shirk turn up in the nick of time to save a pilot plane that crashed near the Saratoga.

"An interesting coincidence is that the lost plane was No. 13 in the squadron, as was also another lost in the attack of the following day. You will notice that the new plane replacing the one sunk is numbered not 13 but 13—. Even the sailors of the air are still a bit superstitious of the hoodoo."

Navy 'Mask' Inventor and Aide Are Declared to Have Proved Feasibility of Device.

ABOARD THE U. S. S. MALLARD OFF KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 18 (AP).—Two men escaped today from the submerged submarine S-4 from a depth of 120 feet by use of oxygen-inflated masks, thereby proving, in the opinion of officers in charge, the feasibility of the device as a preventive for submarine disasters.

Lieutenant C. B. Momsen, one of the inventors of the mask, and Chief Torpedoman Edward Kolinowski risked the danger of being crushed or otherwise injured by the pressure of the water at such a depth, but as a result of their experience were none the worse tonight. The test was declared entirely successful.

Previously the tests had proved successful from shallower water, and today's exhibition of the masks or "lungs" has proved without doubt their feasibility, according to Lieut. Commander P. H. Dunbar, in charge of the operations.

Lieut. Commander Dunbar said that in his opinion the device would in large measure prevent such catastrophes as that that befell the S-4 in December, 1927, when forty lives were lost.

The submarine during the rest of the week will conduct minor tests inside the harbor at Key West.

REPORTS THREAT MADE TO YANKEE DIVISION

BOSTON, Feb. 18 (AP).—The Boston Post will say tomorrow that three unnamed high government officials, members of the Twenty-sixth (Yankee) Division, which goes to France next September, have been threatened with the loss of their positions because a contract for the Atlantic voyage had been signed with the Cunard Line instead of with the United States Lines.

A representative of the United States Lines, the paper will say, told the committee this when he came here to solicit the contract only to find that it had been awarded to the British company.

The Post will quote General John H. Sherburne of Brookline, chairman of the committee, as saying:

"The United States Lines evidently was unable to satisfy the veterans, so they have signed a contract with the Cunard Line, and there it stands.

"Of course, all veterans will resent bitterly any outside influence."

member of the university council and is chairman of the Centennial Fund Committee. When he accepted the chairmanship of this committee he said:

"New York University is kept going at full capacity. I know of no other institution of higher learning that gives itself so lavishly to its community. A host of youths, of all classes and with all manner of special needs, turn instinctively to New York University to enlarge their intellectual capacities, and in the vast majority of cases the benefit accrues directly to the city.

"New York is my home, and I am convinced that I cannot serve the city's interest better than by helping, to the extent of my ability, to put the university in a position to realize its splendid opportunities. I am more ready to undertake this because of the remarkable showing the university has made with very limited resources. The institution receives no State or city aid, and its endowment is but a pittance compared with the endowments of other leading universities."

For Student Endowment Is $129.

In connection with the comparatively low endowment of the university, figures made available yesterday disclosed that the per student endowment at the university is only $129. This is about 1-18th of that at Columbia, 1-76th of that at Harvard and 1-80th of that of Yale, and 86 per cent of the operating costs at New York University are met by student fees.

In tallying of Mr. Straus's work on the committee formed to mark the 100 anniversary of the university by an increased endowment, a statement issued by the university yesterday said:

"In less than four years, in which time the Centennial Fund has taken shape under his leadership, the university has received in gifts upward of $5,500,000."

The fund committee, when its personnel has been finally chosen, will consist of 368 persons, one for each of the days of 1931, the centennial year. The members of the executive committee of the Centennial Fund, in addition to Mr. Straus, are:

The woman whose beauty counsel sways Paris

Mme. Valentin LE BRUN

Director, L'Institut de Beauté, Paris

finds an ideal home beauty treatment

The distinguished Mme. le Brun, proprietor and founder of L'Institut de Beauté, Paris, explains how washing the face this way "produces loveliness on a healthy skin."

"I strongly advise every woman who is anxious to retain perpetual beauty to make use, daily at home, of...the specially blended Palmolive Soap, which is a powerful factor for promoting perfect skin hygiene. Other soaps, even more expensive ones, owing to their caustic nature, often irritate the epidermis and, in the end, tire and spoil it."

(Signed) Mlle. Le Brun

L'INSTITUT DE BEAUTÉ, 26, PLACE VENDOME

Parisian sunlight filters through the windows of Mme. Le Brun's salon, while two operators demonstrate the remarkable results of Mme. Le Brun's principle for "producing loveliness on a healthy skin."

A priceless formula embodying the precious oils of palm and olive, famous since the days of Cleopatra for prolonging health and beauty.

WHEN you visit L'Institut de Beauté, at 26 Place Vendome, Paris, you will notice that it was founded "en 1885 par Mme. Valentin Le Brun." Madame Le Brun is still the head of this celebrated beauty salon, and today, at 73 years of age, her word is more powerful than ever on matters of skin care. For Mme. Le Brun has perpetuated the youthful appearance of many of the world's most renowned beauties, on the stage and among the aristocracy.

Like all of her disciples and her most illustrious colleagues, Madame Le Brun cannot over-emphasize the value of "thorough cleansing of the skin" as the most vital step toward personal loveliness.

Other Parisian Specialists agree

Her Parisian co-workers agree on this fundamental necessity. Lina Cavalieri, the former opera star, now a famous cosmetician; De Lord et Bion; Massé; Vincent; Payot...all the leaders in Parisian beauty culture work first to assure foundation loveliness...by one means and one means only—Palmolive Soap!

Madame Le Brun finds that "Palmolive Soap . . . removes, without irritation, all the refuse which obstructs the pores and leaves the skin thoroughly cleansed and healthy . . . for the tonification of the skin, it should precede the use of my lotions, creams, etc., just as it should precede the application of all complexion cosmetics."*

Echoed by the world's experts

In every country, in every world capital, one meets this same advice. Madame Berths Jacobson of Mayfair, London; Elise Bock, of Berlin; Pessl, of Vienna—scores of others tell their smart patrons these same facts about skin care:

All day, the pores gather dirt and dust, oil, rouge, powder. Gradually, these impurities clog the surface of the skin. Unless they are removed every day, unattractive blemishes soon are likely to lead to complexion disorders of a more serious nature.

The treatment experts advise

The way to counteract these dangers to skin youthfulness is this simple treatment: Massage the face gently for two full minutes with Palmolive lather. Rinse this off thoroughly, and with it all impurities and secretions. Follow with a cold rinse . . . to icy temperature, in the morning, as an astringent. All other treatments, all use of make-up should be preceded by this basic skin cleanser.

Your own beauty specialist, you will find, agrees with this statement. The leading experts in every city throughout the country recommend Palmolive Soap. They have helped to make it the most popular soap in the United States and 48 other countries.

PALMOLIVE RADIO HOUR—Broadcast every Wednesday night—from 9:30 to 10:30 p. m., eastern time; 8:30 to 9:30 p. m., central time; 7:30 to 8:30 p. m., mountain time; 6:30 to 7:30 p. m., Pacific Coast time—over station WEAF and 39 stations associated with The National Broadcasting Company.

*For Oily Skins: Poudre Iactic No 16, with hot water. For Dry Skins: Poudre Amandine, No. 33, with tepid water, to be used only after applying the Huile tonique aux Fleurs de Orient No. 29—These should be used in conjunction with Palmolive Soap. Mme. V. le B.

Newhere in Paris will you find a more typically cosmopolitan clientele than L'Institut de Beauté enjoys. Throughout its 35 years of existence, this beauty salon has been visited by many of the world's most distinguished women.

HIGH COURT HEARS SINCLAIR APPEAL

ABUSE OF POWER CHARGED

Government Counsel Will Argue Today in Favor of the Oil Man's Conviction.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP).—Arguing that Harry F. Sinclair was within his rights in refusing to answer four questions asked by a Senate committee relative to the Teapot Dome naval oil leases, Martin W. Littleton, the oil man's counsel challenged the Supreme Court today to find anything in these questions relating to other than the "most fantastic conceptions of legislation."

Mr. Littleton quoted a Supreme Court decision holding that a witness might decline to answer committee questions "where the bounds of the power are exceeded or the questions are not pertinent." He said the Senate Public Lands Committee "avowed" that the information it sought to elicit from Mr. Sinclair was not for aid in formulating legislation.

Further, Mr. Littleton contended that Mr. Sinclair, who is under sentence by the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia of three months in jail and to pay a fine of $500 was not properly called by the committee. The counsel argued that the conviction of his client for a "statutory crime" was therefore not valid because "every requisite must be complied with."

The attorney described how the sergeant-at-arms of the Senate telegraphed the Federal marshal at New York to "serve" the telegram on Sinclair, and asserted that no proof of any summons was included in the charge against him. He termed this part of the proceedings a "rag bag summons."

"Every citizen is under danger" if the sentence is upheld, Mr. Littleton continued. He said Sinclair was being "asked into prison," and that to describe the committee's inquiry as legislative was an "after thought of its intent."

He read the four questions, for refusal to answer which the oil man was indicted, and stated that they covered criminal matters which Sinclair knew would be delved into in the conspiracy case involving him and the former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall, who leased the oil reserves to Sinclair. The attorney said Sinclair had appeared before Senate committees five times in connection with the leases, later set aside.

One hour and twenty minutes were assigned to each side for argument of the case; George P. Hoover, of Sinclair counsel has fifteen minutes to close and it was announced that the government's time would be shared between Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, special counsel.

The whole record in the proceedings is before the highest court. The District of Columbia Court of Appeals asked five questions of the court for its guidance in deciding the case, but on a government motion resisted by Sinclair's counsel, the Supreme Court agreed to examine all the evidence.

Radio Feedback Appeal Rejected.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP).—The Supreme Court refused today to reopen the controversy between the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and others over patent rights to the regenerative or feedback circuit, a method for amplifying radio signals used largely in receiving sets in public use. The Westinghouse company claimed the rights under patents of Edward H. Armstrong, and was sustained in the Federal courts at New York City. The Supreme Court upheld the decisions of the Federal courts of the District of Columbia, Delaware and Pennsylvania in favor of the patents of Lee de Forest. In urging a rehearing the Westinghouse company insisted that it was of great public concern that the Supreme Court should clarify its decision, showing whether it was restricted or sweeping, and remove the confusion which was said to prevail in the industry.

UNTERMYER'S PLEA DENIED.

Federal Supreme Court Refuses Rehearing of Its Censure of Him.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (AP).—A rehearing was refused Samuel Untermyer of New York by the Supreme Court today in a proceeding in which his professional conduct had been censured by the court.

Protesting that his professional integrity had never before been questioned, and declaring that he valued his honor and reputation as a lawyer dearer than any other earthly possession, Mr. Untermyer insisted that the facts in a bankruptcy case from Pennsylvania, in which a $70,000 fee was claimed, had not warranted the severe criticism of the court.

He pointed out that the lower Federal courts had found nothing irregular or improper in a contract alleged to have been entered into between him and the Pittsburgh firm of Weil & Thorp, and denied that he had been guilty of a breach of professional ethics.

8,210 Joined Army Here in 1928.

Major Gen. Hanson E. Ely, commander of the Second Corps Area, announced yesterday at Governors Island that 8,210 men had enlisted here in 1928. There were 423 who joined the army for a year, the remaining 7,787 enlisting for the full three-year term. The men were recruited from New York, New Jersey and Delaware.

INCOME TAX UPHELD ON GIFT STOCK GAINS

Supreme Court Holds That Recipient Must Pay on Profit He Makes Over Price Donor Paid.

NOT ON VALUE AT TRANSFER

Court Discusses Father's Present of Nash Motors Stock to Daughter, Who Opposed Full Levy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—A decision upholding an income tax on shares of stock involved in gifts, calculated upon the difference between the cost to the donor and the price which the recipient obtains in selling them, was handed down by the Supreme Court today in an opinion by Associate Justice McReynolds.

Two similar cases were treated as one in today's opinion. The cases were those of Elizabeth C. Taft, petitioner, against Frank A. Bowers, Internal Revenue Collector for the Second New York District, and of Gilbert Greenway Jr., petitioner, against Bowers.

The cases came to the high court on writs of certiorari to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit. Chief Justice Taft took no part in them.

The court discussed the facts in the case of Elizabeth C. Taft, which presented the same principle of law involved in the Greenway case.

It was brought out that in 1921 and 1922, the father of Elizabeth C. Taft gave her shares of Nash Motors Company stock which gained in value after the date on which he had bought them. She sold them in 1923 at a price in excess of the value of the gift at the time it was made. The collector demanded an income tax representing the difference in cost to the donor and the price received by Elizabeth C. Taft.

The tax was paid, but suit was brought to recover the part of the tax imposed because of the advance in value while the recipient's father held the stock.

"In truth the stock represented only a single investment of capital—that made by the donor," said the court. "And when, through sale or conversion, the increase was separated therefrom, it became income from that investment in the hands of the recipient subject to taxation, according to the very words of the Sixteenth Amendment. By requiring the recipient of the entire increase to pay a part into the public treasury, Congress deprived her of no right and subjected her to no hardship.

"When she sold the stock, she actually got the original sum invested, plus the entire appreciation, and out of the latter only was she called on to pay the tax demanded.

"There is nothing in the Constitution," the court also says, "which lends support to the theory that gain actually resulting from the increased value of capital can be treated as taxable income in the hands of the recipient only so far as the increase occurred while he owned the property. The judgment below is affirmed."

FOR NEW FEDERAL PRISONS.

Boylan Bill Offered in House Applies Results of Survey.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Representative Boylan of New York, member of a special committee on Federal penal and reformatory institutions, today presented the first bill covering one recommendation of the committee.

The measure provides for the establishment of two new correctional institutions for confinement of persons convicted of offenses against the United States, one to be located in the northeastern part of the country and the other at a point to be designated later, preferably in the Middle West or Southwest.

The purpose of the two institutions is to relieve overcrowded conditions existing in the Federal prisons at Atlanta, Ga., and Leavenworth, Kan., where men are compelled to sleep in basements and corridors.

Other bills are in preparation covering additional recommendations. They deal with extension of the probation system, care of military prisoners, segregation of narcotic users, establishment of road camps and supervision of non-Federal institutions.

CITY'S TAX RATE CUT 11 POINTS TO $2.55

1922	$2.74	1926	$2.68
1924	2.73	1928	2.06
1925	2.68	1929	2.55

This table indicates that while there has been a steady decrease during the last eight years, in none of them did the drop exceed five points.

GRIMM SEES NO TAX SAVING.

Says Valuation Rise Makes Payments to City as Much as Ever.

"Any cut in the city's tax rate for the coming year is welcome, but I do not consider the reduction announced by Controller Berry anything to be particularly happy about," Peter Grimm, president of the Real Estate Board, declared yesterday.

"In the end, even with this reduction, we find we are paying just as much money out as ever," he continued, "because of the increases in assessed valuation of property. Such a system is like taking money out of one hand and putting it into the other. No general and genuine relief from this system and from a budget which has risen to $550,000,000, and threatens to go higher may be expected until the entire situation is considered through a thorough study of the budget and until some of the recommendations of the Mayor's committee of plan and survey and the economies for which the Real Estate Board has been working are put into effect."

ALBANY HAILS DECISION

Officials Assert It Will Mean an Additional $3,500,000 in Revenue From Estates.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The constitutionality of that part of the New York transfer law taxing the transfer of contingent remainders, or gifts made provisionally, was upheld by the Supreme Court today in an opinion written by Associate Justice Brandeis.

The law levies a graduated succession tax, and was attacked on the plea that it is violative of the due process, or equal protection, clause of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution. The high court, in sustaining the law, affirmed decrees of the Surrogate's Court of New York County in two cases, which were argued together and treated as one in today's opinion.

The cases were those of Leo Salomon, and other plaintiffs in error, against the New York State Tax Commission, and Nettie I. Simonson and other plaintiffs in error, against the State Tax Commission.

In reaching its decision that the State law is constitutional, the court discussed the facts in the Salomon case, in which it was brought out that Meyer Hecht, a resident of New York, who died in 1925, bequeathed his residuary estate in trust to his widow for life, stipulating that upon her death one equal share of the estate should go to each child then living and to the then living issue per stirpes of each deceased child.

The residue was appraised at $322,094, of which the value of the widow's life estate was appraised at $124,957. The tax then payable was assessed without objection. The litigation grew out of an appeal from the appraisal of the property at $322,094. The appraisal was upheld by the New York courts.

In sustaining the law, the high court took up the various arguments assailing its validity and ruled that it could not uphold any of them.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 18.—The decision of the Supreme Court means the preservation of revenue to the State amounting to $3,500,000 annually, according to Deputy State Tax Commissioner Seth T. Cole, who argued the cases.

The decision holds constitutional, he explained, the law of 1925 providing for the taxation of contingent transfers under the inheritance tax law on the basis of the full value of the property transferred.

HEARS HIS $125 PICTURE IS BY FLEMISH MASTER

Buyer of Painting at Auction Is Told by Expert That He Has Bought a Jordaens.

A painting which sold for $125 at a Yonkers auction a little more than a year ago has been classified by Dr. R. W. Valentiner, director of the Detroit Institute of Arts, as a genuine work by Jacob Jordaens (1593-1678), one of the chief Flemish painters, it was learned yesterday.

In November, 1927, A. O. Ziener, president of the Display Fountain Manufacturing Company, 157 East Thirty-third Street, happened to be in Yonkers on business and noticed that an auction was being held of furnishings at the home of the late Rudolph Oelsner, importer, at 582 Warburton Avenue. Mr. Ziener, who is interested in paintings, went into the house just as the last few lots of the day were being offered.

One of these was a large canvas which the catalogue described as being painted in the manner of Rubens. There was no chance to examine the painting as it was brought out for sale but Mr. Ziener liked it, decided to bid, and got it for $125.

Some time later it was noticed hanging in Mr. Ziener's New York office by the late Colonel James Elverson Jr., president and publisher of The Philadelphia Inquirer, who thought that it might have much greater value than its auction price indicated. Mr. Ziener sent the painting to Dr. Valentiner, who replied that he considered it a genuine work by Jordaens, of a type which the artist executed several times.

The painting, which is 58 by 80 inches, is called "The Family Feast." Adults and children are sitting and standing about a table, singing and playing various musical instruments. It is one of the type of genre paintings illustrating the Flemish proverb, "As the old sing, so the young peep." Different versions of this subject painted by Jordaens are in Antwerp, the Louvre, Dresden and Wurzburg.

STRAUS WORKER SUES PALM BEACH OFFICIALS

$100,000 Action for False Arrest Is Third Growing Out of Beach Controversy.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 18.—Major Barclay M. Warburton and six other officials of the town of Palm Beach were sued today for $100,000 damages for false arrest by Thomas E. Court, a workman employed by S. W. Straus of New York on the property recently bought by the latter from J. Leonard Replogle of New York.

Court was one of sixteen men who have been arrested by Palm Beach police on the Straus property within the last two weeks. Mr. Straus a few days ago brought suit against the same defendants for $100,000 damages for trespassing on his property, and Charles G. Duffy of New York, an engineer and builder, also brought suit against the officials for $100,000 damages for false arrest.

In a statement issued today, Mr. Straus declared that in his opinion the present litigation in the Florida courts is of vital importance to property owners generally, inasmuch as the legal status of property is involved.

"If it should so happen that we do not win in the present litigation, it would mean the establishment of a new precedent and a new legal point of view as to the rights of property owners," he declared.

"While in this case efforts are being made by the town of Palm Beach to prevent me from utilizing the property I recently purchased as a restricted bathing beach for guests of the Alba Hotel, the principle involved might be applied in real estate litigation anywhere in the United States, with such a decision as this one a precedent, it would be possible for municipalities through zoning ordinances to strip the property owner of many of his inherent rights in the use of his property."

In the litigation, the Straus interests have already won two important decisions. Judge C. E. Chillingworth, recently ordered the city of Palm Beach to cease molesting employes at work on the property.

The city then sought an order from the court to have all bathing paraphernalia removed from the bath. This order the court refused to grant. The court, it is expected, will render a decision before the week is over as to the validity of the zoning ordinance and its application to the property bought by Mr. Straus.

TRAFFIC RULES KILL SPIRIT OF BROADWAY

Under the proposal discussed yesterday northbound Seventh Avenue street cars would be routed through Thirty-fourth Street to Broadway, continuing north on that thoroughfare and joining Seventh Avenue again at Forty-fifth Street. Broadway cars westbound on Forty-second Street would turn north at Broadway, following the Seventh Avenue cars to Fifty-third Street, thence west to Broadway again, instead of traveling around the Times Building and continuing north as they now go.

Southbound Seventh Avenue cars would turn west at Fifty-third Street, continue to Broadway and follow that thoroughfare to Forty-fifth Street, where they would again join their own tracks and continue down Seventh Avenue. Southbound Broadway cars would follow the same route they now follow, turning east on Forty-second Street.

Sees No Opposition by Lines.

Dr. Harriss said he thought the surface lines would not oppose the rerouting of street cars, and that if objection were made to the expense of installing additional switches, private funds could be raised to finance such projects.

All restrictions against right and left turns for vehicles in the zone would be abolished. Patrons of restaurants and theatres traveling in automobiles would be able to reach any destination in the district without detouring. "It would be better for the merchants and everybody would be happy," Dr. Harriss said.

A suggestion made by W. W. Arnheim, a member of the association's traffic committee, would allow parking on one side of the crosstown streets in the theatre zone. The present regulations, Mr. Arnheim said, have made "race tracks" out of the side streets. At the same time, he said, the no-parking rules have created spaces that is unused.

The association, it was announced, will have traffic as its theme at a luncheon at the Hotel Astor late in March.

The board voted to request the Park Commissioner to remove the traffic monuments in the parkways along upper Broadway "because they serve no tangible purpose."

Hoyt Silent on Proposal.

Acting Police Commissioner Philip D. Hoyt declined to comment yesterday upon the stand taken by the directors on the traffic plan. "I prefer to wait until I have had an opportunity to study their recommendations, which have not yet reached the Police Department," he said. "They will be given careful consideration."

He announced that the regulation prohibiting left turns on Fifth Avenue at Forty-second and Thirty-fourth Streets, which has been tried for two weeks, would be permanent. "No complaints have been received," he said, "and the plan seems to have worked out admirably." He indicated that similar regulations might be put into effect at other busy points, but did not name them.

He said that he had no information as to when Commissioner Whalen would return from Florida.

STUTZ DENIES VENTURE.

Has Not Formed Company With Frank Bellanca, He Says.

Harry C. Stutz, motor car and engine designer, denied last night reports received here from Bridgeport, Conn., that he had joined with Frank Bellanca, a brother of G. M. Bellanca, the airplane designer and head of the Bellanca Aircraft Corporation, in the formation of a new company. According to the report, Mr. Stutz has designed a new air-cooled motor for airplanes, which he intended to build in Bridgeport for planes designed by Frank Bellanca.

"It is true that I am working on a motor," Mr. Stutz said, "but I am not joining in any company for its manufacture. The report concerning the Bridgeport company is not true as far as I am concerned."

GENERAL ELECTRIC
Refrigerator

I wonder how
I ever managed without it!

Every woman who owns a General Electric Refrigerator finds herself wondering how she ever got along without it. For she has found it so helpful, so economical, so complete a comfort in every way!

She likes its quietness. She likes the freedom from ice-worries. She likes particularly the automatic, hermetically sealed mechanism which absolutely takes care of itself . . . it never even needs to be oiled.

The new dishes which she can now prepare so easily form the backbone of more interesting and varied menus. Foods take on a fresher, fuller flavor now that they are thoroughly chilled. And trips to market have been cut from one every day to two or three a week! There is no wastage.

All in all, a General Electric Refrigerator is a fundamental necessity in the modern home. One which saves its cost in the many economies which it makes possible . . . which safeguards health. The constant dry cold—always below 50 degrees—keeps baby's milk safe and the family food perfectly fresh.

Any one of the many models can be bought with a small down payment. Conveniently spaced and easy installments are arranged for the balance—just a few dollars a month does it. Write for descriptive booklet.

Where Production and Distribution Costs are Lower

NO SET OF FIGURES EVER COMPILED

Auditors' reports indicate total circulation and its distribution. Charts and graphs demonstrate coverage and concentration. Line and milline rates give figures on cost.

But no set of figures ever compiled can prove the character of a newspaper—the responsiveness of its readers.

What does it mean to the advertiser that The Philadelphia Bulletin has twice the circulation of any other local evening paper?

Or that it nearly equals the combined circulation of all Philadelphia morning papers? Or that The Bulletin's rate is one of the lowest in America?

Is it the kind of circulation that the advertiser wants?

It depends upon the character of the newspaper; and character is revealed largely by its history.

In the Shopping District

Along Chestnut Street, from Sixth to Twenty-second Street, are located exclusive shops which cater to the wealth of Philadelphia and its suburbs. Of the 187 retailers in this section who advertised during 1928, 163 used The Bulletin. A record of eighty-seven per cent! Retailers place more individual advertisements in The Bulletin than in all Philadelphia, daily and Sunday, newspapers combined. The Bulletin also carries more local and national display lineage in six days than any other Philadelphia newspaper in seven.

In 1895, The Bulletin's publisher set out to make a fine newspaper. Seeking, not a quick growth, but a permanent one. A growth that would be rooted deep in the confidence,—in the respect and esteem of the Philadelphia Home.

A few thousand circulation then; more than half a million now,—without a premium, prize or circulation contest!

The history of those thirty-three years of growth proves how well The Bulletin sensed the type of newspaper that Philadelphia wanted.

Scarcely a home in Philadelphia and suburbs is without its daily copy of The Bulletin. At one cost, and a low cost, America's Third Market can be thoroughly covered with one newspaper.

LINDBERGH SPEAKS FOR ARMY AIR BILL

END OF DEADLOCK IN SIGHT

Flier Also Calls on MacCracken and Later Denies Rumor of Succeeding Aviation Secretary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh spent a busy day here today in conference with Army Air Service officers, William P. MacCracken, the Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, and officials of the Transcontinental Air Transport Corporation and then took off from Bolling Field this afternoon for New York.

Before he donned his flying togs at the field, Colonel Lindbergh, in a talk with newspaper men, reiterated his arguments before the Senate Military Affairs Committee in support of the Furlow bill, setting up a separate promotion list for the Army Air Corps.

"The Army Air Corps needs a separate promotion list and the Furlow bill, an emergency measure, in my opinion, ought to be passed before Congress adjourns," he declared.

Move to End Deadlock on Bill.

As if in answer to his statement, wheels were immediately set in motion to end the deadlock on the measure tomorrow. The House Military Affairs Committee is then expected to ask the House to instruct the House conferees to insist upon amendment of the pending bill, as rewritten by the Senate Military Affairs Committee, to conform to the provisions of the original Furlow bill, as passed by the House, and incorporate the provision for a separate air corps promotion list.

Colonel Lindbergh was up early after an evening of conferences with associates in the Transcontinental Air Transport Corporation, including Colonel Paul Henderson, vice president; Major Thomas G. Lamphier, operations manager, and Major C. C. Moseley.

First he went to the House Office Building to discuss the air corps promotion measure with Representative Allen J. Furlow of Rochester, Minn., its sponsor in the House.

Not Slated for MacCracken's Post.

He remained there an hour and then hurried to the Department of Commerce for a long talk with Assistant Secretary MacCracken, after which the aviator contradicted rumors that he was slated to succeed Mr. MacCracken when the latter retired after the inauguration of President-elect Hoover.

"There is absolutely no authority for that report, and please quote me correctly in that regard," Colonel Lindbergh declared.

Mr. MacCracken would not discuss another report that he planned to become associated with Colonel Lindbergh in the Transcontinental operations.

"I don't know what I am going to do and won't know until after I am out of office," he said.

Contrasts Army and Civil Flying Pay

To newspaper men he urged these reasons for passage of the Furlow bill:

"Military flying is far more hazardous than any other form of aviation, including commercial operation of air lines. For that reason, the officers the country needs to retain in its flying service should be included under a separate promotion measure.

"Furthermore, because of the situation which exists and which holds little hope for promotion of many of our present fliers to much higher ranks before their regular time for retirement, and because of the brisk bidding being made by commercial aeronautics for the services of these men at far greater salaries than they ever could expect in the army, Congress should make some move to retain the services of these men upon whom the government has spent great sums in training."

LETTER BY LINDBERGH SPEEDS AIR-MAIL BILL

House Passes Measure for Pan-American Lines—Senate Likely to Concur Today.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Acting under spur of an urgent letter from Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, who inaugurated the Miami-Panama air mail, Congress tomorrow is expected to complete enactment of legislation providing for extension of the United States air mail network to Central and South America and even to Alaska.

Under present conditions the air mail lines to the Canal Zone, Cuba and Porto Rico are paid for by the Postoffice only for the outbound flight. Whether the department had power to make payment for the return flight has been a moot question.

Colonel Lindbergh wrote to Representative Kelly, Republican, of Pennsylvania, author of the bill, after a conference with Mr. Kelly at the House Office Building, and Mr. Kelly read it from the floor before action was taken. The text of the flier's letter was as follows:

"After returning from the first air mail flight to the Panama Canal Zone, I am more than ever impressed with the fact that the commercial development of Central and South America can be greatly influenced by the establishment of air transport lines.

"Due to the slowness of the present means of travel and the expense and difficulties of railroad construction, it appears that the airplane affords the most feasible way of bringing modern transportation to isolated communities. The Central American republics which I passed through en route to the Canal Zone displayed an intense interest in the possibility of rapid communication with the United States and with each other, and were anxious to know when the facilities of air lines would be placed at their disposal for mail and for passengers.

"I believe that provision should be made for the transportation of mail from these countries back to the United States and for their inclusion in this service at the earliest possible moment."

SABELLI, PREVENTED FROM FLIGHT, SUES

Asks $250,000 From Bellanca for Seizure of Plane When Only $1,900 Was Due.

HAD PLANNED HOP TO ROME

But Craft Was Sold to Argentine Flier Who Is Preparing for Trip From Buenos Aires to Spain.

Lieutenant Cesare Sabelli, Italian aviator, and the North Oceanic Airways Corporation, which was interested with him in the purchase of the Bellanca plane Roma for a flight from New York to Rome, filed a $250,000 suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against the Bellanca Aircraft Corporation, its president, Giuseppi M. Bellanca and the latter's brother, Andrew, who is attorney for the company. The suit alleges breach of contract by the defendants in taking possession of the plane when $1,900 was still due on it, and preventing Sabelli from making the proposed flight, after which the plane is alleged to have been sold to Lieutenant Claudio Mejia, Argentine flier, for $70,000.

The complaint alleges that the first agreement between the parties was made on Aug. 12, 1927, for the sale of the plane at $53,000, and that on May 14, 1928, a new agreement was made by which the cost was fixed at $36,900. The plaintiffs say that by a modification of their agreement Sabelli was not required to compete in a sustained flight contest. The plane was delivered to the plaintiffs on May 22, 1928, it is said, under an agreement by which the balance was due in sixty days.

The plaintiffs say that the Bellancas induced Sabelli to sign a paper by representing that it was a receipt for the plane and an acknowledgment that $1,900 was still due, whereas it was a chattel mortgage.

The complaint says the defendants knew that Dr. Leon M. Piscelli of 235 Second Avenue had paid $12,000 for the privilege of being the sole passenger on the first flight to Rome, and that he had taken a chattel mortgage on the plane. Dr. Piscelli, it is alleged, sued the plaintiffs last October for the amount advanced and caused the Roma to be attached.

The complaint alleges the defendant gave notice on Jan. 9 that the Roma was to be sold because of the non-payment of the $1,900, for failure of the plaintiffs to keep it in repair, for Sabelli's failure to compete in a sustained flight contest, for violating their agreement in assigning the plane to Dr. Piscelli and for permitting it to be encumbered with a lien. The plaintiffs say they spent more than $150,000 preparing for the flight to Italy, and that this sum has been lost, while Sabelli's reputation as an aviator has been damaged, for all of which they demand $250,000.

Andrew Bellanca said yesterday that "there is nothing in the case" and that it would be defended along the lines of the charges made in the notice to the plaintiffs of the intention to sell the Roma.

LINDBERGH IS GREETED AT CURTISS FIELD

Flies From Washington to Talk Over New Air Tour to Coast—Silent on Betrothal.

Special to The New York Times.

CURTISS FIELD, L. I., Feb. 18.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh landed here this afternoon, 1 hour and 55 minutes after leaving Bolling Field, Washington. Three weeks ago today he took off from Miami, piloting a Pan American Airways, Inc., mail plane, inaugurating the international air mail service via Havana and Central America to Cristobal. He returned to Miami Feb. 13 and since then has been flying north, delayed by bad weather at Charleston and again at a Coast Guard station in North Carolina.

Since leaving New York for Miami less than a month ago, Colonel Lindbergh has flown more than 6,000 miles, and when he climbed down from the high cockpit of his Curtiss Falcon this afternoon he discussed plans for another long air journey, a trip over the route of the Transcontinental Air Transport to Los Angeles.

About 400 persons had gathered at Curtiss Field to wait for the flier early this afternoon. Colonel Lindbergh flew in low and landed at the east end of the field, where his plane was immediately surrounded. He waited until William Winston, manager of the Curtiss Flying Service, drove from the field office out to the plane before climbing down and then he immediately got into the car and drove to the office, where he changed from flying togs to street clothes. Then he submitted good naturedly to questions about his plans, answering some and ignoring others. Those he answered dealt with his contemplated Western trip.

Van Lear Black Reaches Marseilles.

MARSEILLES, France, Feb. 18 (AP).—Van Lear Black, Baltimore newspaper publisher, flew here today from Le Bourget field, outside Paris, in continuation of his flight to South Africa. He left Croydon, England, last week, but was delayed by adverse weather. Mr. Black said that his machine worked splendidly on the hop from Paris, and that the motor had been perfect. If conditions permit he will depart for Naples shortly before noon tomorrow.

$650 FOR INDIA AIR FLIGHT.

Rates for Passengers From London Greatly Exceed Steamship Charges.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Passengers on the new British seven-day air mail service from London to India, which starts on March 30, will pay $650 for a through passage, including accommodation at rest points, as against the $375 to $475 at present charged by the fast mail steamers between London and Bombay. But the quickest route by train and steamer takes just twice as long as that estimated for the air route.

Britain's agreement with Persia, it is announced today, permits only one British flight weekly across Persian territory, so as regards the mails there will be a definite limit, dictated by the load-carrying capacity of the airplane, which may be taken at about one ton.

The steamships are said to carry ten tons of mails to India weekly, so the air mails at present can relieve them of only one-tenth this weight.

The minimum surcharge on letters will be about 10 cents for a half ounce.

Already one enthusiast has notified the postoffice that he is sending 1,000 letters by the first air mail, obviously with a view to obtaining the first stamps as souvenirs.

The innovation of this British air-mail service is an advantage for lean passengers. They are allowed to carry luggage enough to bring their combined weight up to 100 kilograms [about 220 pounds]. Thus a heavyweight passenger, himself weighing 100 kilos, will have to pay excess for all his luggage.

No longer can Industry hope to serve the entire United States from any one point . . .

—however centrally located

TIME was when you could locate in the center of your market, and satisfy the demands of your trade easily. But that day has gone. Hand-to-mouth buying has broken America into a group of major markets, each of which must be served from its logical, strategic center.

The South is one of these markets,—and an important one. Its people are prosperous. Their buying power has trebled during the past ten years. Their standards of living have increased accordingly. And your opportunity for volume business is proportionately greater.

But . . . not at long range!

Those who have been outstandingly successful in selling the South will tell you that big volume began when Atlanta became their Southern headquarters. This is Distribution City to the South. From here the rich territory may be most quickly and most efficiently reached, by men and merchandise.

Fifteen main lines of eight great railroad systems radiate from here to the whole South. Goods are delivered more swiftly from here by road, by rail, by air. Merchants have learned that turnover is better on goods from Atlanta branches, because fill-in is quicker, and stocks can be kept at minimum. And branches pay accordingly.

The volume developed in the territory, the production economies found here, have encouraged manufacturers to establish branch plants in the Atlanta Industrial Area. Because labor is efficient, and raw materials available close by at low prices, production costs are lower here. Low taxes, low-cost power, ample water supply, building costs, climate—a host of factors contribute another big share to better profits. And these profits have built great plants out of small sales offices.

The facts as they apply to your specific problem will be gathered for you—without cost or obligation—by the Atlanta Industrial Bureau. In the strictest confidence this organization of experienced location specialists will check your requirements against the advantages here, and will frankly tell you whether or not you can make more money through an Atlanta location.

This service may mean thousands of dollars to your company in the next few years. Write:

FEDERAL OUTLAY SHOWS INCREASE

$2,407,710,136 for First Seven Months of Fiscal Year Exceeds Year Ago by $134,138,570.

BIG RISE FOR DEPARTMENTS

They Cost $12,694,000 More a Month Than in the Previous Similar Period.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—All government expenditures for the first seven months of the fiscal year 1929, from July 1, 1928, to Jan. 31, 1929, including those for running the departments, amounted to $2,407,710,136.27, as against $2,273,571,566.03 for the comparable months of the previous fiscal year.

This increase of $134,138,570.24 was disclosed today in a preliminary statement showing classified expenditures of the government, which was contained in the Treasury's daily statement for Feb. 15.

General expenditures for running the government departments averaged $12,694,000 more a month in these first seven months of the present fiscal year than in the same period of a year ago.

The figures also showed that all expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts, a classification which includes general expenditures of the department and in addition other items, among them sinking fund charges for debt reduction, interest on the public debt, the postal deficiency and tax refunds, averaged almost exactly $19,000,000 more a month.

The various departments felt the full effect of salary increases voted by Congress, and expenditures by the Treasury in connection with satisfaction of German war claims sharply increased the outlay by that department.

Decreases in Two Departments.

A general tendency toward an increase in the cost of running the departments, with the continued necessary expansion, was found, however, in the fact that all departments but two, the White House and Department of Justice, showed a more or less substantial increase for the period covered, and decreases in these two instances amounted to but a few hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The figures for the seven months of the fiscal years showed running expenditures by the departments in 1929 of $1,219,197,298.01, as against $1,130,315,211.98 in the same months of the fiscal year 1928, an increase of $88,882,086.03.

While the ratio of increase in total expenditures may not continue during the remaining five months of the fiscal year, which ends on June 30, it has been estimated that the final reckoning will show that expenditures have averaged at least $10,000,000 a month greater over the entire fiscal year.

Unexpectedly heavy tax refunds and appropriations for public buildings and flood relief voted by Congress have helped to swell the expenses of the government. Expansion of government work for aviation has proved another factor.

The fact that there had been a considerable increase in the cost of running the government had been taken into consideration, however, in making estimates as to the probability of a budget surplus at the end of the fiscal year.

It is believed that because of the expected high income taxes to be received, on the quarterly payment dates in March and June, as a result of the unusually prosperous year enjoyed by industry in 1928, there will be a margin which may run anywhere from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000.

Comparative Figures Given.

Conroy Gets Recount.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 18.—The Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections this evening decided to open all the ballot boxes in the Burkard-Conroy Senate district to determine who was elected. Conroy contests the seating of Burkard. This will involve the opening of 367 ballot boxes and the recount of 213,000 ballots.

CITIZENS UNION BACKS REVISED HOUSING BILL

Terms It a Compromise, but Commends 'Higher Standards' for Light and Ventilation.

Announcing its endorsement of the revised multiple dwellings bill in a letter to the chairman of the Senate and Assembly committees having the measure in charge, the Citizens Union yesterday commended the bill because, among other reasons, of "the higher standards set for light and ventilation." The Citizens Union supports the bill and urges its enactment because of its "provisions safeguarding residence districts from further encroachments by so-called 'apartment hotel.'"

The Citizens Union in its letter says that the bill has necessarily been a compromise, but that it nevertheless "represents a marked advance in housing regulation." The organization regrets that the advantages to be gained by the bill have been "coupled with or made conditional upon provisions allowing increased height and greater elasticity in interior design of buildings likely to lead to a somewhat greater density of population in areas where land values are high. Referring to population congestion likely to be caused, the Citizens Union says:

"Were it not for the fact that this is an ill which should be cured locally through more stringent zoning ordinances, the Citizens Union would look with great disfavor upon any legislation which seemed to encourage in the slightest degree further congestion."

The union suggests amendments to the revised bill with respect to minimum requirements for safety and sanitation in old law tenements and converted dwellings.

STOLE TO GO TO COLLEGE.

White Plains Youth Confesses the Theft of Ten Autos.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Feb. 18.—Elmer Spencer, 17-year-old messenger boy, who lives at 19 South Kensico Avenue, confessed today to having stolen ten automobiles and one bicycle in the past three months to get money to go to a college.

He was captured twenty minutes after he was alleged to have stolen an Oakland sedan from Court Street, near Martine Avenue. The owner discovered his loss almost immediately and he reported it to headquarters. An alarm was sent to all policemen on duty and Motorcycle Patrolman William Sullivan arrested the youth in Westchester Avenue.

At headquarters he signed a confession giving the dates and places of his thefts.

"I sold Isabella a share of America" . . . says Columbus, "but a suite in General Motors Building is an even better buy"

Columbus had difficulty selling Queen Isabella the idea of his trip to America—because he was selling futures and unknown quantities. Today, however, everybody recognizes the many advantages which caused General Motors Corporation to pick this towering, square-block building, overlooking Columbus Circle and Central Park, at Broadway and 57th Street, for their executive offices. The address of the General Motors Building on a letterhead carries a prestige based on a combined superiority of location and restricted tenantry, and prominent neighbors. 100% light, air, environment, service and transit facilities make General Motors Building an ideal location for any business, large or small.

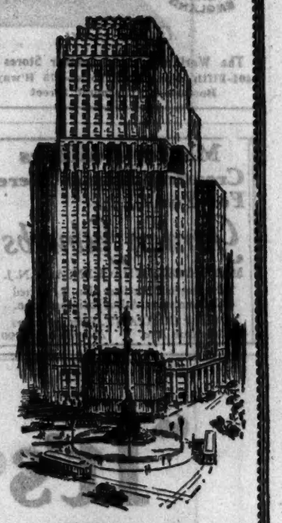
- that there are floods of daylight and pure air in every room.
- that buses, subways, (an entrance in the building) "L's" and street cars all stop here.
- that you can walk to and from work—if your office is here.
- that you can lease—at most reasonable rentals—units from 440 to 23,700 square feet.
- that it constitutes an internationally known address in a neighborhood, that from both natural and adjacent business standpoints, is unexcelled.
- that the tenantry includes such firms as General Motors Corporation Executive Offices; Chemical National Bank; Kelly Springfield Tires; some of the leading members of the N. Y. Stock Exchange and other prominent business and professional concerns—representing a total capitalization of more than two billions of dollars.



You are invited to discover the General Motors Building for yourself.

You Can't Use a Blind-fold Test for Picking Insurance Policies!

YOU cannot afford to buy insurance blindly. There is too much at stake when the emergency comes. In buying insurance, sound business judgment demands the "Eyes-Wide-Open" test, to be sure, first, that you get the best protection the insurance market offers, and second, that you pay the lowest cost at which such protection can be bought.

Central policies fit these demands. Their quality and safety are unquestioned and the Company has a reputation for prompt and satisfactory settlement of claims. With a dividend of 30%, paid now for eight years, Central delivers maximum protection at minimum cost.

NOTABLES ATTEND STONE'S FUNERAL

Wires of Associated Press Throughout World Silent at Start of Service Here.

FOSDICK PRAISES CAREER

Prays Successors Will Carry On Torch of Truth—Ashes to Rest In Washington for a Time.

"Solemnly impressive but simple funeral services, in which journalists the world over joined by observing a one-minute silence, were held in the Park Avenue Baptist Church yesterday afternoon for Melville E. Stone, the general manager of The Associated Press for more than twenty-five years.

As 2 P. M. struck in New York, marking the start of the funeral service, the 120,000 miles of Associated Press telegraph wires were momentarily silent. For the first time in its history the activities of the far-flung organization stopped after the message was flashed from here: "New York. Silence one minute for M. E. S." Throughout the world the men and women who work in the organization which grew under Mr. Stone's leadership stood in silent tribute to his memory. Similar tribute was paid by officials and employes of other news agencies in a dozen foreign countries.

400 at Church Service.

The Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick officiated at the brief ceremonies in the church, in which were gathered more than 400 friends and members of the family. In his prayer, Dr. Fosdick spoke of Mr. Stone's notable career and pleaded that into the hands of his successors be put "the shining sword of truth" that they might be made the "worthy successors of the great champion of the people who held truth to be a holy thing by which nations love and for which men should die."

As on previous days since Mr. Stone died on Friday night in his home at 120 East Seventy-fifth Street, tributes to his life work came pouring in to New York from various parts of the world.

It had been planned to have the burial in the family plot at Woodstock, Vt. Yesterday, however, Bishop James E. Freeman offered the right of sepulture for his ashes in the Washington Cathedral, the final resting place of Woodrow Wilson and Admiral Dewey. It was announced yesterday that the Stone family, realizing that so prominent a figure belonged to the nation as much as to his own kin, accepted Bishop Freeman's offer. The date of burial is to be decided by the family, the Bishop of Washington and Frank B. Noyes, the president of The Associated Press.

The services, which were attended by editors, diplomatic representatives, Associated Press employes and others, began with an organ prelude. After an opening prayer by Dr. Fosdick a male quartet sang "Lead, Kindly Light." Dr. Fosdick read passages from the Old and New Testaments, then read a special prayer. The hymn, "Abide With Me," sung by the quartet, followed and the service ended with the benediction and recessional.

Dr. Fosdick's Prayer.

Dr. Fosdick's prayer in part was:

"O God who art and wast and art to come, before whose face the generations rise and pass away, age after age the living seek Thee and find that of Thy faithfulness there is no end. Our fathers in their pilgrimage walked by Thy guidance and rested on Thy compassion: still to these children be Thou the cloud by day, the fire by night.

"For Thy servant whom Thou hast given to the world and now hast taken to Thyself, for his spacious influence, his dedicated ability, his memorable achievements, his high-minded character, we thank Thee. Here where death comes victory comes also, and our hearts are lifted up.

"We who see youth die in the springtime of their years, all their waiting blossoms spoiled and their promised fruit denied, praise Thee for this life fulfilled. Three score years and ten and, by reason of strength, four score years.

"We who see sorrow that is unclean, tainted by sin and laden with bitter memories, praise Thee for this sorrow, clean and beautiful, full of memorable usefulness, a sanctuary to which our reminiscent thoughts may turn with reverence.

"We who see death, endured without hope, thank Thee for the undiscouragable faith which this life inspires, that one who wrought so largely here will find other tasks awaiting him, that life is ever lord of death and love can never lose its own.

"For the great cause with which Thy servant's name is interwoven, for all who gather, interpret and dispense the news, we pray Thee, grant them boldness to turn the unwelcome light on those who love darkness because their deeds are evil. Put into their hands the shining sword of truth and make them worthy successors of the great champions of the people who held truth to be a holy thing by which nations love and for which men should die. Since the peoples may be saved by their courage or undone by their cowardice and silence, may they cast their mighty influence with the forces that make the people strong and free. And as this good soldier falls on sleep, raise up leaders to follow him, 'Elijah, mantle of Elisha cast.'

"Almighty God, the comfort of the companionless, let Thy light shine on those who most intimately mourn Thy servant's going. It is easy to go: it is hard to be left behind. As we on this hither shore bid farewell to the sail that loses itself over the rim of the world, may we hear echoes from that further shore where others cry 'Welcome!' and 'All hail!' while we say 'Farewell.'"

Chancel Banked With Flowers.

The chancel of the church was banked high with floral wreaths. By special instructions of Mr. Stone's daughter, Miss Elizabeth C. Stone, the flowers were distributed among various hospitals after the service. Below the chancel stood the black coffin, surmounted by more floral tributes.

Members of the family present included the widow, Mrs. Martha McFarland Stone, who was escorted by her brother-in-law, Ormond Stone, an astronomer, of Clifton Station, Va.; Miss Stone, two grandsons, Herbert Stuart Stone and Melville E. Stone 3d, and a granddaughter, Miss Mary Stone. Mr. Stone's two sons, Herbert Stuart and Melville Jr., died before the father.

The ushers were Colonel William Rand, James M. Pratt, Frank Ludlam and James Boyd. The pallbearers were men who had been connected with The Associated Press in all of its departments under Mr. Stone's leadership, most of them still being with the organization. They were J. R. Youatt, Joseph J. Jones, M. F. Moran, Arthur S. Thompson, Jackson S. Elliott, Frederick Roy Martin, Charles H. Boynton, Charles Stephenson Smith, W. J. McCambridge, Byron Price, F. A. Bates, a veteran telegrapher, and Major Robert McLean of The Philadelphia Bulletin, a director of The Associated Press, whose father was a director during Mr. Stone's leadership.

Oldest Employe at Rites.

Among those in attendance was William Riethle of 357 Fifty-sixth Street, Brooklyn, the oldest employe of The Associated Press, for whom the elections last Fall marked the start of his sixty-first year of service.

Others present were:

Robert Underwood Johnson, former Ambassador to Italy; Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of The Nation; Julian Mason, editor of The New York Evening Post; J. F. B. Livesay, general manager of The Canadian Press; Richard Hooker of The Springfield (Mass.) Republican, W. J. Pape of The Waterbury (Conn.) American, Ben Deacon, formerly manager of the New York bureau of The Canadian Press; K. Uchiyama, Acting Consul General of Japan; James Craig of The New York Sun, E. H. Butler and Lincoln Palmer, representing the American Newspapers Publishers Association; Victor Ridder of The Staats-Zeitung and Howard Davis of The New York Herald Tribune and Louis Wiley of THE NEW YORK TIMES, representing the New York City Publishers Association; Fred A. Walker, H. H. Charles, E. Alexander and S. S. Schuyler, representing the Advertising Club of New York; Roy W. Howard and W. W. Hawkins, representing The United Press; W. W. Davies of La Nacion of Buenos Aires, T. S. Dixon, representing Reuters, the British press association, and Rengo, The Associated Press of Japan; Robert Remy of Havas, the French press association; Kenneth Durant of Tass, the Russian press association; Dr. Moraski Nowench of the Polish telegraphic agency, Dr. John H. Finley of THE NEW YORK TIMES, Emil Klieseig of the Wolff Bureau of Berlin, the German press association; Charles W. Price, editor of The Electrical Age, and Bruno Huhn of Kane Lodge, F. and A. M., of which Mr. Stone was a member.

Lotos Club Representatives.

The Lotos Club was represented by the following members: James F. Allen, secretary; J. M. Davis, J. S. Stier, J. J. Hutchinson, J. H. Burnside, Captain A. Zeeder, Judge C. W. Dustin, Theodore Cross, James S. Hunter, Dr. A. Hawench Moravski, George McFarlane, Louis P. Dessar, C. B. Bodwell, August Franzen, E. C. Landgren, Judge W. S. Grey, Edward de Lima, Colonel Eugene Stephenson, B. L. Battle, Charles W. Price, W. A. Ulman, A. D. Lord, Wilson Hungate, F. Ducasse, I. A. Josephi, R. Kingsley, C. P. Nacross, C. M. Curry and H. L. Jones.

Members of the Century Club and others also were present. Kent Cooper, general manager of The Associated Press, being in Florida, was unable to attend, but Mrs. Cooper and Miss Jane Cooper were present. Frank B. Noyes, president of the organization, was prevented from attending by the illness of his wife, with whom he is in the South.

The foreign news agencies which joined in the one-minute silence in memory of Mr. Stone as reported by The Associated Press were: Rador, the Rumanian official news agency, with headquarters in Bucharest; the Bulgarian National Telegraphic Agency, Sofia; Wolff's Telegraph Agency, Berlin; the official Austrian news agency, Vienna; the Hungarian official news agency, Budapest; Avala, the official news agency of Yugoslavia, Belgrade; the Czechoslovak official news agency, Prague, and Reuters and affiliated news agencies in London.

Among those who voiced their tributes to Mr. Stone yesterday were Lord Riddell, the journalist, in London; Newcombe Carlton, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, who cabled from London; John McCormack, the tenor; C. A. Rook, a former director of The Associated Press; Frank D. Throop, publisher of The Davenport (Iowa) Democrat; the North Louisiana Press Association, Frank P. MacLennan of The Topeka State Journal, a director of The Associated Press, and Herbert S. Houston of New York, president of the Cosmos Newspaper Syndicate.

QUEEN MARIE EXTOLS STONE.

Says His Passing Is Distinct Loss to Entire World.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Feb. 18 (AP).—Queen Marie of Rumania paid the following tribute today to Mr. Stone:

"I am deeply moved to hear of the death of Melville Stone, whom I had the pleasure to meet personally. I admired him for his high journalistic and personal ideals and for his splendid work as head of The Associated Press. The passing of such a man is a distinct loss not only to his own country but the entire world."

Morrow Pays Tribute to Stone.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 18 (AP).—The American Embassy, the Mexican membership papers of The Associated Press, and all employes of the Mexico City bureau of the organization joined in the world-wide one-minute tribute to Melville E. Stone at 2 o'clock today. Ambassador Morrow said Mr. Stone was one of the greatest figures that journalism has produced.

SWEDEN HONORS FRASER.

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 18 (AP).—King Gustaf of Sweden has bestowed upon James E. Fraser of New York, American sculptor, the "Vasa" order with the rank of Knight.

Mr. Fraser designed the John Ericsson Memorial in Washington, which was unveiled in Potomac Park on May 29, 1926, by the Swedish Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf on his visit with the Crown Princess Louise to the United States.

James Earle Fraser, a member of the American Academy of Arts, was born Nov. 4, 1876, in Winona, Minn. His early work in sculpture attracted the attention of Augustus Saint-Gaudens, with whom he worked both in the United States and in Paris.

His notable work includes a portrait bust of Theodore Roosevelt, an Indian statue, "The End of the Trail," and the design of the "buffalo" five-cent piece.

CHARITIES TO SHARE $3,000,000 ESTATE

E. H. SMITH LEFT $1,484,141

Son of Late Railroad Man Gave All to Widow—J. M. Hare Property Appraised at $827,666.

Charities will eventually receive the bulk of the estate of Solomon Friedman, cotton merchant, according to the appraisal of his estate yesterday by Deputy Tax Commissioner Stephenson, fixing the gross value at $4,223,482 and the net at $3,300,287. The bulk of the estate consisted of securities valued at $4,111,898, and there was cash amounting to $63,918.

Mr. Friedman, who died Jan. 2, 1927, gave $40,000 in cash each to five sisters, one of whom also got a life interest in $80,000, and gave $50,000 outright to a brother, Arthur L. Friedman. The widow, Amelia G. Friedman of 8 East Eightieth Street, gets the income from $3,420,451 for life.

The will gave $25,000 outright and $750,000 after the death of the widow, to the Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews of which Mr. Friedman was treasurer, while the Hebrew Orphan Asylum got $5,000 outright and receives $50,000 upon the death of Mrs. Friedman, and a similar bequest goes to the Convalescent Home for Crippled Children. Mt. Sinai Hospital received $7,500 outright, while thirty other institutions received $2,500 or $5,000 outright and will get $5,000 each upon the death of the widow. The remainder of the principal of the trust fund is to go to Hebrew institutions to be named by the executors after the death of Mrs. Friedman.

E. H. Smith Left $1,484,141.

Emery H. Smith, son of the late Alfred H. Smith, president of the New York Central Railroad, left an estate appraised yesterday at $1,549,930 gross and $1,484,141 net. He owned securities valued at $1,118,713 and had $52,600 in notes and accounts and $64,695 in cash. Under a trust fund made by his father in 1922 for the benefit of his mother, Mrs. Maude Emery Smith, the income from $528,506 goes to the latter for life and upon her death it is disposed of under the terms of Emery H. Smith's will. He left his entire estate to his widow, Ann H. Smith, of 953 Fifth Avenue.

Mr. Smith, who died Jan. 28, 1927, owned only six shares of New York Central Railroad common stock, valued at $330, and his only bond holding in that system was $998 as the value of a Lake Shore & Michigan Southern bond. The largest holding was $494,900 of the First Liberty Loan. He also owned 5,000 shares of the Great Lakes Transit Company common, appraised at $140,000.

Hare Estate $827,666.

J. Montgomery Hare, retired insurance man, and member of the Produce Exchange, and father of Montgomery Hare, lawyer, left an estate appraised yesterday at $827,475 gross and $827,666 net, of which $720,276 was in securities. Mr. Hare who died last July 14 at the age of 86 years, gave the bulk of the estate to his daughter and four sons.

BALLYN PLEADS GUILTY OF SMUGGLING GEMS

William Ballyn, formerly chief steward of the Berengaria, who was indicted with five others on a charge of smuggling diamonds, pleaded guilty yesterday before Federal Judge Bondy. The plea bore out rumors that Ballyn would assist the government in the prosecution of his co-defendants.

The other defendants, all of whom pleaded not guilty, are John T. McIntyre, traffic policeman who was on duty at the Cunard pier; Morris Landau, a diamond merchant; his daughter, Frances; his son, Sidney, and Moses H. Levy, a wholesale jewelry dealer.

There are two indictments charging smuggling, conspiracy and transportation of the contraband. Sidney Landau is said to be in Southampton, England, the alleged headquarters of an international smuggling ring. A bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

Assistant United States Attorney Sylvester said that it was understood that Ballyn would testify for the government at the trial, which has been set for March 4.

CHICHIBU PRAISES LINCOLN

Japanese Heir Presumptive Addresses American Societies.

TOKIO, Feb. 18 (AP).—Quotations from Lincoln's best known utterances were sprinkled through an address by Prince Chichibu, heir presumptive to the Japanese throne, at a Lincoln dinner tonight of the American Association of Tokio and Yokohama.

This is the first occasion on which a Prince of the immediate Imperial family has attended a social function of an unofficial, entirely American organization.

The Prince, speaking in clear and unhalting English, referred to Abraham Lincoln "as your greatest citizen and statesman," and continued:

"Those immortal words, 'of the people, by the people and for the people,' bring afresh to my mind the need of encouraging direct communion between the people of our two countries."

The Prince referred to the "unfortunate and unstable condition of the East of today," which he said carried an appeal to American citizens "for still greater efforts in bringing about closer and more whole-hearted cooperation (with Japan) than ever before."

GRAND JURORS UPHOLD FOURTH OFFENDER LAW

Committee of County Association Protests to Baumes Against Move to Weaken or Repeal It.

Weakening or repealing the "Baumes fourth offender law" seems "somewhat in the nature of a travesty" to the executive committee of the Association of Grand Jurors of New York County, according to a letter to State Senator Caleb H. Baumes, chairman of the New York State Crime Commission, made public yesterday.

This view was taken by the association as a result of the approval of Assembly Bill 176, introduced by Assemblyman Jerome G. Ambro of Kings County by the committee on criminal courts, law and procedure of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York.

"Not only did this same committee approve this Baumes law when it was before the 1926 Legislature," the letter says, "but the original draft of the bill was made by a member of this same committee of the Bar Association which now expresses its disapproval of the Baumes fourth offender law.

"That punishment of itself is not a crime deterrent is an outworn platitude in many respects," the letter to Senator Baumes says. "Our prisons today, such as Sing Sing, serve more as institutions for segregating the anti-social than for penal servitude. Many of those who condemn the inhuman severity of long-term commitments are the first to poke fun at prison wardens for the comparatively easy living conditions and recreation afforded to prisoners, as in Sing Sing, which, after all, is the environment to which many 'lifers' are subjected under the Baumes law.

"Some of those who condemn the severity of the Baumes laws overlook the fundamental change which has taken place since the old idea of penal servitude has given place to the modern conception not to punish but to segregate criminals from society, and, as far as possible, hardened offenders from amateurs in crime.

ISMET SPEEDS DICTIONARY.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 18.—The Turkish dictionary printed in Latin characters must be completed immediately, according to Premier Ismet Pasha.

The Premier received delegations from various State departments and the University Commission yesterday, which have been compiling the dictionary in Angora.

The new dictionary, based entirely on the French larousse, must include all European and American technical and cultural expressions, says the Premier, and must especially purge the Turkish language of all Arabic-Persian expressions which now form two-thirds of the Turkish language.

Work on the new Latin character dictionary has recently lagged because of disputes among the Turkish pundits.

Lucky Strikes are made from the finest of fine tobaccos—the cream of the world's crop. Lucky Strikes alone are toasted because toasting is a secret process. 20,679 doctors definitely state that toasting removes impurities. Then, too, it adds to the flavor and prevents throat irritation. Therefore, without fear of contradiction, we can say truthfully

"No cigarette, regardless of price, is as good as Luckies whether manufactured by The American Tobacco Company or by any other company."

STATE AID TO INSANE EXPANDED IN YEAR

Construction Work to Amount of $21,277,866 Was Done, Says Commissioner Parsons.

NEW HOSPITALS STARTED

Expenditures Were $29,475,551 for 68,354 Insane, 9,124 Defectives and 1,890 Epileptics.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 18.—The State progressed rapidly last year in the care of its insane patients, mental defectives and epileptics, Dr. Frederick W. Parsons, Commissioner of Mental Hygiene, declared in his annual report submitted tonight to Governor Roosevelt and the Legislature.

"It was a year of marked expansion in the facilities necessary for the proper treatment of these classes," Dr. Parsons wrote in his report. "A year of growth in preventive effort and a year of advance in scientific study and research into many problems connected with psychiatric treatment of mental patients."

The total awards of contracts for new construction work and permanent improvements in the State institutions under Dr. Parsons's direction amounted to $21,277,866, as compared with $13,301,166 for the previous year. The awards were as follows: State hospital group, $16,618,772; State school group, $4,405,987, and Craig colony, $253,106.

Accomplishments of Year Listed.

Dr. Parsons listed the following as the outstanding accomplishments of the past year, so far as new construction is concerned:

A site was purchased for a new hospital on Long Island to relieve the overcrowding in institutions in the metropolitan area. The contracts for the first two units of this hospital were awarded in December. Each unit will accommodate 500 patients.

At the Creedmoor division of the Brooklyn State Hospital two new buildings affording accommodations for 800 patients were completed and occupied.

At Harlem Valley State Hospital at Wingdale, new buildings having a capacity of 664 were occupied by patients.

The Psychiatric Institute and hospital at the Medical Centre in New York City was virtually completed.

The new Veterans' Hospital at the Kings Park State Hospital was finished and was occupied by ex-service patients.

Considerable progress, Dr. Parsons said, was made on the new buildings which will constitute the first group of the Rockland State Hospital, and also on a group of buildings at the Wassaic State Hospital for Mental Defectives. Dr. Parsons said he hoped to see these units completed this year.

The total number of patients under treatment during the year, excluding transfers, in the fourteen civil State hospitals for the insane was 58,354; in the four State schools for mental defectives, 9,124, while Craig Colony, the single institution for epileptics, had 1,890 patients.

The complete total of expenditures for the department last year, including personal service, maintenance and operation, new construction and permanent improvements, was $29,475,551. The per capita cost of maintaining patients in the State hospitals, exclusive of housing, was $404.65; in the State schools, $336.50, and in Craig Colony, $978.70.

New methods, Dr. Parsons said, have been introduced in all the State hospitals for the treatment of general paralysis patients.

"The results have been very encouraging. Full remissions," Dr. Parsons added, "are being obtained in about 30 per cent of the cases treated and partial remissions in an additional 25 per cent. Formerly this disorder was almost uniformly fatal."

Occupational therapy, which has undergone remarkable development in the State hospitals in the last six years, has been established in the State School for Mental Defectives and also at Craig Colony, he stated. The training thus afforded to the lower grades of patients, Dr. Parsons said, assists them greatly in improving their habits and in making them of more service to themselves and to the institution.

LIGHT TENDERS SPY WHALE.

Atlantic City Crew Tells of 40-Foot Monster Sighted Near Buoy.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Feb. 18.—Captain John Marshall of the lighthouse tender Pine and a crew of four discovered a large whale at sea today when they started out to relight a gas buoy about a quarter of a mile off Absecon Inlet.

On reaching the buoy Captain Marshall, with two men, lowered a small boat and rowed to the buoy to repair the light. They had scarcely returned to the tender when the whale, at least fifteen feet across the head and more than forty feet long, they declared, reared itself out of the water alongside the buoy. Later the whale was sighted again nearer the shore. Captain Marshall believes the whale is in the habit of feeding off the mussels on the sides of the buoy.

SANITATION BUREAU URGED FOR THE CITY

PLAN PRAISED BY BERRY

Controller Says It Aims at Modern Scientific Methods—Question Agitated for 25 Years.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 18.—A bill sponsored by the New York City Administration and providing for the creation of a new department of sanitation, was introduced in the Legislature this evening by Senator Downing and Assemblyman Bloch, Democratic leaders. The new department would be headed by a commission composed of three members and it would take over supervision of sewer construction and sewage disposal in addition to all the functions at present exercised by the Street Cleaning Department.

The bill was brought to the capital by Controller Charles W. Berry, who has been closely identified with the work of drafting the measure, one of the most far-reaching New York City bills that has come before the Legislature since home rule became effective.

The proposed legislation would have the effect of centralizing in the City Hall, the Mayor appointing the sanitary commissioners, supervision of all these functions, which up to the present time have been largely under control of the several borough heads. The measure was referred to the cities committee in both branches of the Legislature.

Controller Berry, on his arrival at the capital, conferred over the bill with the legislative leaders of both parties. Senator Downing said he felt satisfied that there would be little of no objection to the proposal and that he felt assured it would pass.

"We must look this all over before we commit ourselves," said Senator Knight, floor leader of the Republican majority in the upper house.

Step Long Needed, Says Berry.

Before leaving for Albany yesterday with the bill for the creation of a Department of Sanitation in the city Controller Berry said that the legislation would be the first definite move by the city toward a scientific solution of its garbage, sewage disposal and street cleaning problems in twenty-five years of agitation. He commended Mayor Walker for his "determination to have work on these problems begun along modern lines during the present administration."

"Mayor Walker's bill will enable the city to apply modern methods to the disposal of its sewage, garbage and other waste products and will make up in some measure for the time lost in approaching the solution of these vexing sanitation problems from a scientific standpoint," Controller Berry said. "Mayor Walker has been keenly aware that definite action along the proposed lines was necessary, as the steadily increasing population of the city has kept the problem constantly before him.

"While the other members of the Board of Estimate have been in agreement that the city has too long delayed tackling this sanitation job along efficient lines, the greater share of the complaints about the present system have found their way to the Mayor's office.

"The legislation has been shaped largely by Mayor Walker. The members of the Board of Estimate, in common with all residents of our city, are hopeful that no time will be lost in placing it on the statute books. The garbage and sewage disposal situation in New York has passed the point of toleration and in some of its aspects is already regarded as a menace.

"The creation of the Department of Sanitation, headed by the Sanitary Commission, will at once, and for the first time in the city's history, place the responsibility for correcting this situation directly under one control, instead of having the jurisdiction shared by five different boroughs and any number of officials."

Cites Pollution of Beaches.

Controller Berry, recalling that the Legislature more than twenty-five ago passed a law creating the New York Bay Pollution Commission because of apprehension over the then sewage disposal problem, said that little or no progress had been made since in solving the problem and added that it was estimated that 1,000,000,000 gallons of sewage pours into the waters surrounding the city every day.

"The millions of our citizens who obtain their only relief from the heat of Summer by visiting the near-by beaches," he continued, "are finding it increasingly more difficult to locate a clean stretch of water. Our inefficient methods of disposing of garbage and refuse have been adding to the problems of the near-by beaches, not only around New York City but along the Summer resort coast of New Jersey. Garbage taken out to sea for disposal has been carried back by the tides, to make the beaches anything but inviting places to spend a holiday."

SLOVAKS EJECT 2 DEPUTIES

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Feb. 18.—The executive committee of the Slovak People's party, one of whose leaders, Professor Tuka, is in prison under charges of treason and espionage for Hungarian interests, met today at Rosenberg in Slovakia and unanimously expelled with ignominy the Deputies Juriga and Tomanek from the party.

Messrs. Juriga and Tomsnek alone of the party condemned Professor Tuka as a Magyarophile and as a traitor, to the indignation of Father Hlinka, the leader, and the remainder of the party, who still declare themselves solidly behind Professor Tuka until the Czechs bring more definite evidence of treachery against him.

The resolution states that the two Deputies, in attacking Professor Tuka, were actuated by "contemptible and dishonorable motives."

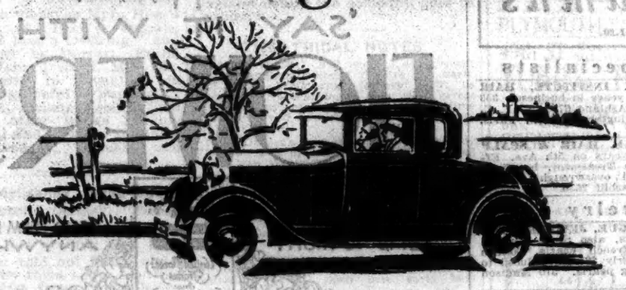
Fuel system of the new Ford has been designed for reliability and long service



THE practical value of Ford simplicity of design is especially apparent in the fuel system.

The gasoline tank is built integral with the cowl and is unusually sturdy because it is made of heavy sheet steel, terne plated to prevent rust or corrosion. An additional factor of strength is the fact that it is composed of only two pieces, instead of three or four, and is electrically welded—not soldered.

Because of the location of the tank, the entire flow of gasoline is an even, natural flow—following the natural law of gravity. This is the simplest and most direct way of supplying gasoline to the carburetor without variations in pressure. The gasoline feed pipe of the new Ford is only 18 inches long and is easily accessible all the way.

The gasoline passes from the tank to the carburetor through a filter or sediment bulb mounted on the steel dash which separates the gasoline tank from the engine.

The carburetor is specially designed and has been built to deliver many thousands of miles of good service. Since all adjustments are fixed except the needle valve and idler, there is practically nothing to get out of order.

The choke rod on the dash acts as a primer and also as a regulator of your gasoline mixture. The new hot-spot manifold insures complete vaporization of the gasoline before it enters the combustion chamber of the engine.

As a matter of fact, the fuel system of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires very little service attention.

The filter or sediment bulb should be cleaned at regular intervals and the carburetor screen removed and washed in gasoline. Occasionally the drain plug at the bottom of the carburetor should be removed and the carburetor drained for a few seconds.

Have your Ford dealer look after these little details for you when you have the car oiled and greased. A periodic checking-up costs little, but it has a great deal to do with long life and continuously good performance.

SEEK GIFTS TO BUILD RIVERSIDE CHURCH

Trustees, Planning Endowment Fund, Say Contributions Will Be Welcomed.

REPORT ON FINANCING

Gifts toward an endowment are asked for in connection with a statement made by the trustees of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, at Sixty-fourth Street, issued to the parishioners regarding the details of how the Riverside Church, at Riverside Drive and 122d Street is being financed. The pastor is the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick and the largest contributor is John D. Rockefeller Jr., a trustee.

The statement does not mention Mr. Rockefeller by name, but it is known that "one of our members" referred to is Mr. Rockefeller. He has given $1,500,000 toward the general building fund and he is in addition building the tower which will house the carillon now on the downtown church roof, which will have more bells.

Regarding how the funds are being provided the statement says:

"1. By the application of the proceeds of the sale of the present church property, $1,500,000.

"2. By a gift of similar amount from one of our members.

"3. By the erection and gift of a memorial tower and carillon as an important part of the new edifice, thus transferring the memorial feature from the Park Avenue building to the new building.

"4—By the gift of specified memorial objects in the new church of which many are still available for donors.

"5—Any further amount needed to complete the new building enterprise has been guaranteed by a small group of our members with the understanding that an opportunity would be given the membership of the church and congregation to share in the cost to the extent of their ability and desire to do so."

"Both for our older members who desire to have a larger part in the new enterprise and for our new members who naturally wish to be represented financially in the edifice now under construction, the opportunity is open to help provide the balance over and above the amount already on hand," the statement goes on. "While, as stated, this balance has been guaranteed by a small group, it was done with the understanding that the ultimate liability of the guarantors would be materially reduced by new gifts. The amount required will doubtless run into some hundreds of thousands of dollars. Contributions small and large will, therefore, be welcome."

LITTLE THEATRE OPERA GIVES TWO REVIVALS

Brilliant Audience Hears Bizet's 'Djamileh' and Bach's 'Phoebus and Pan.'

A brilliant audience witnessed last night at the Heckscher Theatre two interesting revivals by the Little Theatre Opera Company. They were Bizet's one-act Oriental opera, "Djamileh," first produced in Paris in 1872 and rarely heard in this country, and "Phoebus and Pan," Bach's secular cantata, or "comic opera," as it was billed last night, which, so far as the management has been able to learn from a search of musical records, never had been performed in this country with costume and scenic accessories.

"Djamileh" was the third operatic effort of the composer of "Carmen," following "The Pearl Fishers" and "La Jolie Fille de Perth." While it is still in the répertories of European opera houses, notably in Germany, it remained virtually unknown in this country after its New Orleans production fifty years ago until its production at the Boston opera in 1913. The scene of the original is laid in Cairo, though, for the sake of added color and picturesque scenery and costume, the local company chose to transfer the action to India. The somewhat ingenuous and naïve story relating the efforts of the beautiful slave-girl, Djamileh, to hold the affections of the fickle Haroun, her lord and master, is effectively set to music of a simple type, almost in the vein of operetta. There are melodious arias, duets and an occasional choral passage of ingratiating charm, but there is little to suggest the pungent brilliancy and orchestral color of "Carmen" and some of the other later works of the composer.

The performance had the freshness and engaging quality in accord with the best traditions of the amateur spirit. The settings and lighting were effective and the singing of the young artists showed the results of careful rehearsal. The members of the cast included Katherine Akins, who made her début in the heroine's rôle; William Hain, appearing as Haroun; Richard Hochfelder, effective in a comedy rôle, and Arnold Spector, a slave merchant. Sri Ragini, the Oriental dancer, also contributed to the success of the performance.

"The Contest of Phoebus and Pan," to give the full title of Bach's cantata, gave opportunity for effective stage pictures, some spirited and amusing action by Pan and his sylvan devotees, and stately posturing in the classic manner by the other protagonists and the chorus.

Phoebus and Pan, according to the libretto supplied by Picander, dispute over their respective abilities in music, each giving characteristic samples of their art, the former in the forty vein of the church cantatas, and the latter in a lusty song, pointed and enlivened with fine bits of whimsically humorous orchestration. Each has his champion, Pan the clownish Midas, regarded as a caricature of one Schiebe, who had written disparaging remarks about Bach, while Phoebus is favored by Momus, the god of mirth. The work, an allegory dealing with the musical situation of Bach's own day, follows in general the usual form of his more serious compositions.

The singers showed a commendable effort to maintain the classic and stately line in singing and action. They included Helen Ardelle as Momus, Marcia Merrill as Mercurius, Terry Horne as Tmolus, Hall Clovis as Midas, Evan Evans as Phoebus and Wells Clary as Pan. Miss Clytie Hine, a member of Sir Thomas Beecham's opera company, which produced the work at Covent Garden a dozen years ago, was the stage director.

Mme. Sembrich, Emma Eames Story, Anna Schoen-René and Yvonne de Treville were among the singers and other musicians present who congratulated the producers and the artists on the stage after the performance.

'FLIGHT' SOARS INTO NEW FIELD OF THOUGHT

FLIGHT, a comedy in three acts, by Susan Meriwether and Victor Victor. Staged by Lemist Esler; settings by Livingston Platt; produced by Laura D. Wilck. At the Longacre Theatre.

Mrs. Camillis Bradford	Marion Lee
Arthur Larrimore	George MacQuarrie
Margaret Larrimore	Eleanor Woodruff
Cynthia Larrimore	Miriam Hopkins
Terry Hamilton	John D. Seymour
Stephen Fairbank	Ernest Glendinning
Virginia Watson	Pauline Drake
Patricia Delevan	Joan Blair
Richard Scofield	Henry Wadsworth
Frederika Jordan	Gertrude Bryan
John Hill	Donald Dilaway
Gates	Henry Vincent

The new play at the Longacre represents an attempt to wash up, once and for all, this question of the younger generation. The name of it is "Flight," and the implication is that the title is not to be taken with complete literalness. For, although the hero is an aviator, it is with a flight into new fields of thought and action that the new play primarily deals. Deals, to be sure, not with absolute conviction, for the authors let their courage ooze away from them at the finish.

The authors in question are Victor Victor, a newspaper man who came out of the South some years ago to collaborate on a single play with Samuel Shipman, and a young woman—one assumes her youth from the nature of the play—named Susan Meriwether. Between them they have written a play about a daughter of modern parents, a young woman who took love as she found it and had the courage of her convictions.

Most of the play's freshness of thought is contained in the first act, which is devoted largely to the setting forth of the girl's character. A girl who has developed frankness to a point where she can discuss with one suitor the prospect of attracting another—this, unless this observer has missed too many of the recent plays—is at least a new theatrical figure.

From there on, however, the play traces a more conventional course. That she should be successful in her conquest of the newcomer, that through him she should know true love for the first time, that she should then be faced with the ordeal of unmasking herself before him—all this has the ring of familiarity. Needless to add that he goes away, sore at heart; sad to relate that eventually he forgives all. Surely a more honest ending would have better pointed the authors' argument, made of the girl a braver champion of the generations that are presumably to come.

For all that, however, it is a far better play than strays into the average playhouse these nights, and has the advantage of a sensitive and moving performance by Miriam Hopkins. Several pretty good players are involved, as a matter of fact—notably Ernest Glendinning, who plays one of those friends of the family in straightforward and convincing fashion. There are also Donald Dillaway and John D. Seymour, who turn in good performances in the rôles of the lovers; Gertrude Bryan, in a brief rôle not too skillfully welded into the play, and Eleanor Woodruff, who brings grace and authority to the rôle of the girl's mother.

GILBERT MILLER'S PLANS.

He Will Produce New Version of "Berkeley Square" in London.

Gilbert Miller, theatrical producer, will return from a four months' visit abroad on the Aquitania on March 19. Prior to his departure from London, he will sponsor on March 11 a revised version of "Berkeley Square," with Leslie Howard and Jean Forbes-Robertson in the principal rôles. The play, the work of John L. Balderston, has already been produced in London. Following its engagement there, "Berkeley Square" is scheduled to open in New York at Henry Miller's Theatre next October. In accordance with Mr. Miller's new producing scheme, the production as well as the company will be brought here.

It is possible that Mr. Miller will also present a play entitled "A Hundred Years Old," from the Spanish of the Quintero brothers. It has been translated by Helen and Harley Granville Barker and is current at the Lyric Theatre in Hammersmith. Otis Skinner recently saw the Quintero play and negotiations are under way for his appearance in it.

OLIVER MOROSCO TO WED.

Theatrical Producer to Marry Miss Helen McRuer, Actress.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 18.—The engagement of Miss Helen McRuer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald McRuer of Phoenix, Ariz., to Oliver Morosco, theatrical producer of San Francisco, New York and Los Angeles, was formally announced at a supper given by Mr. Morosco to a small group at midnight tonight in his studio here.

Miss McRuer, 26, is a graduate of the University of Arizona. Under Morosco management she has played the chief rôles in "The Unchastened Woman" and "Craig's Wife." She is at present his private secretary.

Mr. Morosco seldom uses his family name of Mitchell. In 1922, a few days after Mrs. Anna T. Mitchell divorced him in Detroit, he married Miss Selma Paley in Los Angeles. Mrs. Selma Mitchell divorced him in Los Angeles last year. Morosco said that the date of his wedding to Miss McRuer has not been fixed but that they would be married later in the year at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York.

TOLSTOI PLAY AT PRINCETON

Theatre Intime's Production of 'Tsar Fyodor' Enthusiastically Received.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 18.—"Tsar Fyodor," a play by Count Tolstoi, was presented here tonight before a crowded house by the Princeton Theatre Intime. It was the first showing of the play in English. The cast included twenty-seven Princeton undergraduates and three women.

This is the most ambitious play ever attempted by the student dramatic organization. It was received with great enthusiasm by the audience, made up mostly of Princeton professors and students.

Evreinoff Windust of New York City, president of the Theatre Intime, acted the leading rôle of Tsar Fyodor.

The difficult Russian settings and lighting effects were designed by undergraduates. This play will be produced every night this week.

Enough jokes, enough comic scuffings, enough girls, enough noise and "Pleasure Bound" has burst into the Majestic, where it kept an audience laughing continuously last evening. It is a rough-and-ready revue, with some unobjectionable traces of musical comedy and a good deal of thumping burlesque tricked out in the evening clothes appropriate to a smart Chanin theatre. For here is Phil Baker with his concertina, broad smile and library of jokes; Jack Pearl, painfully regurgitating a language that sounds faintly like English; the rustic Shaw and Lee in oversize derbies and nothing intellectual by way of humor—and the usual appurtenances of anatomical entertainment. It is Phil Baker's satellite in the upper right-hand box who complains that he is leg-weary, not from standing but from looking at the stage. His complaint appeared to be unique last evening. The dancing ladies, who interpret their classical art as brisk high-stepping, are never absent for long, and now and then display stunning visual effects.

What with Jack Pearl and Shaw and Lee, the humor is physical enough to include falls, displaced parts of the body, whacks on the derby (turning a Stetson into a Knox, as they say), tangled hands and arms, and the customary kick in the pants which is the hallmark of sound entertainment. And what makes Phil Baker, with his new comrade, John Humphrey Muldowney, better than usual is obviously their shouting. They take their humor at the top of their lungs. Perhaps there is nothing vastly humorous in such plays on words as "Dill's piccolos," "cornette on the cob" and "stewed flute," but when they are shouted you are in no position to be fussy. Nor can you object at the other extremity when Shaw and Lee talk about "trading in their ethics for a Chrysler" in a weak, timid vocal key. With such shows everything depends upon the slapstick style, "Pleasure Bound" does not look a gag-horse in the mouth.

It is Jack Pearl's good fortune to be successively a designer of women's clothes, an orchestra leader and a night-club waiter. Once, indeed, the author makes a sentimental hero of him and bids you sob over his heart of gold. But that is almost impossible. For Pearl's gutteral German style of burlesque, which has almost vanished from the legitimate stage, his excitability and the troubles he has in making himself understood are the stuff of low comedy and laughter. More than ever his bewildered struggles, which keep the tails of his coat streaming and flapping in the breeze, are furiously amusing.

There is music, and a jazz orchestra that tumps and blares wholeheartedly. And, although "Pleasure Bound" lays no claim to musical distinction, some of the tunes are warm and colorful, as the number in which Pepita dances tip-toe across a line of hand-boxes and her "Spanish Fado" bit. Aileen Stanley sings two or three bits of doggerel with more charm than the banality of her material warrants. Frank Velox and Yolanda interpolate one of those centrifugal dances that spin the feminine heels in the air.

No doubt the lyrics, written by the brothers Lief and Harold Atteridge, are very good. But bedlamite entertainment and comedy which is somewhat less subtle than a wrestling match, make you impervious to fine points of the creative genius.

M. CHEVALIER APPEARS.

French Revue Artist Displays His High Talents in Midnight Frolic.

The midnight-to-morn entertainment provided at Mr. Ziegfeld's New Amsterdam Roof by Helen Morgan, the Duncan Sisters and Paul Whiteman's bandsmen, among others, was supplemented early this morning by the appearance of Maurice Chevalier, reigning favorite of French music halls and revues. M. Chevalier has just been released from bondage in the cinema of Hollywood, and his engagement last night was his first on a stage in this country. His fashionable audience gave him an enthusiastic reception, pounding plates with the little wooden hammers they provide at the Midnight Frolic, in his honor.

Chevalier, blessed with a most ingratiating personality and a pantomimic gift that translates every number, no matter the language in which he elects to sing, delivered five songs on his initial appearance. The first was the French answer to that banana ditty which was so popular here five or six years ago—something about there being also an abundance of pineapples. Then he did an American song, "It's a Habit of Mine," after which he went into a Parisian favorite, the pathetic ballad about the elephant who goes to the city to make good and the faithful wife he leaves behind. Another in English followed, and then came "Valentine," the song over which returned travelers have waxed ecstatic for several seasons. He closed by impersonating various types of his countrymen—and one type that is international—singing "Valentine."

Chevalier's personality and his high talents as an entertainer would undoubtedly make him a valuable asset to any revue over here. Many of the first audience had, it is reasonable to suppose, seen him in Paris, and that they liked him so well was as much a tribute to his abilities as it was an obeisance to the fact that it seemed so eminently the correct thing to do.

Roland Young in "The Little Show."

Roland Young, who last appeared here a season ago in "The Queen's Husband," is the first player to be announced for "The Little Show," the revue which will presently be brought forth by Tom Weatherly and the Messrs. Brady and Wiman. The show, which is announced as a sophisticated revue, will be shown here the middle of April.

'KIBITZER' PROVES ENJOYABLE COMEDY

Handicapped just a little by the fact that it is billed as a "karakter komedy," the new play in which Edward G. Robinson is on exhibition, proves, by virtue of his presence, to be an enjoyable piece of theatre. It is all about kibitzers, who provide the title, and those gentlemen have been described often enough of late to make any definition unnecessary here. This kibitzer is of a particularly virulent type—one of vision—and it is his exploits in the world of fairly high and certainly frenzied finance that make up the comedy.

Standing upon the sidelines of life as a critic and commentator is Lazarus, proprietor of an Amsterdam Avenue cigar store. He tells the loiterers around his establishment how to play their pinochle hands; he gives tips on the races, which he never plays, and, above all, on the stock market. When he learns that the son of Livingston, the big Wall Street operator, plans to elope with his daughter, he cannot bear to keep the news a secret, although she begs him to do so. A society wedding in a big church, with a picture of him in a silk hat in all the papers—it is too much for him to contemplate and it cannot take place if there is an elopement.

Lazarus accordingly goes to Livingston with the news, only to learn that the supposed son is an embezzling secretary and scoundrel generally. But it does fall to the lot of the kibitzer to save the life of the Wall Street man, when the crook pulls a gun.

As his reward, the cigar store proprietor is taken into partnership with Livingston for a flyer into American Steel. The remainder of the play tells of his adventures in the stock market, of his taking the whole neighborhood into his operations, the the butcher, the baker and the candlestick-maker each buying a part of his share; of his supposed loss of the money and his eventual achievement of a fortune through the adventatious interference of his half-wit brother.

It is, as may be surmised from this summary, a mechanical, highly colored comedy which at times is more than a little preposterous. But it is also infectiously good natured, and, as the adjective goes, human, with a fair share of amusing lines and situations. As laugh provoking merchandise it was esteamed by the first audience.

The play is almost entirely Mr. Robinson and his performance. The portrayal of the kibitzer by this actor of thaish and variety is full length, revealing him in nearly all his moods and aspects. So credible an impersonation is it that you often wish that the play were a little more believable and less in the rags-to-riches pattern of the theatre. For Mr. Robinson it constitutes a minor sort of triumph, another scalp added to his list of histrionic achievements.

The many others in the cast are good enough or better than that. There were those last night who thought that Jeanne Greene's performance as the daughter was in what has lately come to be known as the Claudette Colbert manner, but whatever it was, it more than sufficed.

DR. H. EMERSON IN GREECE

Will Study and Report on Health Conditions There.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Feb. 18.—Dr. Haven Emerson of New York, expert on public health, who, at the request of the Greek Government is to investigate health conditions in Greece and recommend remedial action, arrived today and visited Premier Venizelos. The newspapers attach the greatest importance to his mission. His first task will be to study conditions in Athens itself.

Officials of the League of Nations have already begun an inquiry into the situation in the provinces, particularly the question of swamp fever and the housing and feeding of the people.

WILL APPEAL TO BANDITS.

Nicaraguan Commission Off to Pacify Northern Section.

By Tropical Radio to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANAGUA, Feb. 18.—The commission to assist in the pacification of the northern departments of Nicaragua left for Ocotal this morning in two marine Fokkers. The commission consists of Dr. Bernardo Sotomayor, Cabinet Minister; Carlos W. Morales, president of the Supreme Court; Bishop Ettwo of Leon and priests besides a clerical staff.

President Moncads appropriated $50,000 recently for pacification. The bandits will be requested to lay down their arms and return to peaceful pursuits. Small planters who have lost their all will be assisted financially.

TUNNEYS TO REVISIT ROME.

They Will Spend a Week at Hotel Where They Wed.

ROME, Feb. 18 (AP).—Mr. and Mrs. Gene Tunney are returning to Rome from the Riviera for a week's stay at the Hotel Russie, where they were married in October.

They have been at Cannes, France, to escape the cold wave. They were expected here today by Dr. John Oliver La Gorce, author and editor, of Scranton, Pa., and Mrs. La Gorce, with whom they spent some time at Cannes.

"Sun-Up" Revived for Week's Run.

Lucille La Verne last night again revived "Sun-Up" at her theatre in Thirty-ninth Street. The play, which has served Miss La Verne in various quarters of the world for most of the last six years, is scheduled this time for only a week's revival, and a new production is promised shortly afterward. Those appearing in the current presentation are Grace La Verne, Carl Young, Stephen Draper, James Orr Bryan, Charles MacDonald and G. O. Taylor.

FRED STONE PLAYING GOLF.

Lays Crutches Aside for Good—Makes Fine Score on Links.

SEBRING, Fla., Feb. 18 (AP).—Fred Stone has laid aside his crutches and gone back to golf clubs.

This news about the famous comedian, who was injured in an airplane accident about a year ago, was given out today by Rex Beach, the novelist, at whose home here Stone is a guest.

Mr. Beach said that Mr. Stone played in a threesome yesterday with him and George B. Smith, local professional, and that the comedian's nine-hole score would "make a well man envious."

"His crutches are permanently laid aside," Mr. Beach said.

Miscella

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

Beethoven Association.

Beethoven of the piano trio in D major, Op. 70, No. 1; Schumann as the composer of beautiful and imperishable songs and Fauré of the piano quartet in C minor were the composers who figured on the program of the Beethoven Association last night in Town Hall. The artists who participated were Katherine Bacon, pianist; Evsei Beloussoff, 'cellist; Egon Kornstein, violist; Hulda Lashanska, soprano; Tascha Seidel, violinist, and Frank La Forge, accompanist.

The Beethoven trio was played by Miss Bacon, Mr. Seidel and Mr. Beloussoff; the Schumann songs were "Intermezzo," "Röselein, Röselein," "Frühlingsnacht," "Stille Thranen" and "Er Ist's," sung by Mme. Lashanska. In the performance of the Fauré quartet Mr. Kornstein added the viola part to the trio of artists already mentioned.

The Beethoven trio is conspicuous for the shadowy and romantic slow movement, which was played with genuine sentiment and musicianship, with good tone quality, especially in the strings; although the performance as a whole was conscientious rather than inspired. Mme. Lashanska has been justly praised for her knowledge of style and the fine feeling with which she interprets song, especially the song compositions of certain German composers. She was at her best last night in those passages which called for a sustained melodic line and poetic treatment of text. True, her tone has been rounder and more lustrous, and she has sung with more ease and security in the treatment of difficult technical passages. The musicianship and feeling of her interpretations were warmly applauded. Fauré's quartet, which never loses its fantasy and its romantic fragrance was well chosen as the conclusion of the program.

SERGEI BARSUKOFF PLAYS.

Pianist Gives His Own "Poeme Sombre" at Applauded Recital.

Sergei Barsukoff, pianist and composer, introduced his own "Poème Sombre" among works of his countrymen, Prokofieff and Scriabin, before an enthusiastic audience at the Town Hall yesterday afternoon. Bach and Brahms shared an opening group with Weber's "Invitation to the Dance" in Tausig's arrangement, while the closing Chopin "Grande Polonaise," Liszt's transcription of a Chopin song and the Strauss-Godowsky's "Artist's Life" waltz drew many hearers to the platform edge applauding for more.

Mr. Barsukoff, a former teacher in Kiev and first heard here with Nina Koshetz after memorable struggles as a Russian refugee, gave a spirited performance of some oddly assorted music, in which the Slavic and tragic set off what was by contrast brilliant and gay. His "Poème Sombre" was applauded and he encored a Scriabin march after three recalls.

AILSA MacCOLL'S RECITAL.

nerican Pianist Makes Local Debut After Playing in London.

Ailsa Craig McColl, an American anist who has hitherto studied and layed in London, gave her first lo- al recital last evening in Steinway Hall. A fresh note of current Eng- ish art from her own training ap- eared in such music as Myra Hess's rrangement of Bach's chorale, "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," and in later pieces by Barratt, Frank Bridge and John Ireland. Miss Mc- Coll was heard to advantage in Schumann's graceful "Papillons." Her program included some final Chopin and other works ranging from Rameau and Galuppi to Rach- maninoff, Arensky, Debussy and Grovlez.

"Pelleas et Melisande" Sung Again.

Debussy's exotic fantasy, "Pelleas et Melisande" was repeated at the Metropolitan last evening to a fash- ionable house sold out below stairs and sufficiently filled above to evince popular interest from the galleries. Bori, Bourskaya and Dalossy, John- son, Whitehill, Rothier and Ananian reappeared and Hasselmans con- ducted.

MUSIC NOTES.

Manuel Millet, Spanish baritone, announced in a Carnegie Hall recital last night, was unable to appear. The announcement at the doors caused some confusion among a crowd in which were many of the singer's compatriots.

Raimundo De Macedo, a Portuguese pian- ist and former pupil of Nikisch and Pach- mann, is to give an all-Liszt program on Saturday night of this week at the Club Vasco da Gama, 47 West Seventy-sixth Street.

Ramon Rodriques, tenor, and Gloria Adele, soprano, are announced in a concert Thurs- day evening at Beulah Wesleyan Methodist Church, 231 West 136th Street.

'JONNY SPIELT AUF' AT REHEARSAL ALSO

Astonishment at the Metropolitan When Herr Bohnen, Baritone, Plays Conductor for a Spell.

While the orchestra of the Metro- politan waited yesterday for a re- hearsal of next Saturday's "Frei- schuetz" revival, with the opera's stars in plain clothes standing im- patiently about the stage, one of the troupe suddenly stepped out into the orchestra pit, rapped for attention from the conductor's chair and pro- ceeded to conduct Weber's famous overture.

It was a musical "stunt" un- paralleled in the memory of the oldest artist or opera house attaché. Scrub- women, who were about to tidy up the house for the evening's audience, rubbed their eyes in surprise. So did the Misses Mueller and Fleischer, and likewise Laubenthal, Wolfe, Ro- thier and other dignified personages, startled for the moment out of hum- ming their arias and conning their lines.

Michael Bohnen, who plays the devil's huntsman with the silver bul- lets in Weber's piece, as he also has recently played the black hero of "Jonny Spielt Auf," was the im- promptu conductor. The orchestra responded, the idle stage folk sprang to action, as excitedly as the crowd in the recent "Jazz" opera novelty wherein "all the world" is supposed to dance the Charleston to Bohnen's baton.

Artur Bodansky, hearing the com- motion, dashed into the theatre to see what was the matter. When he heard the concluding measures of the overture in classic tempo and saw the mischievously smiling bari- tone in Bodansky's own place, he too joined the hundred or more artists on both sides of the foot- lights in a round of applause mingled with shouts of "Bohnen is stepping out."

The serious-minded conductor shook hands with his unexpected substitute and, without turning back a page, remarked to his musicians, "the rehearsal will go on from this point."

Mr. Bohnen, warmed with his un- usual arm calisthenics, went back to his singing rôle with the last word as he retorted "Bodanzky spielt auf."

SYLVIA GRAZZINI IN DEBUT.

Sylvia Grazzini, soprano, sang a début recital last night, for which the Provincetown Playhouse was thronged with neighbors south of Washington Square, while late ar- rivals crushed through a lobby full of flowers. The young singer was assisted by Walter Bernard Creigh- ton as pianist. Wilfred A. Kay played the flute for Benedict's "Car- nival of Venice," Bishop's "Lo, Hear the Gentle Lark," and other colora- tura arias. Miss Grazzini, in addi- tion to German lieder, sang also some opening English songs with light, flexible voice and clear diction.

"GHOSTS" AT JOLSON'S.

Alexander Moissi to Give Four Addi- tional Performances.

Alexander Moissi's performance of "Ghosts," which attracted large au- diences when the actor recently ap- peared at the Forrest Theatre, will be revealed on a few additional oc- casions before the German company returns to Europe. There will be four performances at Jolson's Theatre, scheduled for next Sunday night and the following three afternoons.

Moissi and his company will sail Friday of next week on the Aqui- tania. There will be a brief stop in England before the company goes to Germany.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Hedda Gabler" will end its engagement at the Forty-ninth Street Theatre this week, and "The Whispering Gallery" will be transferred to that house from the Forrest next Monday night. At the same time "Zeppelin" will be moved from the National to the Forrest.

Ruth Draper's engagement at the Comedy Theatre, it is announced, will be continued "well into March."

Beginning this week, the Carroll-Goys- Sunda Sunday night entertainments will take place at the Shubert Theatre instead of the Masque.

"Jonesy," by Anne Morrison and John Peter Toohey, opened last night in Atlantic City.

"Scars," which was recently withdrawn for revision after a tryout, is again in re- hearsal. It will open here early next month.

Edgar Wallace's play, "The Ringer," which was announced for production here several seasons ago, has been acquired by E. E. Clive for his Boston stock company, and will probably be brought to New York after a Boston run. Mr. Clive followed a similar policy with "The Whispering Gal- lery."

The Lenox Hill Players will open another play at the Cherry Lane Theatre the middle of next month. In the meantime the house has been rented by the Players' Cooperative for a single week, beginning Feb. 25.

Margaret Anglin's vehicle, "Security," will open in Wilmington on Feb. 28.

Thelma White is a late addition to the cast of "Spring Is Here," which will open in Philadelphia next week.

CAPT. KIDD REFORMS

What else could the dashing swashbuckler do when everyone who belonged in "Who's Who in Hades" cut him dead? He foiled them, though! He became the chief bootlegger in Hell and now he is welcomed by all the first families—even King Henry VIII is his bosom pal! This sort of drollery, set to bewitching music and fast dancing, makes this entertainment a constant joy!

NURMI FIRST IN 2 MILES

Runs Distance in 9:15 2-5 — Lermond Victor in Baxter Mile—12,000 in Garden.

By ARTHUR J. DALEY.

The boy who never had been beaten tasted defeat for the first time in his career last night. While a crowd of 12,000 stared in amazement at the New York Athletic Club games at Madison Square Garden, Jack Elder, stocky Notre Dame football player, vanquished the hitherto invincible Percy Williams of Canada in the 60-yard sprint special by inches.

Less than a week ago at the Meadowbrook Games in Philadelphia the double Olympic champion won a heat in which Elder trailed along in third place almost five yards behind. And yet Elder was able to add another upset to a season which already has seen the great Paavo Nurmi beaten.

Before the race it looked like an easy victory for Williams. Karl Wildermuth and Jimmy Daley, the only two sprinters thought capable of stopping the winning streak of the Vancouver schoolboy, did not appear, so the entire field was shunted into one heat, the final.

Off to Poor Start.

Williams got off to an atrocious start. Never in his six American appearances has he had such a poor getaway. In the field of five the Canadian was last off the mark. But that vaunted finish drive of his that has snatched victory from defeat on innumerable occasions was entirely missing.

Elder was clocked in 0:06 2-5. Williams had never run slower than that time for sixty yards. Johnny Fitzpatrick of Canada was third. The other two starters were Jimmy Quinn of the N. Y. A. C., who equaled the world's record of 0:06 1-5 in this same meet a year ago, and Bob Wiese, a clubmate.

Fred Sturdy of Yale gave visual demonstration that the pole vaulting "roof" may not yet be reached. The Yale senior, who cleared 11 feet as a freshman, 12 feet as a sophomore and 13 feet as a junior, continued the progression by reaching 14 feet last night.

Before 1926, when Charlie Hoff of Norway arrived on these shores, the indoor record was 13 feet 1 inch. Hoff raised it to 13 feet 8¾ inches. At the time it was thought that no human would ever be able to beat that height. Then came Sabin Carr with an indoor mark of 14 feet 1 inch, the present record.

With Carr's retirement no one was considered able to question this mark for many years. Sturdy, who has never done better than 13 feet 7 inches this season, cleared 13 feet 10 inches in his first try last night. When he sailed over the bar at 14 feet, it teetered for a moment and bounced on the pins as Sturdy lay on his back in the sand pit and watched it. Finally it came to rest. Even Victor Pickard, whose best previous height was 13 feet 3 inches, cleared 13 feet 10 inches. Barney Berlinger of Penn was third with an even 13 feet. Sturdy tried for a new world's record at 14 feet 1½ inches, but dislodged the bar in each attempt.

New Mark by Baskin.

Weems Baskin of Alabama and the New York A. C., with one ankle swathed in adhesive tape, hobbled to a new world's record in a 60-yard high hurdles heat as he skimmed over the sticks in 0:07 2-5, a fifth of a second better than Carl Christenson's 5-year-old mark of 0:07 3-5. One good performance seemed to be all Baskin had in his system last night. He placed second to Carl Ring, a club-mate, in the final as Ring raced over the timbers in 0:07 4-5. Incidentally it was Ring who gained a place on the Olympic team over Baskin, Ring making the boat to Amsterdam by running a tryout heat a fifth of a second faster than Baskin in another heat.

The richest prize left in competition, the $1,000 Buermeyer Trophy, went to Joe Tierney of the New York A. C. as the giant Winged Foot athlete won permanent possession of the cup with an easy victory in the Buermeyer 500 in the time of 0:59 2-5. Tierney won in 1924 in 58 seconds, the existing world's record for the distance, and repeated with a victory last year. The race in 0:58 3-5 by Jake Driscoll in 1922 and Tierney's record two years later are the only two times in the history of this track classic that Tierney's performance of last night was bettered.

Tierney Jumps the Field.

Tierney won in his usual fashion by lagging behind for the greater part of the race and then jumping the field in the later stages. Advance predictions had agreed that the battle would be among Ray Barbuti, Olympic 400-meter champion; Bernie McCafferty and Tierney. Barbuti withdrew when he felt that he was not in condition and McCafferty, a student at Holy Cross, could not get the necessary permission to compete. No Holy Cross athlete was at hand last night.

There were only three starters in addition to Tierney, Jimmy Ball of Canada, Oscard Swope of Dartmouth and Frank Cuhel of the New York A. C. Ball led until half a lap from home, when Tierney rushed by with Swope and Cuhel at his heels. Tierney broke the worsted seven yards in front of Swope, with Cuhel a few feet behind the Dartmouth man.

Another empty triumph was the lot of Paavo Nurmi as he loped around a mediocre field to win the two-mile handicap race in far from record time, 9:15 2-5. Nurmi has done better this season, turning in a 9:12 performance in Boston.

Nurmi ran hard for the first mile, which he traversed in 4:34, and then he marched along in more easy fashion to win by half a lap from his countryman, Ove Anderson. F. C. Bayley of the N. Y. A. C. was third.

Roughing on the turns disqualified Fred Veit of N. Y. U. after he had won by half a foot from Sam Martin of the Boston A. A. in the Bremey half-mile.

Veit sped ahead of Martin in the last turn. The Boston man regained lost ground with a terrific kick in the stretch and hurled himself across the tape, a scant six inches from victory. But that victory was given him, nevertheless. Veit was disqualified and Jack Mara of Georgetown, former Newton High School boy, was awarded second place, with George Offenhauser of Penn State third. The time was 1:57 2-5.

Two days after losing a two-mile race to Bob Dalrymple in Boston, Leo Lermond outran four other starters to win the Baxter Mile from Jimmy Kennedy of Georgetown by twelve yards, with Joe Hickey of N. Y. U. a poor third. Lermond took the lead after three laps and led the rest of the way, uncorking a scintillating sprint in the stretch to effectually head off a fast-tiring Kennedy. The time of 4:21 2-5 is the fastest mile Lermond has run this season.

A fleet quartet of schoolboys from Newark Prep set a new scholastic one mile relay record of 3:30 2-5, as E. Oschetsky, F. Troy, William Bloor and Charlie Kelly clipped a full second off the old standard of 3:31 2-5, made by representatives of the same school in Philadelphia on March 19, 1927.

The summaries:

Baxter One-Mile Run—Won by Leo Lermond, Boston A. A.; James Kennedy, Georgetown University, second; Joseph Hickey, New York University, third. Time—4:21 2-5.

Pole Vault—Won by Frederic A. Sturdy, Yale, 14 feet; Victor Pickard, University of Pittsburgh, 13 feet 10 inches, second; Barney E. Berlinger, University of Pennsylvania, 13 feet, third; Ashley Pond 3d, Yale, fourth.

VALGER LOSES IN LONDON.

Disqualified for Holding in Sixth Round of Bout With Steward.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Benny Valger, New York lightweight, boxing against Sam Steward at the National Sporting Club here tonight, was disqualified in the sixth round for holding. Valger, who was four pounds lighter than Steward, displeased the onlookers by his unorthodox methods.

It was noticed during the intervals between rounds that Valger refused the attentions of his five seconds, preferring to look after himself. He showed plenty of confidence, but neither he nor Steward impressed the spectators.

Valger was warned in the fifth round for holding, but by a shake of his head indicated the referee was wrong, but in the sixth the referee intimated he was right by disqualifying Valger.

BASS GETS DECISION.

Outpoints Steve Smith of Bridgeport in Ten Rounds at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18 (AP).—Benny Bass, Philadelphia featherweight, won the decision over Steve Smith, Bridgeport, Conn., in a ten-round bout here tonight. Bass weighed 128 pounds, Smith 129½.

Vince Guidini, Philadelphia, 156, knocked out Theodore (Kid) Snowden, Oxford, Pa., 162, in thirteen seconds of the first round in their ten-round bout.

Dick Walsh, Philadelphia, 123, won from Buddy Weir, Philadelphia, 123, and Richie King, Philadelphia, 134, defeated Frankie Hayes, Philadelphia, 140, in six-rounders.

HAMBURG, Feb. 18 (AP).—Emil Hirschfeld today established a new German shot-putting record of 15.12 meters (49 feet 7 37-128 inches). The previous record was 13.89 meters or 45 feet 6 59-64 inches, more than 4 feet less than Hirschfeld's performance today.

The latest feat of the German Olympic athlete and soldier also exceeds the American indoor record, which was set at 49 feet 6⅝ inches by Herbert Schwarze of the Illinois A. C. at the National A. A. U. championships in New York last Feb. 25. Hirschfeld finished third behind two Americans, John Kuck and Herman Brix, in the Olympic shot-put after having broken the world's record in the German tryouts. This mark in turn was beaten by Kuck in capturing the title.

REFEREES NAMED FOR FLORIDA FIGHT

CLAIMS VOICE IN MATTER

Says He Will Not Permit Either Man to Officiate—Meeting Scheduled Today.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

Special to The New York Times.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Feb. 18.—The Massachusetts State Athletic Commission, exercising a privilege represented by a clause in the contract of Jack Sharkey for his battle with Young Stribling to be fought here Feb. 27, today nominated Johnny Brassil and Jack Sheehan as its selections for referee and alternate in the match, and touched off a controversial bomb which may or may not affect the hitherto harmonious situation existing here in connection with the approaching battle.

The selection of Brassil and Sheehan was declared satisfactory to them by both Sharkey and his manager, Johnny Buckley. But Pa Stribling, father-manager of the young Georgian, entered violent protest to the selections.

Doesn't Want Brassil.

"Brassil is a personal friend of Sharkey's and of Buckley's and for this reason I won't stand for him," said Stribling Sr. "He may be the fairest, squarest, most efficient referee in the business. He worked in two of my boy's fights in Boston, the matches in which he boxed Quintin Romero-Rojas and Maxie Rosenbloom, and was eminently satisfactory.

"But my boy has the most important contest of his career in the Sharkey match and I don't think it fair to ask me to consent to a referee who is from Sharkey's home town and is a personal friend of both Sharkey and Buckley."

"So you have authority under your contract to dispute the appointment of a referee? Isn't it a specific provision of Sharkey's contract that if the managers of the men cannot mutually agree upon a referee the choice is to be made by the Massachusetts Commission and that only in the event the Massachusetts Commission failed or refused to do so, Jack Dempsey was to appoint the referee?" Stribling was asked.

Says He Has Voice in Matter.

"I certainly have a voice in the selection of a referee," was the reply. "The clause you refer to may be in Sharkey's contract, but it is not in mine. My contract reads that if the managers cannot agree upon a referee the Massachusetts Commission is to select a referee, but that this selection must be approved by me. And if I don't approve, Dempsey is to name the man."

The suspicion here is to regard Stribling's outburst as a drive for ballyhoo. It does not seem reasonable that Sharkey and Stribling are signed to different contracts. Buckley has exhibited his contract with the provision mentioned above and is determined its provisions must be observed. Stribling, when asked to produce his contract today, said he did not have the document on his person. He said, however, he will present his protest personally tomorrow when a meeting is scheduled among Promoter Jack Dempsey, Buckley and Stribling.

It is safe to say, however, that Brassil will referee the fight or there will be no fight. Buckley has repeatedly asserted he will insist on observance of every provision of his contract, and particularly the referee clause.

$250,000 GUARANTEE OFFERED TO DEMPSEY

BOSTON, Feb. 18 (AP).—A telegram offering Jack Dempsey a $250,000 guarantee for boxing Jimmy Maloney, Boston heavyweight, at Braves Field next July or August was sent to the former champion at Miami, Fla., today by Eddie Mack, the Boston Garden boxing promoter.

"Will give you," Mack's telegram read, "guarantee of $250,000 with privilege of 40 per cent of gross gate less 5 per cent State tax to box Jimmy Maloney at Braves Field in Boston in July or August. Will post $75,000 sixty days before fight, another $75,000 thirty days before fight and will post the remaining $100,000 forty-eight hours before contest. You must open training camp in Boston one month prior to contest."

Mack declared that while he named Maloney as the opponent in his telegram to Dempsey, Heeney would be substituted if he defeated the Boston heavyweight.

MIDGET WOLGAST WINNER.

TORONTO, Feb. 18 (AP).—Midget Wolgast of New York scored a ten-round decision over Ruby Bradley of Chicago in a fast main bout on the flyweight card at the Coliseum here tonight. Each weighed 110.

In two eight-round preliminaries, Phil Tobias, 112½, of New York, took a close decision from Johnny McCoy, 114¼, of Rochester, N. Y., and Willie Lamorte, 113½, of Newark, N. J., defeated Willie Cubic, 114, of New York.

Al Friedman Triumphs.

Al Friedman, Boston heavyweight, gained a ten-round decision over James Jay Lawless at Newark last night, The Associated Press reports. Tony Caragliano, New York lightweight, defeated Joey Abrams, New York, in eight rounds. Caragliano weighed 129 and Abrams 135.

BOXING BOUTS TONIGHT.

Twenty-Second Engineers Armory—Johnny Hulser vs. Jimmy Slavin, main event of eight rounds; Irish Mickey Whalen vs. Chico Gonzales, eight rounds.

Duncan Resigns His Position as Club Pro; To Devote Entire Time to Tournament Play

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—With the view of devoting his whole time to tournament play, George Duncan, one of England's foremost golfers and captain of the Ryder Cup team which meets the United States combination at Moortown, Leeds, on April 26, has resigned a lucrative position as professional of the Wentworth Club at Surrey.

Duncan has won many major competitions, although he never captured the American open championship. The Wentworth Club was loath to let him go, so the secretary said, but Duncan felt that it wouldn't be fair to members for him to constantly be away.

"As a free-lance I won't feel that I am neglecting my duties," said Duncan in an interview. "I probably will be away on the Continent for several months with the Aga Khan, the prominent Indian sportsman. I also will tour with the French millionaire, M. E. Esmond, who has been prominent in Anglo-French golfing events. I have many other engagements, and I thought it only fair to tender my resignation to the Wentworth Club."

DE VOS KNOCKS OUT BROWN IN THE FIRST

KUCERA CAPTURES DECISION

Rene DeVos, the Belgian middleweight, made short work of Bobby Brown of Lowell, Mass., at the St. Nicholas Arena last night, stopping the Massachusetts boxer in 1:07 of the first round.

DeVos, making his first ring appearance since he lost to Ace Hudkins two months ago, sent the crowd of 2,500 persons home early by tearing into his rival at the start and flooring him for the count with a smashing attack of lefts and rights to the jaw.

Brown managed to strike the first blow, a left uppercut to the body, but the Belgian countered immediately with a two-fisted attack to the body.

He straightened Brown against the ropes, and transferred his attack to the head, staggering the latter with two rights to the chin, and ending the bout with a heavy left hook to Brown's jaw. Brown weighed 164, four pounds more than DeVos.

Kucera Defeats Matinsky.

Georgie (White) Kucera of Yorkville, former amateur star, gained the decision over Harry Matinsky, Harlem lightweight, in the six-round semi-final. Kucera weighed 133½ pounds, Matinsky, 136.

Free swinging marked the opening round. In the next, Kucera jolted his rival with a right cross to the jaw, but the latter came back strong. Matinsky started the third aggressively, but Kucera came back with a furious attack.

Kucera continued to press the attack in the fourth and fifth, reaching his rival frequently with short rights and lefts. The Yorkville battler sent his rival to the canvas for no count in the sixth with a barrage of body blows.

Goldman-Billick Draw.

Oscar Goldman, east side, battled to a six-round draw with Danny Billick of Pittsburgh. Goldman was the aggressor at the start, but his rival's steady boxing kept the points even. Billick, at 122½, was two pounds heavier than Goldman.

Piling up a lead on points in the first three rounds with a stiff left jab and a right cross, Herbert Green, California welterweight, carried off a decision over Mike Denton, also of California, in six rounds. Green weighed 144 pounds, Denton 141.

Joe Caruso of Brooklyn, 144½, outpointed Law Turrubiates of Tampico, Mexico, 144½, in the first six-rounder. The opening bout of four rounds resulted in a decision for Eric Holmberg, west side, 169½, over Bruno Sallo of Greenwich Village, 172½.

LOAYZA OUTPOINTS PISANO DECISIVELY

Wins Ten-Round Bout at Broadway Arena—Goldman Stops Gonzales—Sampson Victor.

Stanislaus Loayza, Chilean lightweight, won a slashing ten-round decision over Augie Pisano, Coney Island veteran, in the main bout at the Broadway Arena last night. Loayza floored his rival three times in the first two rounds and during the attack that the Chilean staged in those rounds it looked as though Pisano might not survive to the finish.

Pisano was in a bad way in the very first round, when midway in that session the Chilean floored him with a hard right to the face. Pisano arose at the count of seven and then ran into an avalanche of blows that had him dazed at the bell.

Loayza resumed his vigorous attack in the second, dropping his opponents for counts of 3 and 7. Pisano had another hard session in the fourth, as Loayza lashed out with hard lefts and rights to the head.

The succeeding rounds were all on the same order, with Loayza dealing out terrific punishment. Pisano gained the cheers of the crowd as he lashed out bravely through the closing rounds, but his blows failed to halt the advance of the Chilean. Loayza weighed 138 and Pisano was one pound lighter.

Marty Goldman, East New York lightweight, stopped José Gonzales of Mexico in the fourth round of the six-round semi-final. Goldman proved a sharpshooter with a hard right, which had the Mexican's face badly cut when the referee stopped hostilities after 1:38 of fighting in the fourth round.

Herman Wallace, 134, of Brownsville, came from behind to gain the decision over Joe Leone, 128½, in a slashing six-round bout.

Marty Sampson, Harlem welterweight, scored a one-round knockout over Jackie Block of Brownsville in a scheduled six-round bout. Sampson floored his opponent for an eight count and was pounding him hard when the referee stopped the battle in 2:43.

Charley Raymond, Williamsburg bantamweight, outpointed Mickey Doyle of the east side in a lively four-rounder. Al Cohen, 138, won from Joe Thornton, 137½, in the four-round opener.

STRASSER BEATEN IN SQUASH MATCH

National Class C Champion Bows to McLaughlin, Columbia Club, 15-6, 18-15, in B Play.

STEVENS VANQUISHES GEER

Close Struggle Marks Victory of Yale Club Star, 18-17, 12-15, 15-10, in Second Round of Tourney.

For the first game Strasser was square'y on the defensive, with McLaughlin attacking in his best fashion, and the game went quickly to the Columbian at 15—6. But in the second chapter the Class C titleholder lifted his game and some of the best squash in the tournament was witnessed as the two men fought at top speed on even terms to 13—all. McLaughlin increased the tempo of his play at this stage and won the game by the margin of 3 points to take the match at 15—6, 18—15.

Among the other winners in the second round were Yale Stevens of the Yale Club, Barnwell Elliott of the New York A. C., Harry Reeve of the Park Avenue Squash Club, F. M. Warburg of the Harvard Club and Howell Van Gerbig of the Fraternity Club. Stevens triumphed over Danforth Geer of the Short Hills Club after one of the closest struggles of the day, winning at 15—17, 12—15, 15—10. Elliott eliminated T. L. Bates of Yale at 15—7, 15—1, and Reeve accounted for another Eli, N. T. Lane Jr., at 15—7, 15—4.

The summaries:

Second Round—E. G. McLaughlin, Columbia, defeated L. A. Strasser, Shelton, 15—6, 18—15; A. F. Adams, Crescent, won from J. C. Stanley, Yale, by default; C. W. Fyfe, Crescent, defeated J. Quincy, Yale, 15—4, 15—12; Harvey Mayer, City, defeated S. W. Smith, Fraternity, 15—6, 15—6; Howell Van Gerbig, Fraternity, defeated Peter Miller, Elizabeth, 15—7, 15—4; Barnwell Elliott, N. Y. A. C., defeated N. L. Bates, Yale, 15—7, 15—1; F. M. Warburg, Harvard, defeated David Dibbell, 18—17, 15—10; Harry Reeve, Park Avenue, defeated N. T. Lane Jr., Yale, 15—7, 15—4; P. J. Cohalan, N. Y. A. C., defeated E. P. DeGot, Shelton, 15—6, 15—2; R. H. Reutter, Columbia, won from Lambert Prettyman, Yale, by default; C. W. Sutton Jr., N. Y. A. C., defeated B. L. Lawrence, Park Avenue, 15—7, 15—10; Yale Stevens, Yale, defeated Danforth Geer, Short Hills, 18—17, 12—15, 15—10; Fergus Reid Jr., Yale, won from T. H. S. Andrews, Crescent, by default.

RILEY TOPS MACGUIRE IN VETERANS' SQUASH

Princeton Club Star Wins by 2-15, 15-9, 15-2, as National Tourney Opens—Johnson Victor.

With an entry of twenty-three players, headed by H. R. Mixsell of the Princeton Club, the defending titleholder, the national veterans' squash tennis championship got under way last night on the courts of the Yale Club.

Mixsell did not play in the opening round as he is not scheduled to appear until today, but Armin W. Riley, also of the Princeton Club, another of the seeded contenders, went on the court with C. J. MacGuire of the Yale Club and came through to victory after losing the opening game. The score was 2—15, 15—9, 15—2.

W. Murray Lee of the Columbia University Club and Charles M. Bull of the Crescent A. C., former champion, are the two other seeded players and will start play today along with Mixsell.

Among the other first round winners last night were Merle Johnson of Park Avenue, Carroll Cooney and Donald MacKay of Yale and G. N. Edge of Fraternity. MacKay put out Norman F. Torrance of the Crescent A. C. at 15—7, 15—2. Johnson eliminated D. M. Ogilvie of the Crescent A. C. at 18—13, 15—12, while Cooney and Edge advanced by default.

The summaries:

First Round—Carroll Cooney, Yale, won from W. M. Silleck, Yale, by default; Donald MacKay, Yale, defeated Normen F. Torrance, Crescent, 15—7, 15—2; H. G. Holt, Yale, won from John C. Neely, Princeton, by default; C. N. Edge, Fraternity, won from J. P. Lee, N. Y. A. C., by default; Merle Johnson, Park Avenue, defeated D. M. Ogilvie, Crescent, 18—13, 15—12; Armin W. Riley, Princeton, defeated C. J. MacGuire, Yale, 2—15, 15—9, 15—2.

Second Round—J. R. Rochester, N. Y. A. C., won from I. S. Snead, Yale, by default.

HEENEY TO FACE VON PORAT

Heavyweights Are Matched for Bout in Chicago March 12.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18 (AP).—Tom Heeney, the New Zealand heavyweight, was matched tonight by Jim Mullen, Chicago promoter, for a ten-round bout with Otto von Porat, Norwegian, at the Coliseum on March 12, here.

Mullen also is negotiating for a middleweight championship battle between Mickey Walker, the titleholder, and René De Vos, Belgian challenger, to be decided at one of the major league ball parks in June. He has come to terms with De Vos and hopes to induce Jack Kearns, manager of Walker, to accept the match.

JUNIOR ICE MEET HELD.

Competition in the junior division of the national figure skating tournament was held yesterday at the Ice Club by the Skating Club, but announcement of the winners was withheld until today. Senior skaters will get into action this morning and afternoon.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Feb. 18.—Colleen, winner of the first two Bacardi Trophy races and second in the first mid-winter Challenge Trophy race, was the winner in the second Challenge Trophy race sailed today, beating the French entry Almendares III by the scant margin of 52 seconds.

Colleen with 15 points to her credit is leading the fleet, being 3 points ahead of Iscyra II, winner of the first race. Iscyra finished fifth today in a fleet of eight.

The race was touch-and-go over every inch of the ten-mile course and the first five boats finished within 1 minute and 17 seconds of one another. Mambi, the crack Cuban entry, was only 5 seconds behind the French craft and Paul Shields's Shinnecock trailed Mambi by only 10 seconds. Iscyra was 10 seconds behind the Shields boat.

Ben Machree First Over.

A fresh nor'easter which was blowing earlier in the day died out just before the start of the race and when the eight boats crossed the starting line the wind was fluky. Ben Machree was first over the line, but at the weather mark the French entry nosed in and rounded first with Colleen and Iscyra close to her stern. On a broad reach out into the gulf with the wind hauling into the north there was no change in the position of the leaders.

On the third leg, the race today being sailed over a triangular course of two reaches and a run, the wind shifted slightly to the east and Almendares and Colleen were forced to make a short hitch to enable them to round the Morro Castle mark. Iscyra made the mark without tacking and crossed Colleen's bow.

Almendares and Iscyra were scarcely a boat's length apart, the latter overtaking the French boat as they approached the outer stake mark when Iscyra established an overlap on Almendares. Conill, the French skipper, luffed almost into the wind and as both yachts remained virtually motionless for a few seconds, Bedford shot Colleen under their lee and was first round the mark.

Colleen Increases Margin.

Shinnecock and Mambi came round behind Almendares and Iscyra, blanketing both, while Colleen, with a clear wind, went ahead to develop a one-minute lead dead before the wind.

The four yachts staged a great battle, luffing and bearing away, putting out and taking in their whisker-poles (the spinnaker booms in boats of other classes), and first one and then another went into the lead for second place.

The French entry finally crossed the finish line, seemingly with the skipper and crew blowing into the mainsail to supply an added breath of wind, beating the Cuban boat by five seconds. As Shinnecock and Iscyra shot across the line, with ten seconds separating them, the three remaining yachts in the race were far astern.

With only one more race for the coveted trophy, Colleen's 3-point lead places the Central Long Island Sound boat in an enviable position.

The third and final race for the Bacardi Trophy will be sailed tomorrow.

WRESTLER IN HOSPITAL AFTER DIVE FROM RING

Romano Knocked Unconscious in New Orleans Bout With Lewis —One Fall for Each.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 18 (AP).—Mike Romano, champion of Italy, was knocked unconscious when he dived from the ring during his wrestling match here tonight with Ed (Strangler) Lewis, former world's champion. Romano was carried to the hospital for an X-ray examination after the referee had stopped the match.

Lewis won the first fall in 20 minutes after a series of headlocks, and Romano the second in three minutes with a toe hold. Romano struck his head against a railing outside the ring when he dived and Lewis dodged.

PECK GRIFFIN MOVES HERE.

Horn Wins British Ice Title, Skating 440 Yards in 0:40 2-5

LONDON, Feb. 18 (Canadian Press).—C. Horn of Upwell won the quarter-mile title when the British ice skating championships continued at Ruislip Reservoir today, his time being 0:40 2-5. G. Martin, Cambridge, was a close second in 0:40 3-5. F. Bott, Leicester, third in 0:44 and E. Jackson, Toronto, fourth in 0:44 2-5. Horn also won the Warner Cup over the mile course, his time of 3:12 equaling the British amateur record. In an exhibition race afterward he accomplished the distance in 3:11 3-5.

BAILEY'S 27 POINTS SET PACE IN HOCKEY

BOUCHER, RANGERS, IN TIE

MONTREAL, Feb. 18.—The rush made by the Toronto Leafs into occupation of one of the play-off berths in the International Division of the National Hockey League is reflected in the scoring figures, including the games of yesterday, announced from the league offices tonight.

Irvin (Ace) Bailey, hard-shooting right-winger of the Leafs, has assumed a three-point lead over his nearest competitor, Nels Stewart of the Montreal Maroons. Bailey has scored nineteen goals, with eight assists, and Stewart eighteen goals with six assists. Hooley Smith, Stewart's team-mate, has had nine of each to take third position, while there is a tie for fourth between Howie Morenz of the Canadiens, Andy Blair of the Leafs and Jimmy Ward of the Maroons.

Contending teams for play-off berths in the American Division provide the scoring leaders. Carson Cooper, the Detroit right winger, is tied with Frankie Boucher, centre ice star of the champion Rangers, each with 21 points. Cooper has scored thirteen goals, the same number as Bill Cook of the Rangers, but the latter is credited with only six assists.

Two players in the international section have now passed the 100-minute mark in penalties. Lionel Conacher, captain of the Americans, still leads, with 113 minutes, while Red Dutton, the hard-working Maroon rear guard, gained on him, reaching the 107-minute mark.

Eddie Shore, the Bruin star, leads the other group, but has totaled only 76 minutes, which is twenty more than Bun Cook of the Rangers, who is next in line.

Individual standings of the leaders follow:

AMERICANS IN TEST AT GARDEN TONIGHT

Victory Over Maroons Will Give Them Tie for First Place With Canadiens.

It will be a slashing battle when the heavy-set Montreal Maroons clash with the New York Americans tonight at Madison Square Garden in a game that may have considerable bearing on the outcome of the hockey play-off in the International Division of the National Hockey League.

A victory tonight for Tommy Gorman's outfit will mean a tie in the standing with the dashing Canadiens, with whom the Americans tied in their game last Saturday night, and a victory for the Maroons will mean a tie with the Toronto Maple Leafs for third place and in position for a place in the play-offs.

The Flying Frenchmen are idle tonight, which adds zest to the battle that will be enacted on the Garden ice.

The probable line-ups:

Americans.		Maroons.

Football Rules Committee Makes Four Changes; the Major One Affects Fumbles

FOUR CHANGES MADE IN FOOTBALL RULES

Fumble From Running Play Dead When Recovered by Defending Side.

EXTRA-POINT MARK MOVED

Cut From Three to Two Yards to Make Play More of a Triple Threat.

TIGHTENS SCREEN PASS BAN

Rules Committee Draws Close Line on Interference—Extension Made on Kicking Rules.

Adoption of a radical new gridiron rule, making fumbled balls dead at the point of recovery, when recovered by the defensive team, was announced yesterday by the National Football Rules Committee through The Associated Press as the chief result of a three-day secret session.

The committee's decision, which approves a recommendation having the widespread support of football coaches, was made public by W. S. Langford, secretary.

"The new rule," said a formal statement, "will not apply in case of forward passing nor to backward passes which are intercepted before striking the ground, nor will it apply to blocked kicks, which will be played as heretofore."

Three other important changes were announced by the committee, effective for the 1929 season.

The former rule restricting the kicking side from advancing the ball in case of subsequently legally recovering it has been extended to cover free kicks and kick-offs. Formerly it applied only to punts.

Try For Point Mark Shifted.

In the hope of having the try for point after touchdown constitute more of a triple threat play, the rules makers moved the point from which the try is to be made from the three to the two yard line.

The rule to restrict the use of the screen pass, not regarded as altogether effective last year, was amplified to provide that "no player of the side in possession of the ball shall interfere with an opponent until the ball has been touched, except in the case of an actual attempt to catch the ball." Furthermore, except on passes completed behind the line of scrimmage, such players as are ineligible shall be penalized for interference if they obstruct the right of way of defensive players.

In announcing the change in the fumbled-ball rule the committee stated it took into consideration "the fact that in the great majority of cases the actual fumble of the ball is the error of a single player and not the fault of the team as a whole; also the fact that loss of the ball by reason of a fumble is generally considered to be equivalent to the loss of about forty yards, namely, the distance lost by the fumble itself plus the average distance of a punt—say thirty-five yards, the opportunity for which has been lost by reason of the fumble."

All Fumbles Are Dead.

Of the four rule changes, all important, which were announced as the result of a secret session of the gridiron legislators in the seaside seclusion of Absecon, N. J., last Friday, Saturday and Sunday, one barred the door against some of the sad consequences of a fumbled kick.

Whereas the rules of 1928 provided that when a player fumbles in the act of receiving a punt, the ball is dead at the point of recovery by the opposing team, the revised code lists all kinds of booted balls in the same category—kick-offs, placements and drop kicks as well as punts.

Deciding that restrictions upon the use of the screened forward pass were not sufficient, the committee amplifies the rule to provide that no player of a side attempting a forward pass "who has crossed the line of scrimmage shall, either before or after the pass had been made, interfere with an opponent until the ball has been touched except in an actual attempt to catch the ball. Except on passes completed behind the line of scrimmage, such players as are ineligible shall be penalized for interference, if they in any way obstruct the right of way of defensive players."

"In case of doubt as to such interference," the rule adds parenthetically, "the penalty shall be inflicted."

The only other legislation was adoption of a provision under which secondary schools may be permitted "a more liberal practice in the matter of substitutions than that allowed under the standard rules," by mutual agreement of the teams.

Other Suggestions Dropped.

On the many other possible rule changes suggested in various quarters, the gridiron legislators took no action.

The proposal for eliminating the second half kick-off, which has been advocated on the gorund that not one game but two in the guise of one are now being played, did not come up at all.

A suggestion that points be scored for first downs made was not considered. Moving the goal posts back ten yards to their old position was discussed, but found no warm advocate.

In addition to the members of the rules committee, of which E. K. Hall of New York, Dartmouth graduate, is chairman, [illegible] others were present by invitation. Knute Rockne, Notre Dame; Bill Alexander, Georgia Tech; Hugo Bezdek, Penn State; Pop Warner, Stanford, represented the football coaches; Walter R. Okeson, Lehigh; F. A. Lambert, Ohio State, and A. W. Palmer, Colby, the officials.

Yale Puts Brown Football Game On a Reserved-Seat Basis

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 18.—Yale's football game with Brown this year will be on a reserve-seat basis, Harold Woodcock, manager of the Yale Athletic Association, said today in announcing plans for the distribution of football tickets for next Fall. Application blanks will be sent Sept. 15 to alumni and holders of season books. It also was announced that on Oct. 12, when Yale is playing Georgia at Athens, Ga., in connection with the opening of the Sanford Stadium, the Yale freshmen will play Andover and the Yale junior varsity will meet the New Haven Boys' Club in the Bowl.

WHAT RULE CHANGES IN FOOTBALL MEAN

Action on Fumbles, the Most Important, Aims to Eliminate Fluke Victories.

TRY-FOR-POINT PROTECTED

Object of Change Is That It Will Encourage Running Plays in Place of Kicking.

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.

It has been the custom during the past few years to greet each change in the football rules as "the most radical since the introduction of the forward pass." This year the rules committee, following its secret session, has again brought this phrase into play, and with a good deal of justice.

Of the changes announced, by far the most interesting and the most important is the fumble rule. This rule makes it impossible for the defenders to do more than take the ball from the rushing side on a fumble. There can be no running with a loose ball, except when it is recovered by the team which made the fumble. The rule, as announced, strikes at one of the great traditions of football, that of the last minute run that turns defeat into victory.

Another rule which may and may not turn out to be important is the moving of the try-for-point following the touchdown from the three-yard to the two-yard line. At first glance this seems absurd in that it means simply a nineteen yard start for a drop or placement kick rather than one of about twenty yards. But the idea of the change is to encourage the use of other means than the kick for the extra point.

Move Protects Try-for-Point.

This change is the latest move in the long struggle to make the extra point after touchdown more interesting and to protect it against those who would have it removed. With the ball on the two-yard line, the rule makers feel that elevens will be more apt to try running plans in preference to the proverbial kick for the extra point. It is certain to provide teams with a good line breaking attack with an advantage, but it is hard to see how it will affect the forward pass attempt for extra points, for one less yard on a pass is no more important than it would be on a drop or placement kick.

For technicians of the game, the strict ruling on the so-called screen pass is interesting, for this has long been a point of debate among coaches and officials. This is a play on which men of the side making the pass go through to form "passive" interference for eligible receivers.

These men evaded the rule against interfering with the defense by protecting their receiver, however, without contact. "Accidents" happened when players collided, but the new rule specifically states that no player shall interfere with any other until the ball has been caught except in the case of an actual attempt to catch the ball." This throws the burden on all players going through who are not eligible pass receivers, but still leaves a lot to the discretion of the officials.

There also is an extension of the rule against a kicking side advancing with a legally recovered ball from the kick-off, place, drop and free kicks, as well as the punt, to which this rule solely applied, up to last year. The fumble rule is one of the most important to spectators.

N. Y. U. Offers Fumble Case.

About the best way to describe this fumble rule is to refer to the most famous case in the East of the working of the old rule during the 1928 season. This was the New York University-Georgetown game played in New York in a pouring rain.

New York University, then undefeated, was the favorite, but could not run up a sizable score on the bogged field. Finally, Providence Georgetown end, picked up a ball dropped by N. Y. U. and ran ninety yards for a touchdown and victory for his team. Under the new rule the ball would have gone to Georgetown at the point of recovery, staying until the next play, anyway.

Among the most prominent loose ball examples are the two runs of Sammy White which resulted in victories for Princeton against Harvard and Yale on successive Saturdays in 1911. White, against Harvard, recovered a blocked kick and ran 95 yards for a touchdown and then the next week he picked up a fumble and ran 60 yards against Yale for another touchdown, both providing the deciding points.

The new rule refers only to balls fumbled on running plays, for the formal statement said that blocked kicks would not be affected, nor would forward or backward passes which are intercepted before striking the ground. In reality, then, the only run taken out of the game is the surprising and always dramatic one which starts from a scrimmage play.

The idea of the new rule is to prevent a team from winning on a fluke. In this it makes football about the only team sport where errors are not heavily penalized.

Pirates Leave for Camp.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 18 (AP).—Nine battery men of the Pittsburgh Pirates set out for Paso Robles, Cal., to start Spring training. Other players were to be picked up en route. Manager Dennis Bush was in charge. The players are scheduled to have their first workout Saturday.

PENN CHANGES PLAN OF ROWING AWARDS

Varsity Crew Men Will Receive P's for Short Races or the Poughkeepsie Regatta.

OTHER OARSMEN AFFECTED

Navy and Cornell Contests Designated as Letter Games in Football —Middies Replace Columbia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18.—A more liberal system in the awarding of crew letters has just been approved by the council on athletics at Pennsylvania.

Members of the varsity crew will now receive their regular varsity P's either for rowing in a majority of the short races during the regular season or in the Poughkeepsie championship regatta. The previous method allowed the varsity award only for participation in both.

Junior varsity oarsmen who compete two seasons, including their senior year, will receive their varsity letter. Should they win at Poughkeepsie without any previous year's competition they automatically earn their varsity P.

The 150-pound varsity crew men will receive regular minor sports P's for a majority of the short races or the Poughkeepsie regatta. They will be allowed regular varsity awards if they win the Joseph Wright trophy for 150-pound crews in the American Henley.

Members of the first freshman crew who have rowed in a majority of the short races or the Poughkeepsie regatta will receive numerals and sweaters. Members of the freshman 150-pound crew and the second heavyweight crew will get numerals if they engage in intercollegiate competition.

Coach Rusty Callow is enthusiastic over the change and says it will encourage more candidates to turn out.

A new system in the award of varsity football letters has also been approved. In the future the Navy and Cornell games will be varsity P contests instead of the last two games of the schedule, which for some years have been Columbia and Cornell. The Middies thus replace the Lions.

ST. BONAVENTURE FIVE WINS IN LAST MINUTE

Reilly Scores Two Fouls to Bring 37-35 Victory Over the Crescent A. C. Team.

With less than a minute to play, Reilly, right guard of the St. Bonaventure College basketball team, dropped two fouls into the net and brought victory to his team over the Crescent Athletic Club on the losers' court in Brooklyn last night. The final score was 37 to 35.

In the closing ten minutes of the game the score was tied twice, first at 24-24 and again at 35-35 with only three minutes to play. At this point Schaenen of the Crescents twice fouled Reilly.

Revere, Mass., Wants Red Sox Sunday Games; Would Build a Baseball Park Seating 41,000

BOSTON, Feb. 18 (AP).—The possibility that the Boston Red Sox would play their holiday and Sunday baseball games in Revere loomed large today when a delegation of responsible officials and business men from that neighboring city conferred with Bos. Quinn, president of the club and produced blue prints of a park with a 41,000 seating capacity, 14,000 more than the 27,000 of Fenway Park, the Red Sox home field, which will be unavailable for Sunday baseball because it is situated within 1,000 feet of a religious edifice.

While admitting he has received permission from the American League to transfer the Red Sox Sunday games to Revere, Quinn refused to come to a definite agreement with the Revere delegation until he had completed his negotiations with Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves, for the use of the Braves' field on Sundays.

Quinn admitted that Fuchs's first terms for Sunday rental of the National League Park were much more than the Red Sox could afford to pay, but said he had not ended his negotiations with the rival club.

The offer made by the Revere delegation called for the erection of a ball park on the site of a closed amusement tract on the Revere Beach Highway. The Revere construction experts predicted that the grandstand and bleachers could be built inside of three months, but could not estimate the time needed for grading the playing field.

Mr. Quinn said the Red Sox have not and will not apply for a Sunday license for games at Fenway Park. He had no doubt, he said, that the Boston City Council would waive the technicality, since only a portion of Fenway Park was within the proscribed 1,000 feet, but the constant danger than an injunction might be sought during the season by persons opposed to Sunday baseball was too great a threat.

SCHALK IN TRAINING AS GIANTS PRACTICE

McGraw's Assistant Is Expected to Volunteer for Active Duty as Catcher.

SHOWS FORM IN WORKOUT

All Pitchers, Except Fitzsimmons, Take Turn on Mound—Buckeye Is Released to Toledo.

By JOHN DREBINGER.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Feb. 18.—All further doubt as to whether Ray Schalk means to offer himself for active duty behind the bat for the Giants this year seemed to be dispelled in the minds of most of the experts today when the former veteran White Sox catcher, in addition to supervising the training of all the other Giants assembled here, did enough work himself to whip any dozen ball players into shape.

Naturally enough Schalk is keeping discreetly silent as to whether he will do any catching when the championship season begins. This, obviously, is a matter entirely up to John McGraw, and Schalk at the moment has no desire to appear presumption about the matter.

However, it was known early in the Winter, when McGraw first announced he had signed the former Chicago pilot as his first lieutenant, that the Giant leader planned to have Ray double in brass and do active work behind the bat in addition to his coaching duties, provided his condition permitted. Apparently it is Schalk's intention to surprise his boss when McGraw arrives here later.

Schalk Active in Practice.

Today Schalk seemed all over the field at once. He took an active part in the batting practice, ran out his hits at top speed around the bases, shagged flies, warmed up the pitchers and, whenever the mood so struck him, jogged completely around the park, usually hauling one of the heavyweights along with him.

Schalk also seems to have made a surprising amount of progress with the pitchers, a significant feature of the day's drill being that, with the exception of Freddy Fitzsimmons, all of the first string hurlers were considered sufficiently advanced to take a turn on the mound in the batting practice that consumed most of the session.

Those who toiled on the hill were Benton, Hubbell, Genewich, Henry, Chaplin, Kelly and Johnson.

Veltman Joins Squad.

Following the batting drill Bert Niehoff trotted out his rookie infielders and put them through another whirlwind session that was still further enlivened by the presence of Artie Veltman.

Artie is the young rookie outfielder McGraw bought last Fall from Springfield. He was not expected to report until the arrival of the second squad, but he lives here, and though he managed to keep in hiding a few days, he was unable to resist the temptation any longer to step into a Giant uniform. Having only three rookie infielders on hand, Niehoff at once pressed Veltman into service and stuck him on third.

All further worries as to the whereabouts of Garland Buckeye ended today when Secretary Tierney received word from the home office in New York that Manager McGraw had handled this particular situation very adroitly. He released the big left-hander right back to Toledo.

NEW PORTABLE STANDS FOR PRINCETON FIELD

Work Has Started to Replace Old Wooden Bleachers in Right Field by Steel Structure.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 18.—Work has been commenced to replace the old wooden bleacher seats in the right field of University Field here by portable steel stands of a capacity for 4,000 people. The construction will be completed in time for the annual commencement baseball game with Yale this June, it was announced today.

A brick wall 400 feet long is being built behind the stands as a continuation of the wall around the field. The total cost of this work is estimated at $50,000.

During the football season these stands will be taken from University Field and placed in the open end of Palmer Memorial Stadium to provide for the extra seating capacity necessary during the big games.

Swarthmore Girls Drill.

Special to The New York Times.

SWARTHMORE, Pa., Feb. 18.—Coach Betty Lanning sent her Swarthmore College women's basketball team through a short practice this afternoon in preparation for its game with the Slippery Rock teachers team here tomorrow. Swarthmore, undefeated in four years, is aiming for its thirty-first straight victory.

BROWN BATTERY MEN OUT.

Report to Coach Dubuc for First Practice of Season.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 18.—Brown's battery candidates reported to Coach Jean Dubuc for their first practice today in the Brown cage. Daily practice will be continued for the pitchers and catchers until the remainder of the squad reports on March 1.

Sam Flora, pitcher, and Dave Shanosky, catcher, have been declared ineligible and their loss is expected to handicap the team considerably, as they were counted upon to carry the brunt of the battery work.

George Rawlings, a senior, is the principal hurling candidate and unless unexpected talent develops will carry the assignment in Brown's major games.

M'GRAW ON RETURN DENIES GIANTS' SALE

READY FOR PENNANT DRIVE

Will Depart Late in Week for San Antonio Training Camp—Van Pelt of Yankees Missing.

John J. McGraw, manager of the Giants, returned yesterday from Havana, mainly, as he put it, to dispel the rumor that he was figuring in some manner in a sale of the Giants. The Giants' chieftain looked bronzed and in excellent health as he sat in the Giants' office and gathered in some of the details of his job which have been lying dormant in his absence.

"I played a lot of golf in Havana," he said, "and feel better than I have in years. But play is over for the season so far as I am concerned. I intend to leave late in the week for San Antonio to join the players there, and from then on it will be a case of making a drive for the pennant. You know, it is just about time I won one."

McGraw's keen desire to spike the report of the sale of the Giants, in which his name has been mentioned as one of the negotiators for the purchasing parties, was evident by the manner in which he followed up his early morning arrival.

Within half an hour after he reached the Giants' office, a few minutes after 10 o'clock, he had sent communications to every newspaper in town that he was anxious to express an opinion regarding the rumored sale.

No Desire for Sale.

"I might have gone right on to San Antonio," he asserted, "but I wanted to show up here and give personal denial to the sale. In the first place if there is any sale Mr. Stoneham will have to make it, because he owns the club, not I. In the second place, despite the annual and even more frequent disposal of the club and the talk that I desire such a sale, et cetera, et cetera, there is no truth in it. I hope that's settled for a time at least.

"Right now I am more interested in the chances of the Giants to win the pennant and I think, so far as I can judge, that they are good. Of course, I can't make any definite analysis of the club until I get on the ground. We will have our problems, no doubt, in both the infield and the outfield, but they will be ironed out in good time."

On the subject of the pennant race Mr. Graw was loath to make any predictions that might bind him too soundly. Asked regarding the chances of the Chicago Cubs, who have been fortified by the addition of Rogers Hornsby, McGraw declared that he saw no reason why Hornsby's acquisition would not be a benefit if Rogers and McCarthy pulled along together.

Regarding trades, he disclaimed any such deal pending and switched the subject to Jack Cummings, his big catcher, who he believes, will be a great help to the club now that his arm is in better shape than it was last year.

Yankees Seek Van Pelt.

At the same time, a trifle west of the Giants' quarters another mystery was brewing. This was in the offices of the Yankees. There has been a mystery there for some days regarding the whereabouts of Floyd Van Pelt, pitcher, of West Point, Ga.

It seems that this young man, secured from Montgomery last Spring and released back to that club after a Spring trial, was deemed to have sufficient promise for another test, so that in the course of events a contract was mailed to him this Winter. But no word has come from him and a hurried exchange of telegrams between Barrow and points in Georgia yesterday revealed the fact that Floyd cannot be located.

Alekhine Accepts Invitation To Play in Exhibitions Here

It was announced here yesterday that Dr. Alexander Alekhine, world's chess champion, had accepted the invitation of the Manhattan Chess Club to play a number of exhibition matches here lasting a week during March. Alekhine expects to sail from Cherbourg on March 9 and will remain in the United States for two months. During this time he will tour.

RUTGERS STARTS BASEBALL.

Nine Battery Aspirants Report to Captain Troiano of Brooklyn.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Feb. 18.—Nine candidates for the Rutgers varsity baseball team reported for the first battery practice session in Ballantine Gymnasium today and went through a series of loosening up exercises. Five of the squad who reported to Captain Peter Troiano of Brooklyn are pitchers.

The battery candidates will hold daily workouts in the gymnasium until March 4, when Coach Fred Jacklitsch will take charge. The squad later will be augmented by Dick Boetteher, Tex Rosen and Joe Walker, veterans, who are playing basketball, and Joe Irwin and Tony Blasi.

DUTCH MASTERS

SMOKE TALKS by the DUTCH MASTERS

Men who really like tobacco, want to get as close to it as possible. That accounts for the popularity of cigars. The better the tobacco, the more they enjoy getting close to it. And that accounts for the popularity of Dutch Masters cigars.

Why is it that most successful men are cigar smokers? There must be some pretty close connection between the calming influence of a good cigar and that clear, calm thinking which brings success.

Contrary to the belief of many smokers the color of a cigar is no indication of its mildness. The best assurance of always getting a mild smoke is to stick to a mild brand—like Dutch Masters.

Among gentlemen the proffer and acceptance of a cigar is an exchange of courtesies that puts both the giver and the recipient at his ease.

GOLDEN MAC BEATS RUANE BY 8 LENGTHS

MARSHAL SETH TRIUMPHS

Easily Defeats My Hobby at New Orleans—Rain Leaves Track in Cuppy Condition.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 18.—Jockey R. Deprema scored a triple at the Jefferson Park track here today, including two outstanding races in his winning rides. With Golden Mac he rode to victory in the Lecompte Purse and also piloted Marshal Seth home first in the Strangler Lewis Purse. He was up on Maxie in the nightcap.

Golden Mac's triumph was a repetition of his form last Saturday when he galloped home an easy winner. This afternoon eight lengths divided him from the second horse, which was Ruane, while Manazana took the short end of the purse.

Golden Mac was well played, paying $6.60 for a $2 ticket in the mutuels, but Ruane was the favorite and looked good for a few strides in the stretch. Ruane took the lead after lagging in the early running and came on with a show of gameness to head Oregon Fir.

But further back, Deprema had Golden Mac under restraint and he set him down and brought him around the field to dash to the front so easily that Ruane was hopelessly distanced.

Deprema Eases Mount.

So decisive was the victory that at the close Deprema was easing his mount, which is owned by Mrs. J. H. Buscher and trained by Mr. Buscher. The time was 1:53 2-5 for the mile and seventy yards over a heavy track.

On Marshal Seth Deprema had a three-length margin at the end of the Strangler Lewis Purse. My Hobby was a strong contender all the way and took the place four lengths in front of Pretty Pose.

Marshal Seth was the favorite, and he set the form players at ease by going right to the front. In the first quarter Pretty Pose was running right alongside, but not for long, as Deprema shook up his mount. At the half-mile mark Marhal Seth was two lengths in front, but My Hobby was beginning to threaten and Deprema called on Marshal Seth for a drive.

It was still a long way from home, but the jockey never let up on the pace and Marshal Seth withstood the long drive gamely. His time of 1:20 2-5 for the six furlongs was slow, even considering the heavy track. He paid $4.80.

Maxie Rewards Backers at $11.60.

Deprema's third success paid Maxie backers best of all, as tickets on Maxie in the last race were redeemable for $11.60. Maxie had good handling and defeated Atelia, with Kent L. third.

The bad weather that has been making a quagmire of the racing strip caused its first mishap in competition in the Strangler Lewis Purse when Corbeau stepped in a hole and fell. The jockey was not hurt, nor was the horse, so far as could be learned.

The track has been very cuppy following the continued rain, and even the best efforts of the management to keep it in condition are partially frustrated. Corbeau is owned and trained by W. H. Fizer.

LAUND LINDBERGH WINS COLLIE PRIZE

Mrs. Ilch's Entry Defeats Kennel-Mate, Bell Haven Bo-Peep, in Hartford Show.

KOBI II BEST TOY SPANIEL

Mrs. Crome's Dog Is Exhibited in Fine Condition—Greenacre Ah Ling Triumphs Easily.

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Feb. 18.—The annual Winter show of the First Company Governor's Foot Guard Athletic Association opened this morning in the High Street armory with more than four hundred dogs on the benches. Mrs. Ilch did not show her famous Garden winner in collies, but went to the top of the breed with her noted Laund Lindbergh of Bell Haven, which defeated his kennelmate, Bell Haven Bo-Peep.

There was a fair showing of cocker spaniels, best of breed going to that well-known bitch, Mepal's Naiad, shown by the Mepal Kennels of New Marlboro, Mass.

Mrs. Jarvis found a very nice specimen among the toy spaniels in Kobi II, shown by Mrs. Ethel M. Crome of Hartford, which was put down in great condition and easily went to the top. That great show chow Greenacre Ah Ling, which went to best in the Garden, easily was best of the exhibit here.

NEW ADDITION TO DAILY DOZEN

Add a Shave With Squibb's to the Morning Routine

You tumble out of bed in the morning. . . . Yawn and stretch . . . and do your daily dozen—maybe! Be sure not to spoil the start of an otherwise perfect day by an irritating battle with your beard. Just daub a bit of Squibb's Shaving Cream on your brush. Then, your face, too, will feel as stimulated and as fresh as your muscles. For Squibb's is a splendid shave, a skin tonic, and a world of wholesome face comfort, all packed in one tube.

Notice the easy, smooth way the razor cuts through your beard when you use Squibb's. Notice, too, the fresh, clean look of your face. Never a stray hair to mar its smoothness.

And your skin will feel healthy and glowing all day long.

The House of Squibb spent four years in perfecting Squibb's Shaving Cream, before it was ever marketed. Four years of study and experiment to make the finest, pleasantest shaving cream science could produce.

Your razor blades will last much longer. Squibb's absorbs most of the work before the razor touches your face.

You're missing a lot, if you haven't tried Squibb's. Every drug store carries it at the price of 40c for a large tube.

MISS VAN WIE WINS PALM BEACH MEDAL

Leads Large Field in Qualifying Round of Florida Title Play With 39, 41—80.

TWO ARE TIED FOR SECOND

Miss Hicks and Mrs. Sterrett Two Strokes Behind—Mrs. Reinhardt Fourth With 83.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 18.—Miss Virginia Van Wie of Chicago, runner-up for the national championship last Summer, captured the qualifying medal today in the annual Florida championship tourney for the new Mrs. Flagler trophy at the Palm Beach Country Club.

She led a field of approximately seventy-five starters with a score of 39, 41—80, beating Miss Helen Hicks and Mrs. H. D. Sterrett, who were tied for second, by two strokes.

In fourth place was Mrs. S. L. Reinhardt of Chicago, who as Miss Elaine V. Rosenthal was runner-up to Mrs. H. Arnold Jackson for the national championship in 1914. She registered an 83.

Miss Van Wie already holds two legs on the new Mrs. Flagler Cup. The original trophy was won outright by Miss Glenna Collett in 1925. Last year, in the same event, Miss Van Wie tied for medalist honors with Miss Maureen Orcutt at 77 strokes. A disastrous seven on the fourteen 386-yard par four hole today prevented her from breaking 80. The fourteenth also proved troublesome to the other low scorers, Miss Hicks also taking a 7. Last week Miss Hicks won the Miami championship, losing only seven holes in four matches, after winning the qualifying round with a 78.

POLLOCK'S 73 TAKES BELLEAIR GOLF MEDAL

BELLEAIR HEIGHTS, Fla., Feb. 18.—Jules Pollock of West Virginia today won the medal in the annual Belleair Washington's Birthday tournament with a 73, three strokes above par. Pollock played a consistent game, reaching the turn in 36 and coming back in 37.

Three strokes back of the leader was Henry J. Topping of the Greenwich Country Club, with a pair of 38's for a 76, and in the third position came Robert A. Stranahan of the Inverness Country Club with a 77.

J. B. Ryerson of Cooperstown, N. Y., was next with 78, while the only other players to score below 80 were Clayton Wall of Oshkosh, Wis., and Garret A. Hobart of the Arcola Country Club, who both had 79.

Block Victor in Bahamas Golf.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

THE witness, being duly sworn, deposed that his name was John J. McGraw, that he resided at Pelham, N. Y., and that he was by occupation the manager of a baseball team known as the Giants. The examination then proceeded as follows:

Q.—What are you doing in this city?

A.—I'm sitting in a chair and wishing I were back in Havana.

Q.—When did you get here and how?

A.—I left Havana Saturday at 3 P. M. and flew to Miami in one hour and fifty-five minutes. Then I came North on the train. Got in this morning.

Q.—Ever fly to or from Cuba before?

A.—Certainly, but not to Miami. Made seven round trips in planes from Cuba to Key West. I was a regular commuter.

Q.—Did you know that you sold the Giants while you were away?

A.—I heard about it. The Giants have been sold only three times this Winter. I don't know what makes business so slow. In a good brisk Winter they used to sell the Giants twice a week regularly.

Q.—Did you know that you were seen in New York when you were in Havana?

A.—I heard about that, too. But I believe the story was exaggerated.

Just a Dream.

Q.—Did you know that you had bought the Waner boys from the Pirates?

A.—That's a beautiful dream. I wish it were true. How much did I pay for them, by the way?

Q.—How was the racing at Oriental Park?

A.—The racing was good, but the crowd didn't seem to have as much money to spend as usual.

Q.—Did you dig up any ball players in Cuba?

A.—I saw one infielder named Alfonso. Just a youngster, but he looks good to me. I'll probably give him a trial next year.

Q.—What about the hold-outs on the Giants?

A.—I doubt that we have any. We have come to terms with Jimmy Welsh. We expect to hear favorably from Fred Leach by tomorrow. And Garland Buckeye has been released to Toledo. When we hear from Leach, the slate will be clean.

Q.—You have Ray Schalk listed as an active player. Do you expect him to do any catching this year?

A.—I hardly think so. Hogan will do most of the catching. If Cummings's arm is all right, you'll see that youngster breaking into the line-up rather frequently. He can hit that ball.

The Second-Base Problem.

Q.—Who is going to play second base for the Giants this year?

A.—I don't know just now. Reese and Cohen will have to settle that.

Q.—Would you say that Reese was in the lead on last year's showing?

A.—No, I wouldn't. But you can if you want to. I'd just say that our second baseman will be a fellow named Andy.

Q.—What about your outfield?

A.—I believe it can be arranged. But I haven't got the details settled in my mind, yet.

Q.—What will you do against left-handed pitching?

A.—I wish I knew.

A.—If you mean Roush, Welsh, Leach and Ott, they are. But Tony Kaufman, Fullis and Veltman are right-handed hitters. They may come through. You never can tell.

Q.—What about Pat Crawford, the infielder from Toledo?

A.—The boys in the association tell me that it will be a hard job keeping him out of the regular line-up. He's a first baseman and a third baseman; plays both positions, but not at the same time, of course. If he can beat out either Terry or Lindstrom, I'll say he's good.

The Pitching Staff.

Q.—How many games will Hubbell win for you this year?

A.—Oh, maybe eighteen; maybe twenty. And maybe not. It's hard to say.

Q.—What about Dutch Henry?

A.—He got his little lesson last year and should do better. I hear he's working hard and full of pepper at San Antonio.

Q.—What about Bill Walker?

A.—Too bad about Walker. I see he's got the flu again. That was what spoiled his chances of sticking with the club last year. If he gets over it quickly and regains his strength, I look for him to come through for us.

Q.—What about Carl Mays?

A.—He was in Miami when I passed through. I talked with him on the phone, and he told me he was in great shape.

Q.—You are counting on Benton to win one or two games for you, aren't you?

A.—Yes; one or two a week.

An Open Race.

Q.—What do you think of the other clubs in the league?

A.—Looks like a wide open race to me. The Cubs, Pirates and Cardinals have strong teams, and the Reds have a good club, too. We'll be in there somewhere. The Robins and the Phillies have been strengthened. I don't know about the Braves.

Q.—Why did you shift the training camp back to San Antonio?

A.—Mainly for business reasons. When the slump came in Florida you couldn't draw anything at the gate. We'll do better in those Texas towns and on the trip up the Mississippi Valley.

Q.—Do you think the climate in Texas is better for training purposes?

A.—Well, it's higher ground and a dry climate. Florida is all right as far as the training goes, but it's quite a change from the tropical climate there to the kind of weather we usually run into when we come North. Sometimes that leads to colds and stiffened muscles.

Q.—What did you do for exercise when you were in Cuba?

A.—I played golf almost every day.

Q.—What score did you make?

A.—The weather was beautiful.

Q.—To repeat: What score did you make?

A.—Very pretty place, Havana.

Q.—Will you let Judge Landis take evidence on your proficiency at golf?

A.—Yes, at San Antonio, but not for more than ten cents a hole.

The witness was excused.

O'CONNOR'S 74 TOPS MIAMI QUALIFIERS

Long Islander Scores 2 Birdies in City Title Tourney—Chase Is Second With a 76.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 18.—George O'Connor of the Southampton (L. I.) Golf Club carried off medal honors today in the 18-hole qualifying test for the Miami championship on the links of the Country Club here. The metropolitan entrant made the round in 38, 36—74, two over par. Lee Chase, former New York State amateur titleholder, was second with 76.

Players from the New York area dominated the first division. Close behind Chase were Linus (Pony) McAtee, the jockey; J. A. Boyle, a fellow New Yorker, and J. W. West of Atlanta, each of whom scored a 77. The veteran Dan Healy of the Salisbury links scored 79.

O'Connor started with a six, his only bad hole of the entire round. He had a chance for par or better for the eighteen holes, but missed short putts on the third, seventeenth and eighteenth. He got a birdie 3 on the fourth, and a birdie deuce on the eleventh, coming back in par 36.

Match play will start tomorrow in eight flights.

CONGESTED LAWMAKING.

Tied-up legislation is as conspicuous, if not as dangerous, in Washington as is tied-up traffic in the streets of New York. With less than two weeks left of the session, Congress will be able to do little more than pass the appropriation bills. Every contested measure will be talked out or postponed. The Chairman of the Rules Committee of the House of Representatives informed President COOLIDGE yesterday that there is no hope of passing the bill authorizing railroad consolidation, strongly favored though it has been by the President. Muscle Shoals legislation will again fall by the way. If the Senate, as is probable, passes the Jones bill for stiffening the Volstead penalties, it will die in the House, so reports Representative SNELL, who assumes to speak for the "real friends of prohibition," and they, he declares, are against making punishment more severe. The outlook is therefore that there will be a lot of talk before March 4, but little done in the way of lawmaking.

This was the most sagacious forecast made for this session of Congress when it began last December. Yet there were many rosy predictions of much useful legislation. There was to be passed a farm relief bill, satisfactory to all. Senator MCNARY, speaking, as always, for the farmers, was confident that it would be done. Then we were to have a nice little tinkering with the tariff, moderate enough and prudent enough not to disturb business, and preventing, along with the act for farm relief, the need of an extra session. But all these bright hopes have fallen in a heap. The old tendencies, the inveterate limitations of Congress in the short session have again been displayed. The early benevolent desire to do a great deal so choked the legislative highways with bills that very few of them could get through to their destination. It even looked for a time as if one or two of the bills providing the money necessary to carry on the government would fail of passage; but the latest report is that all the appropriations are safe, or will be before the session closes.

There is no occasion to hurl reproaches at a do-nothing Congress. Things left undone can at least do no positive harm. Only the customary and expected has happened in this short session. It has not brought the millennium perceptibly nearer. That easy and glorious work is left for the new Congress, soon to be summoned in extraordinary session by the new President. Mr. HOOVER, as a great engineer, is counted upon to develop methods of traffic control in Congress which will make all run smooth. However, it would be just like some of the old Congressional chauffeurs to disobey the rules and make the Capitol again a scene of congestion.

HELPING NEW YORK'S HOMES.

Among the recommendations in Governor ROOSEVELT'S budget message is that support be given to an item of $475,000 to build the main central unit for a new Home Economics building at Cornell University. Last year, estimates made at the direction of Governor SMITH showed that the cost was just under a million dollars. A bill appropriating this sum has been introduced in both houses of the Legislature.

The need of this new College of Home Economics is due to the success of the work it has been doing in recent years. The demands for admission to its courses are so great that it is impossible to meet them. Furthermore, the progress of experimental work which the college has been carrying on has been so encouraging that it is desirable to enlarge it. The Cornell authorities, the State Board of Regents and the Commissioner of Education have all recognized the need for more space and for more funds.

The New York State College of Home Economics has filled a great need in New York. In the rural regions, especially, many families until recently were unable to keep up with changing social and living conditions. They were out of touch with modern developments, and were worried by the apparent tendency of the homes to break up. The movement of the young people to the cities was, of course, old. But the changed living conditions which resulted from the easy and cheap use of automobiles, electricity and mechanical devices began to alter the entire social outlook. To the College of Home Economics fell the opportunity of making a scientific study of home problems, and of reaching out into the homes to help improve home conditions. Emphasis was laid on cooking, on the care of children, on the interior arrangement of the home, and on elementary hygiene.

Under the leadership of Miss MARTHA VAN RENSSELAER this work attracted attention from the beginning. She saw that it filled a need that was not alone economic. Her intimate knowledge of thousands of homes throughout the State had convinced her that there were deeper things at stake—that the discontent, the restlessness, the maladjustments between the generations were in part due to unsatisfactory home conditions. These, in turn, she felt were the result of ignorance and prejudice. Her sound experience led her to believe that by removing these obstacles better spiritual as well as economic conditions could be brought about, that by correcting errors of diet, by helping to make the house more attractive, by showing how economies could be effected at the same time that comforts were increased, it would be possible to make the home more satisfactory to live in.

Today the work of the College of Home Economics and of the Home Bureau is effective throughout the State. Hundreds of former students have gone out to help spread the new gospel of better living. But the work is still in its infancy. Before it can expand and meet the steadily growing demands from all parts of the State it must have further support.

OUR BARBAROUS JAILS.

Not often does one come across such unpleasant reading as the report of a subcommittee of the National Crime Commission called "Propagating Crime Through the Jail and Other Institutions for Short-Term Offenders." Former Governor LOWDEN is chairman of this subcommittee, among whose members are former Governor WHITMAN and Mr. CLARK HOWARD. Not all the evidence quoted is of the same year, but all is recent; too recent, it would seem, to hope that the conditions have been changed. There are what are supposed to be typical details from eleven States. We shall cite only those that come from official documents and relating to institutions in States peculiarly "progressive."

Thus in Iowa, in a very large number of county jails, there was in 1912 no separate compartment for women and no segregation of first offenders save by confinement in a cell, which is no check on communication. There was no real productive labor. The county jail was just a school of idleness, degrading association, vice, "the most vicious and corrupt "agency connected with our penal "system." In 1918 it was "conceded by all who know jail conditions that the Kansas jails are "crime schools and crime breeders." In California in 1916 young offenders were not separated from the older:

Taking the State as a whole, one-half of our county jails are dark and poorly ventilated; one-third have inadequate bathing facilities; one-third are at some time in the year overcrowded; five-sixths are violating the State law as to segregation.

In 1928 the California jails are in the same condition, except that they "are twelve years older and much more crowded and foul-smelling." In the majority of the Wisconsin county jails in 1921 children were detained in company with adult criminals. The food was poor and scanty; sanitation bad, no provision for the sick. We have purposely avoided the worst cases and suspected, perhaps unduly, the enthusiasm of unofficial writers. According to the report, the jail conditions cited "are but samples "drawn at random from the forty-"eight States." There are 102 Federal prisons, State prisons, reformatories. There are some 3,500 local penal institutions. In the first six months of 1923 86.6 per cent of all commitments were to these county and municipal jails, workhouses and so on.

State prisons have been greatly improved. The infamous "Old Prison" in Connecticut was but the worst representative of the prevailing system. England placed her local penal institutions under State control fifty years ago. The subcommittee asks that the several States assume control. With its arguments and proposals we have not now to deal. If for no other consideration than that of patronage, such a project is likely to be slow in coming. We merely present at its mildest a picture disturbing to the national self-complacency.

RESTORATION OF WAKEFIELD.

The reproduction of the house in which GEORGE WASHINGTON was born, which the generosity of Mr. ROCKEFELLER seems to assure, will be a mansion. The WASHINGTON'S were landed gentry, and in their migration to Virginia at a time when CROMWELL was making Northamptonshire warm for Stuart Royalists they probably managed to take some of the family fortune with them. When the first President was born his father was already a man of at least three estates.

For a time in America's most romantic period it was a delight to show the drawing of a modest cottage at Wakefield as proof that WASHINGTON, like LINCOLN, was a child of the poor. While his strain of gentility was conceded, a certain amount of necessitous hardship was inferred. But it is much more to his credit that, though he was of aristocratic birth, he sought adventure by flood, field and battle. Yet it was once considered imperative that schoolboys should believe every President to have begun in the quasi-log-cabin stage. JEFFERSON was passed over lightly as a sort of literary person and therefore not ruined by inherited comforts.

It now develops that the reproduction of Wakefield House will show one of those lovely old brick manor-houses, some of which in Virginia are today inhabited by rich owners from New York. Chatham, across the Rappahannock from Fredericksburg, is another such place as Wakefield was, and throughout the Tidewater the pleasant meads and rolling woods are agreeable settings for these charming Colonial houses. They represent the best mood of American architecture, and—as witness the great restoration movement at Williamsburg—modern good taste has seen fit to preserve them. In Virginia even the creeks and villages have the same names they had when GEORGE WASHINGTON knew them. In his childhood Wakefield House faced Pope's Creek, and Pope's Creek it is still. If a town was called Lone Tree in Virginia in 1700, it is not Sentinel Oak now. Regrettably, this proud and sensible interest in the past has not everywhere prevailed; and almost every day a newspaper somewhere records a legislative act or town ordinance changing a good old name to a silly new one.

The older the nation grows, the more it appreciates the essential qualities of the inflexible man who was born at Wakefield House. And the more it applauds such acts as Mr. ROCKEFELLER'S to preserve all possible memorials of his extraordinarily useful life.

KEEPING CHIVALRY ALIVE.

In raising a fund of £50,000 for the restoration of St. George's Chapel, Windsor, dedicated to the memory of the Knights of the Garter, General GREEN, who commanded Jacob's Horse in the World War, has undertaken to trace living descendants of the knights and ask them for contributions. As EDWARD III established the order nearly 600 years ago, and as the number honored has been 660, all of whose names are inscribed on the stalls of the chapel, thousands of descendants are living in the British Isles, the colonies and in other parts of the world. Of his method of inquiry General GREEN says:

We have access to certain lists which assist us, and, of course, those reference books giving pedigrees and facts about country gentlemen and landed gentry also help very much. With the passing of years some branches of the once noble and distinguished families tend to become both obscure and poor.

There must be many descendants who have escaped the genealogists altogether. General GREEN has discovered a small tenant farmer, the son of a butcher, near Belfast, who is a descendant of a Knight of the Garter. In South Wales a cobbler bends over his work who can claim a similar distinction. His family has been traced back to a time prior to the founding of the order. And there are other obscure and lowly people who have some of the best blood in England in their veins, and who may contribute a shilling or so to restore the chapel of the Knights of the Garter. Lord WOOLAVINGTON originally gave £50,000 to acquire the fabric of the chapel. To restore and maintain it the same amount was needed. Descendants in good circumstances are giving liberally. Contributors' names are to be engraved on a special Garter Roll, which will be placed in the chapel.

Gifts are even crossing the sea from the United States, where General GREEN has discovered the Order of Runnymede. It was instituted in 1898 to perpetuate the memory of the men who wrung Magna Charta from King JOHN. Members must be lineal descendants of one of the twenty-five barons who were sureties for the observance of the Magna Charta statutes, or of those "who were unfailing in their loyalty to the cause before or in the year 1215." Members have joined in the movement to preserve St. George's Chapel, and presumably they are descendants of Knights of the Garter, whose line began in the following century.

FINGERS IN THE CENSUS PIE.

Senator REED of Pennsylvania is filled with righteous indignation about the way in which the Federal Census Bureau is getting ready to handle the forthcoming decennial census. It seems that Director STEUART, being a forehanded gentleman, has been in correspondence with some of those who helped him take the enumeration nine years ago to see if they would be willing to serve again. Now, nine years takes us back to 1920. That was, in Mr. REED'S view, a different era altogether—one of Democratic darkness. Director STEUART'S circular letter happened to be addressed to some of the children of darkness in Pennsylvania. But that State's apostle of light at once wrote a letter to Mr. STEUART, which Senator BRUCE refrains from describing as "bulldozing" or "bullyragging" only because "those might be deemed unparliamentary expressions." It is sufficient to say that Mr. REED winds up his letter as follows:

I will not consent under any circumstances to the arbitrary reappointment by the Census Bureau of Democratic political appointees employed in connection with the 1920 census, nor do I think this will be countenanced by the President-elect or my colleagues in Congress.

Explanation of Senator REED'S indignation may be found in the necessities of the forthcoming enumeration. In the course of a speech taking his colleague to task for his attitude, Senator BRUCE reveals that the taking of the census will require the services of 375 supervisors, 9,000 or 10,000 supervising clerks, special agents and interpreters, and from 90,000 to 95,000 enumerators—"a "wonderful morsel indeed for the "voracious maw of the old spoils "system." Mr. BRUCE would put them all under the wing of the Civil Service Commission. Senator FESS mildly rises to suggest that it might be difficult to recruit so many temporary appointees through the ordinary process of examination. The commission itself thinks that what it did in 1910 it can do again in 1930. Exceptions could always be made where examinations were found impracticable.

"SUMMA CUM LAUDE."

A graduate of Harvard, now a Justice of the United States District Court in Massachusetts, has found a new standard of success—at any rate for college men. "Who's Who" is, he thinks, too hospitable in its welcome, for it includes a wide range of authors as well as men in teaching and in the ministry, "some of "whom have slight claim to distinc-"tion." Phi Beta Kappa is rather a "who's who" of expectation. The new standard has its basis in a study of Harvard graduates.

The standard is nomination for the Board of Overseers of Harvard College. Such a selection is based upon the judgment of a component group consisting of men of varied occupations: bankers, professors, writers, business men, scientists, journalists, ministers, manufacturers, agriculturists, artists. These nominations have been examined over a period of years, in which there has been a changing personnel of voters. It is not claimed that these are America's "Academicians," but only that they as a class of considerable size (there have been 386 nominees in twenty-one years) have succeeded pre-eminently according to the estimate of a highly cultivated electorate.

The inquiry concerns itself, however, with the college records of these nominees. The results show that while the men who got "plain degrees" (74 per cent of the total number) were at a disadvantage relatively, the "cum laude" degree men were at a very great advantage and the "magna cum laude" candidates at considerable advantage. The one surprise is that the "summa cum laude" men were at the greatest disadvantage; that is, the men at the very peak of honors as students had not as good a chance of nomination to the Board of Overseers as had even the plain-degree men. The conclusion which the contributor to The Harvard Alumni Bulletin reaches is that the qualities which are associated with high scholarship are not only "not ad-"vantageous in competitive life, but "are a positive hindrance and draw-"back."

This may be the case; but one is not ready to admit that the qualities associated with fine scholarship do not after all make the greater contribution and promise a higher success than is indicated for those who have succeeded in "the world of affairs." We are disposed to think with Professor ZECHARIAH CHAFEE Jr. that a margin of thirty-seven one-hundredths of 1 per cent (the disadvantage at which the "summa" man is placed) is "a "small fraction to make a brilliant "young man alter his ideals and "decline to put the best possible "cutting edge on his mind." Even if he lessened the likelihood of becoming an overseer by getting a "summa," it is a chance worth taking.

GRADING PUBLIC SPEAKERS.

It has been said that oratory is necessarily a dying art, what with the mechanical methods now in use for transmitting human thought. If so, it has gained at least a little respite through the action of Mrs. CHAUNCEY DEPEW, who has just endowed a chair of oratory in memory of her husband. She has been listening assiduously to United States Senators, and it is difficult not to suspect that somewhere lurking in her mind was the memory of speeches which could have been improved. Doubtless, a speaker does not have the opportunity that he used to enjoy before radio began to duplicate his voice in a million pairs of ears. A large part of an orator's effect is gained through his personal appearance and manner, his charm, magnetism or whatever the thing is which attracts and holds the attention of a multitude. Until television is perfected, more than half of the speaker's impression must be lost. Meanwhile, George Washington University, thanks to Mrs. DEPEW, will be able to train orators.

Teachers of public speaking have lately been discussing how to rate oratory. Their arguments, appearing in The Quarterly Journal of Speech, all take into account appearance and manner of delivery. In fact, the debate is not so much on what should be considered as how the speaker should be graded. One school believes that a teacher is handicapped in judging the work of pupils or even full-fledged orators if a rating scale or any kind of scientific test is used. The objection is chiefly that using a scale requires so much attention that the listener's mind is not so free as it should be to consider the address itself. Scales used and advocated by those who believe in them consist of a series of questions. Their opponents say that the attempt to break up the speech into elements will destroy their relationship, which is often the most important thing.

The rating scales in use by FRANKLIN H. KNOWER of the University of Minnesota are made up of questions which would naturally occur to any intelligent auditor. He might not deliberately ask himself, "Does the "speech move and is it easy to fol-"low?" but the answer would be in his mind. Ordinary audiences do not rate a speaker consciously, but they could easily reply to any of the questions in the list. They know by their own fatigue or lack of it whether the orator responds to them, if he "has taken adequate consideration of his personal appearance" for the occasion or if he has distracting mannerisms.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

"Public Office Is a Public Trust."

To fix the absolutely original source of well-known sayings is apt to be a slippery business. This is proved again by a letter from a TIMES reader, assigning the pedigree of "public office is a public trust." Our correspondent quotes Mr. CHARLES WILLIS THOMPSON, in an article of the preceding Sunday, as saying that the author of the phrase is not known. He agrees that Mr. CLEVELAND, with whom the phrase is commonly associated, was not its author, but he produces as its actual originator WILLIAM C. HUDSON, who in 1884 was a staff writer on The Brooklyn Eagle and who used the phrase as title for a campaign document of his own on CLEVELAND.

The reminiscence is doubtless accurate. Yet a glance even at Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations" shows that the saying "public office is a public trust" was used by ABRAM S. HEWITT in 1883 and by DORMAN B. EATON in 1881, that CHARLES SUMNER had in 1872 remarked in a public speech that "the phrase public office is a public trust has of late become public property," and that JOHN C. CALHOUN had said in 1832 that the "essence of a free government consists in considering public offices as public trusts." The old New York Sun used these facts editorially in the campaign of 1884 to taunt Mr. CLEVELAND with plagiarism.

BARTLETT'S investigation of the pedigree stopped with CALHOUN; yet CALHOUN was by no means the originator of the phrase. A decade earlier MACAULAY wrote in his "Essay on Walpole" of "the English doctrine that all power is a trust for the public good," and CHARLES JAMES FOX told Parliament in 1788 that "all political power is a trust." When a famous saying can be traced as far back as that the judicious investigator will conclude that it is probably much older. Mr. THOMPSON did not say that the authorship of "public office is a public trust" is unknown; but if he had said it he would have been correct.

An Irruption of Wolves.

European husbandry is at least 2,000 years older than American, and the density of population in Europe is nearly ten times that in North America, but there are still wild places in the older Continent for wolves to issue from and threaten the villages under the menace of a bitter Winter.

Things are not so bad as in FRANÇOIS VILLON'S time, when the very suburbs of Paris were raided by wolves; but one wonders where in the little land of Belgium, farmed since before CAESAR'S times and crowded with factory chimneys, there is shelter for the feral life that last week's "ice-age" drove into the open. While men have lived in the shadow of the Rocky Mountains a hundred years and in the shadow of the Carpathians three thousand years, but it seems not impossible that there are more wolves in ancient Central Europe than coyotes on our Western ranges.

Rivers and estuaries locked in ice, savage winds out of the chill Russian steppes breathing on Riviera palms, German swans frozen in their ponds, wolves droving for food—it is not the Ice Age but it is that Early Age enshrined in the writings of HANS CHRISTIAN ANDERSEN, the brothers GRIMM and Mother Goose. A continent heavy with victories over nature, old in so many things, in virtue and in sins, tired of so many things, has nevertheless retained something of its fresh childhood. It still has a few of Romulus and Remus's and Little Red Riding Hood's wolves and a great many of Lohengrin's swans.

An Interstate Airport.

While the Newark airport, opened on Sunday, is several miles from this city, it will be known as the Metropolitan Airport. Mail will be started from there, instead of from Hadley Field near New Brunswick. Near the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Newark location had been indicated by the Hoover Fact Finding Commission as one of the most desirable on its list. Commercial bodies in New York early declared in its favor.

Assistant Postmaster General GLOVER sees the time not far distant when all first-class mail matter addressed to New York City will be shot by pneumatic tubes from the Newark airport into the postoffice at Eighth Avenue and Thirty-third Street. A year ago the Newark field seemed to be little more than a dream of the late Mayor RAYMOND. Construction called for the filling in of marshes, but it was rapidly done.

The Newark airport is not finished, but it is ready for mail planes leaving for Boston, Montreal, Atlanta and the West. Only seventy of the 430 acres available are yet in use. When work was begun Newark had no positive assurance that the field would be accepted by companies that carry the mail. The program of Sunday, when twenty-five planes flown by well-known pilots took to the air, was educational for 40,000 Newarkers who looked on.

A Postoffice Revolt.

San Francisco will be the first to applaud the decision of Panama Postoffice officials to return to their senders all mail improperly addressed "C. Z." The Republic of Panama is a nation in its own right, and the cities of Panama and Colon are within its boundaries, not within those of the Canal Zone. The Panama Postoffice has long graciously accepted mail thus misaddressed, but now the Director has sent a circular to the twenty-one American countries announcing the new rule. Probably a long line of San Francisco postmasters have declined to deliver any mail addressed to "Frisco."

The towns of Cristobal and Balboa, and an extra station or two, are within the Canal Zone, but the other two were cities when Manhattan Island was a woods and there was nothing much anywhere on the continent save St. Augustine. In their time they have been under several flags, but since that morning when President ROOSEVELT read in the newspapers that the Republic of Panama had thrown off allegiance to Colombia they have been the population centres of a nation.

The rule to return the misaddressed mail is announced as final. But probably not even the proud Señor who is in charge of the Republic's postoffice would have sent back a wrongly marked letter if it had been found in the mail-bag dropped from the skies by Colonel LINDBERGH.

Pierce Also "Affirmed."

By Telegraph to the Editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE TIMES'S Washington dispatch states that Hoover will be the first President to take the oath of office using the constitutional alternative "I affirm" instead of "I swear."

If our study of American history at Cornell University has had no other value, it has at least given an acquaintance with some of the authorities on this subject. James Ford Rhodes in his "History of the United States," Volume I, page 384, says of President Pierce: "When he took the oath he did not, as is customary, use the word swear, but accepted the constitutional alternative which permitted him to affirm that he would faithfully execute the office of President of the United States."

The Jefferson Manuscript.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When the Jefferson manuscript referred to in Arthur Gulterman's letter to THE TIMES was discovered two important facts claimed my attention. First, that it was a poem; second, that it was actually in the handwriting of the great statesman himself. Neither of these two facts has been affected by the interesting information from Mr. Gulterman. I cheerfully acknowledge his helpful service, for he has not only cleared up any confusing or mistaken reports regarding the manuscript, but has also correctly stated that the stanzas were taken from the old "Ballad of Valentine and Ursine," to be found in "Reliques of Ancient English Poetry," first published in 1765.

It may be of interest to announce that the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation will have the manuscript on exhibition Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 19, at the Hotel Plaza.

USELESS QUESTIONINGS.

It is too far a journey for the mind
To trace beginnings and to seek the ends
Of all the ways that brought us here, the trends
That take us hence. It were, perhaps, less kind
So to reveal the barren source, the blind
And bleak eventual retreat, that friends
Of life should estimate the dividends,
And know too well what had been half divined.
We live like music on a failing breath,
Awakened from a silence but to tell
A single note in some long madrigal
Which may be praise of life or praise of death,
Awakened from a silence but to swell
A hymn, unmeaning, proud and prodigal.

ELIMINATING WAR DEBTS.

It Is Suggested That They Be Offset Against German Reparations.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A plan that will practically eliminate the huge war debts of the Allies by offsetting them against a like amount of Germany's reparations, if as feasible as it appears, possesses enormous advantages, actual and potential, to warrant consideration at this time and before the Committee of Experts now convened at Berlin go far in their investigations and report on German reparations. This plan, roughly, is as follows:

1. Germany to issue reparation bonds of approved form, security, maturities and other requirements equal in amount to the Allies' war debts, at present values, to the United States and England.

2. These bonds to be delivered to the Allies, prorated as agreed.

3. Each respective ally to endorse or otherwise guarantee its share of these bonds, principal and interest. To reduce the risk of each and increase the security in event of default by Germany, the ally and Germany can agree to share in such defaulted payment without affecting the liability of either, or, to further lessen the immediate hardship, the amount in default, though doubtless very remote, could be shared by other allies, subject to later adjustment.

4. Each ally to pass the bonds and guarantee on to the United States and England to the amount of its war debts at present value, without increase of present liabilities.

5. War debts of the Allies to England covered by these bonds, carrying England's guarantee also, to pass on to the United States also without increase of present liabilities.

6. To avoid any possibility of this enormous issue of bonds lodged at Washington ever adversely affecting security values by marketing, they should no doubt be non-negotiable, or, by agreement, held in the Treasury vaults pending maturities.

Some of the advantages accruing from this plan that may be considered follow:

Elimination of Allies' war debts as fixed direct liabilities now payable by stated annuities in huge amounts covering interest running for sixty-two years, three generations of peoples, requiring provisions for payments in every year's budgets; converting these debts to contingent liabilities at present values, protected by bonds of the German Government and carrying the Allies' guarantee against default.

Memory of these war debts fading away and forgotten more each year and the contingent liability not impressed on coming generations by annual taxation fearing delays of funds in hand from Germany.

Removal of probably the greatest menace to future peace and making more probable substantial reductions in armaments.

Advantage to exchange and the ease of transferring funds to the United States from one country only instead of from many paralleling and duplicating Germany's payments to the various allies.

Reducing possibilities of domestic disturbances, political and economic.

Bettering the security of treasury war debt obligations now held by the United States, the added guarantee of the German Government and the further guarantee by England of bonds passed to her by her debtor ally and again passed on to Washington.

Removing many millions of dollars of listed and always present world's debts without in any way increasing existing obligations.

It will be seen that none of these transfers of ownership and additional guarantees will increase or change any obligations, but making Germany the sole paymaster should greatly simplify the ease of placing funds overseas, with all countries to draw from, and these countries relieved of this for themselves should effectually assist when called upon. In fact, this should be a stipulation. On leaving the hands of the Allies these bonds might easily lose their relation to reparations and take on the appropriate name of "elimination" bonds, thus removing them as far from the sphere of "taboo" as reparations sold.

These "elimination" bonds, if used only in part for the purpose stated, may open the way for many similar bonds carrying the Allies' guarantee being absorbed by the public at favorable prices: this being a problem for Mr. Morgan, Mr. Young and other eminent financiers and industrialists.

Many other potentialities of this plan will be seen.

MORE LIGHT WANTED.

Doubt Exists Regarding Position of Our Representatives at Paris.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Can it be possible that the recent discussion over the Kellogg pact, the cruiser bill and the Capper resolution have been designed in part to detract public attention in America from the highly important conference in Europe on reparations?

If such has not been the deliberate intent, the effect has been much the same as though the thing had been intended. The reparations question is primarily a question for the officials of Europe to settle. But when our newspaper correspondents keep telling us that the conferees will deal indirectly with the subject of allied debts to us we begin to want more and more information.

The debt question is one on which our Congress, our President and the platforms of the Republican party have all spoken clearly. Neither Mr. Morgan nor Mr. Young is the official representative of the American citizen in this matter. To hold that these men are official representatives is to say that we in America have adopted a kind of Soviet type of representation which is quite contrary to the representative government that Washington and Madison gave us.

Eminently qualified as these gentlemen are to speak for economic interests of vast proportions, they do not have the credentials of the citizens and they do not possess the authority to commit the American public to any plan of settlement which will be contingent on further concessions by the United States Treasury.

There are some matters in which it is wise to unite governmental and business representatives. There are other matters in which the interests, respectively, of government and business men may not exactly coincide.

HOLDS CHURCH LAGS IN PEACE MOVEMENT

CITES KELLOGG TREATY

Practical statesmen, not the churches of the world, are solving the "most challenging subject before the peoples today," namely that of world peace, said Professor James T. Shotwell of Columbia University yesterday afternoon. He was addressing sixty Methodist ministers in the chapel of the Methodist Book Concern, 150 Fifth Avenue.

Professor Shotwell, who is a director of the division of economics and history for the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, urged the churches to face the present world peace movement "in terms of intelligence and not of past religious emotion."

"Strangely enough," he said, "the effective attack on war has come not along the line of religious effort, but through scientific invention and discovery—processes so far advanced that we are now mutually interdependent as peoples.

"The problems of peace have been taken over by practical statesmen, who have developed a new technique," he said and gave the warning: "Judging the religious movement as a historian, I am pretty sure the churches run a great danger of being themselves the prodigal son while they are looking around for other prodigal sons."

Professor Shotwell rehearsed the steps of the world peace movement as embodied in the League of Nations, the Briand-Kellogg multilateral treaty and the recent Capper resolution, and asserted that the Pact of Paris reaches far into the realm of morals as well as that of politics. "This plan," he said, "if effectively applied would realize one-half the message of Jesus."

Dr. Shotwell defended the pact as involving for the United States a "commitment of a very serious and definite nature." The various interpretations and reservations made by signatory nations, in his opinion, strengthened, not weakened it by clarification.

He cited the British interpretations as worthy and appropriate. "The British," he said, "declared that the legitimacy of national defense is not to be defined by where you are fighting, but why. They are right in this."

"They asserted the two principles: 'We do not renounce the right of self-defense, and we do not renounce the strategy of self-defense.' "When Great Britain stated these principles, it was stating facts with which we agree."

The trustees adopted a resolution thanking the press for the "generous reception and amount of space" given to the announcement of their plans. W. John Logan, treasurer of the fund, has headquarters at the Hanover National Bank, 11 Nassau Street.

PRAISES WORK OF UNIONS.

R. W. Bruere Tells Women That Labor Groups Aid Prosperity.

The trade union movement in this country has proved itself a valuable factor in fostering prosperity and in elevating the standards of living, Robert W. Bruere, associate editor of The Survey, told members of the Women's Trade Union League at a luncheon yesterday at the Town Hall Club. He said that the material well-being of the United States at the present time was far superior to that of an previous era of prosperity in this or any other country.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the Governor, was chairman of the meeting. In introducing Mr. Bruere, she asserted that education was needed to train labor leaders to lead the labor movement intelligently and unselfishly to worth-while goals.

House of Mercy Seeks Funds.

A campaign for funds for the House of Mercy at Valhalla, N. Y., has been started, it was made known yesterday, to continue the work of the institution as a training school for wayward girls. About 100 girls were in the home last year. Expenditures are about $60,000 annually. Mrs. William C. Dickey, 123 East Fifty-third Street, is the treasurer.

ADMIRAL BRIDGEMAN DIES IN BAHAMAS

HAD A BRILLIANT RECORD

NASSAU, Bahamas, Feb. 18 (AP).—Admiral Sir Francis Bridgeman, Vice Admiral of the United Kingdom and former First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, died here last night of hardening of the arteries.

The Admiral, who had spent many of his Winters here, was seated in the hotel lounge and was listening to the orchestra play a number he had just requested when he was stricken. Three physicians were called, but he was dead when they reached him.

Admiral Bridgeman had been here about three weeks, and had just completed arrangements for the annual races of the Nassau Sailing Club, which he organized five years ago and of which he was Commodore. He was 81 years old.

Funeral services were held this afternoon in the old cathedral. The dean of Nassau conducted the service, assisted by two canons of the cathedral and by the Lord Bishop of Nassau, who pronounced the blessing.

Governor Sir Charles William Orr and his aide de camp, Captain E. V. Mannersmith, led the funeral procession, escorted by the Bahamas constabulary. The constabulary band played the funeral march, and the flag-draped coffin, on which lay the hat and sword of the Admiral, was borne by negro sailors.

Members of the Royal Nassau Sailing Club were pallbearers, including Vice Commodore E. Winslow White of Commack, L. I.; Frank C. Munson and John Topping of New York, Speaker Harcourt Malcolm of the House of Assembly, Walter K. Moore of the Executive Council and Captain Godfrey E. Corbett.

Among those at the cathedral services were James W. Gerard, former United States Ambassador to Germany, and Sir Daniel McMillan, former Lieutenant Governor of Manitoba.

The body was placed on board the steamship Munargo, which sailed tonight for New York. Burial will be in England.

Admiral Bridgeman was one of the most influential members of England's premier yachting organization, the Royal Yacht Squadron, and one of the most distinguished and popular veterans of the Royal Navy.

Besides being a full Admiral, he possessed the ancient and historical dignities of Vice Admiral of the United Kingdom and of Lieutenant of the Admiralty, to which joint offices, dating from the reign of Henry VIII, he was appointed by King George as a token of his special regard in view of the Admiral's record in the Royal Navy, which he entered sixty-seven years ago.

Sir Francis was a great-grandson of the first Lord Bradford, and at one time was aide-de-camp to the King. In 1908 he was created Knight Commander of the Bath, two years later the dignity of Knight Grand Cross of Royal Victorian Order was bestowed upon him, and in 1913 he was created Knight Grand Cross of the Bath.

Sir Francis's resignation as First Sea Lord of the Admiralty in 1912 led to questioning in the House of Commons of Winston Spencer Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, because of reports that there had been a serious dispute between the two men. The dispute was supposed to involve either the navy estimates for that year, or new rates of pay which went into effect at that time.

Mr. Churchill told his interrogators that Sir Francis had resigned on account of ill health. Under further questioning, however, Mr. Churchill said he himself had suggested the resignation.

Sir Francis was born on Dec. 7, 1848, the fourth son of a clergyman, the Rev. Rector of Bayworth, Notts. In 1880 he married Miss Emily C. Shiffner, daughter of the late Thomas Shiffner of Westergate, Sussex. His wife died in 1922.

He was made Lieutenant in the royal navy eleven years after he entered the navy and rose to the post of Rear Admiral in 1903. For two years, dating from 1907, he was Commander-in-Chief of the home fleet, a post he also held in 1911. It was in 1910 that he was made a Lord of the Admiralty, and in the next year he was appointed First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, serving for two years.

The present First Lord of the Admiralty is the Right Hon. William Clive Bridgeman, an office he has held since 1924.

Sir Francis visited this country at various times late in life on his way to the Bahamas. About four years ago he called at the White House to pay his respects to President Coolidge, accompanied by Sir Esmé Howard, the British Ambassador. On his visit a year ago he enjoyed some tarpon fishing.

His residence was Cosgrove Hall, Harrogate, England, and he was a member of the Carlton, Turf and Royal Automobile clubs of London and of the Royal Yacht Squadron at Cowes.

John Bruning.

John Bruning, 79 years old, a former Fire Commissioner of Hoboken, was found dead in bed yesterday morning at his home at 1,024 Bloomfield Street, Hoboken. Funeral services will be held tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock from the residence. He is survived by a widow, Mrs. Minna Bruning.

Mr. Bruning had been a resident of Hoboken for more than sixty years, and was a member of the Hoboken Lodge, 76, of the Order of Elks.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 18 (AP).—William Russell, well known motion picture actor and husband of Helen Ferguson, also known on the stage and screen, died of pneumonia here today. He had been ill less than a week.

Mrs. Joanna M. O'Connor Buried.

A solemn requiem mass was celebrated yesterday morning in St. Monica's Church, Jamaica, for Mrs. Joanna McGrath O'Connor, who died on Friday at her home, 161 Sixth Street, Jamaica Park. Burial was in Calvary Cemetery. Mrs. O'Connor, who was an organist and teacher of music, was educated at the Presentation Convent in Ballingarry, Ireland, where she studied music, and at the Mercy Convent in Brangin, County Tipperary. She leaves her husband, John C. O'Connor, editor of The Advocate, and Charles, John, James, Marie Josephine, Angela and Pearl. She was born in Tipperary.

ROOSEVELT BLOCKS TWO EXTRADITIONS

Governor Refuses Request by Massachusetts for Biedenkapp on Strike Plot Charge.

CITES DELAY IN THE ARREST

Jarmulsoky, Accused of Theft in Boston, Contended That His Case Was a Civil One.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 18.—Governor Roosevelt today denied two extradition applications made by the State of Massachusetts. One was for Frederick Biedenkapp, labor leader, who was wanted in New Bedford on an indictment charging him with conspiracy and disturbance of the peace in connection with the recent textile strike there. The other was for Meyer Jarmulsoky of New York, wanted in Boston for alleged larceny of four coats valued at $500.

State Senator Elmer J. Quinn, who appeared for Jarmulsoky, told the Governor that this was a civil and not a criminal matter.

Two hearings were given by the Governor in the application for the Biedenkapp extradition. Mr. Biedenkapp asserted he was not in New Bedford last June when he is alleged to have violated the law. He had charge of the relief work for the textile strikers.

"The textile mill barons are trying their best to break up my relief work and to break the union, and they have gone so far as to appeal to the District Attorney's office to aid them," he told the Governor.

"That's a lie!" shouted District Attorney William C. Crossley of Fall River, jumping to his feet.

Two New Bedford policemen, W. J. Harrinton and Archie Sylvia, testified before the Governor that Mr. Biedenkapp was in their city on June 27, 28 and June 30.

"Why, I even heard him make a speech at that time in which he said that the New Bedford policemen ought to throw away their clubs and badges," said Policeman Sylvia.

In denying the extradition of Mr. Biedenkapp, Governor Roosevelt wrote to Governor Frank G. Allen of Massachusetts, saying in part:

"There is a sharp conflict of testimony as to whether or not the defendant was actually present in the city of New Bedford on June 27, 1928, the time it is specifically alleged he conspired as set forth in the indictment. It does concededly appear, however, that the defendant was often there during the months of July, August and September, 1928. Nevertheless, he was at no time arrested or tried under municipal ordinance, as were hundreds of other persons; nor was he arrested and held in bonds for the November grand jury, the next grand jury meeting after June 27, 1928.

"It appears that under Massachusetts law he could have been arrested and tried for a misdemeanor at that time or could have been held for the grand jury.

"The defendant has devoted himself to the amelioration of working and social conditions and he seems to have acted in good faith, however mistakenly.

"The conflicting testimony, coupled with the dilatoriness of the prosecution, compel me to exercise a discretion vested in the Chief Executive of a State in cases of this nature, and I, therefore, must respectfully deny the application."

Mr. Biedenkapp was arrested in New York City three weeks ago by the police while about to deliver an address in the Bronx.

DAY OPPOSES BASING ALIEN LAW ON ORIGINS

Benjamin Day, Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, in his address before the School of Politics of the Women's National Republican Club yesterday, declared that the immigration law had many inequalities and "many rough edges." Mr. Day spoke on "Immigration on the American Continent."

"The National Origins bill," Mr. Day said, "which is now before Congress, is as complicated as Professor Einstein's latest formula, and I hope that it will be eliminated entirely from our legislative records. It is not only impracticable, but unworkable."

"In any consideration of immigration legislation," Mr. Day continued, "it seems to me we should consider and recognize two basic principles, that of selective immigration as found in the law of 1882, and of numerical limitation as in the law of 1921. I believe any contemplated change which would seriously interfere with either of these two principles would receive scant attention at the hands of Congress and would not reflect the determined thought of all Americans on the subject of immigration.

FAVORS STATE PUBLICITY.

Mayors' Conference Body Approves Bill for Commerce Division.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 18.—The Mayors' Conference of the State, through its legislative committee headed by Mayor Daniel J. Cosgro of Cohoes, today approved the bill of Senator Hofstadter, Republican, of New York City, for the creation of a division of commerce in the Department of State. The committee voted to throw its active support to the measure.

The proposal, an outcome of the disquiet in the Mohawk Valley over the failure to keep pace industrially with other States, looks to encouragement and aid for business from an agency which would be modeled after the Federal Department of Commerce. Under the terms of the bill, favorable publicity would be given to New York's industrial advantages and technical advice would be made available.

The Mayors' Committee voiced hearty disapproval of a bill by Senator Warren Thayer, Republican, of Franklin, providing that street railway companies should not be responsible for paving or repaving portions of roadway alongside their tracks. The bill would leave the companies only with the burden of repairing for disturbances caused by reconstruction of tracks.

The creation of a commission to study into a plan for the permanent registration of voters in cities was approved by the committee, and it opposed the bill of Assemblyman Louis Cuvilller, Democrat, of New York City, to prohibit daylight saving in municipalities which now elect to have it.

HINT BY GERMAN CENTRISTS

Ex-Chancellor Marx Renews Talk About a Coalition Cabinet.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—There is a general belief among politicians that negotiations to form a coalition government have been taken up again by the leaders. A speech made by former Chancellor Marx last night in Hamburg is considered as an indication that the Centrist party is quite willing to re-enter the discussion in a more conciliatory spirit.

Dr. Marx said that the government looked upon the present state of affairs with astounding complacency and seemed in no undue haste to form a coalition government. The Centrist party would decline all responsibility for the budget if a coalition government were not formed. They would, however, insist on three seats in the Cabinet and could not take the initiative in renewing discussions with other parties, he said.

There are those who believe that in saying so the Centrist party has really taken the initiative.

THIRD INDICTMENT FOR BRIBERY LOOMS

Detectives Checking Up on New Evidence Turned Over to Prosecutor by Harvey.

BERG CALLED HYLAN AIDE

KLAN CHARGE IS REVIVED

T. F. Dwyer Says Ex-Detective Told Him He Could Get Borough Head's Application.

The possibility of a third indictment loomed yesterday as detectives from the office of District Attorney Newcombe continued their investigation into the charges of George U. Harvey, Borough President of Queens, that bribes had been offered to him at various times by representatives of contractors.

As a result of Mr. Harvey's allegations that on Nov. 11 last year a $10,000 bill was offered to him while at his farm in New Milford, Conn., Frank H. Berg of Far Rockaway, former private detective, and Albert Levin of Kew Gardens were jointly indicted last Wednesday by the Queens County Grand Jury, and the date of their trial was set for March 4.

Mr. Harvey supplemented his original bribe charge with the statement that on one occasion $200,000 was offered to him "to go along with the contractors," and at another time a $5,000 belated campaign contribution was the bait if he would give the donor's friends $1,000,000 worth of contracts.

Detectives Work on Leads.

The detectives are now working on the additional leads given District Attorney Newcombe by the Borough President. An attaché of the prosecutor's office said yesterday that the investigators are checking on the information put at their disposal, and if such action warrants it Mr. Newcombe would not hesitate to put the evidence before the grand jury and ask for an additional indictment.

Mr. Newcombe yesterday, when asked as to the progress in the investigation, said:

"Mr. Harvey submitted to me certain facts, which I have supplemented by my own investigation. Two indictments were returned. I am now at work preparing the case so as to be ready for trial a week from Monday."

Although Judge Frank E. Adel informed counsel for the indicted men that any motions they desired to make must be made before the trial date, no such motions have been filed. It was intimated last week that motions for inspection of the grand jury minutes would be filed yesterday and if this was denied, separate trials for each defendant would be asked.

Berg Planned Move for Hylan.

It was disclosed in the District Attorney's office that just prior to Berg's indictment he made it known that he contemplated a trip to Florida to have President-elect Hoover endorse John F. Hylan for Mayor on the Republican ticket in the Fall campaign. Berg was quoted as saying he knew Mr. Hoover very well and could get him to declare himself publicly in favor of former Mayor Hylan.

Thomas F. Dwyer, Commissioner of Markets in Manhattan, was at the Long Island City Court House yesterday. He admitted that Berg had visited his office in the Municipal Building and said he knew where Harvey's application for membership in an organization affiliated with the Ku Klux Klan could be obtained. Mr. Dwyer denied that Berg had offered to sell the application.

"Berg came to me," he asserted, "and said he knew where he could get an application Harvey had made for membership in a Klan organization. The impression I had at the time was that Berg thought it would be good compaign material. No mention of price was made and I declined the offer. I have since told District Attorney Newcombe about it. I did not see Mr. Newcombe today, and I have not signed any affidavit regarding the matter."

"I understand before Commissioner Dwyer did anything in this matter he conferred with Mayor Walker," said Mr. Harvey when questioned. "I am informed the Mayor advised him to do whatever he could to throw light on the situation here. No matter what the importance of Commissioner Dwyer's information may be, the fact is Mr. Dwyer's action indicates the Mayor is giving me his support in this situation, and this is most pleasing to me. I think it will help in the prosecution."

ONLY STEAM ROLLERS ARE SAFE, HARVEY SAYS

Declares That Is Because 'Corrupt Politicians' in Queens Cannot Get Away With Them.

Borough President George U. Harvey of Queens intimated last night at a dinner of the Kiwanis Club in the Franklin Hotel, Jamaica, that he had still further evidence of graft to present to District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe.

"My superintendent of sewers, Mr. Fritz Brieger, has spent considerable time trying to account for 200,000 gallons of city gasoline which is missing from the borough's supply," Mr. Harvey said. "He has been successful in this quest and we're going to tell the District Attorney about it on Thursday."

Mr. Harvey hinted that "corrupt politicians" looted not only the city's gasoline supply, but its automobile tire supply as well.

"We have learned that the borough ordered 2,000 tires some time ago for its official vehicles," he asserted. "Up to this time we can account for only 200. The rest seem to have disappeared."

In closing Mr. Harvey declared that steam rollers were the only articles not freely taken. "The only reason for that is they could not wrap them up and get away with ——" he said.

Advises Medical Scientists To Marry Heiresses

CHICAGO, Feb. 18 (AP).—Underpaid pioneers in medical science, devoting their lives to research for the benefit of humanity, were advised today by Dr. Hans Zinsser, Professor of Bacteriology at the Harvard Medical School, to marry heiresses.

"The men who devote themselves to medical science in the laboratory are notoriously underpaid," said Dr. Zinsser. "The only salvation for them is to wed heiresses or have wealthy parents or sponsors. For that reason, I hope our heiresses will pick on medical pioneers instead of foreign nobility.

"As it is today, a man of the finest brain and genius, with four years of post-graduate work and two years of hospital work, commands less than a chauffeur or a broker's clerk or a floorwalker."

END INVESTIGATION IN DOHENY SLAYING

Los Angeles Officials Decide It Is Clear Case of Murder and Suicide.

NO INQUEST WILL BE HELD

Inquiry Discloses That Secretary Entered House of His Employer With Pass Key.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 18.—Finis was written to the investigation into the murder of Edward L. Doheny Jr., by his secretary, Theodore Hugh Plunkett, who afterwards killed himself, when county authorities today signed death certificates in both cases and recorded the tragedy as a homicide and a suicide.

Late in the afternoon District Attorney Fitts and Deputy Coroner McDonald announced that no inquest would be held because the person responsible for the tragedy was dead.

An autopsy performed by Chief Autopsy Surgeon A. F. Wegoner at the coroner's office revealed that Plunkett had placed the muzzle of the old fashioned pistol tight against his head and pulled the trigger.

While a chemical analysis was undertaken, officials said the move was merely a customary detail and that the investigation is officially closed. Deputy Sheriff Bright of the Sheriff's homicide squad, who attended the autopsy with District Attorney Fitts, concurred with other officials in their findings.

With the Right Rev. John J. Cantwell, Bishop of the diocese of Los Angeles and San Diego, as the celebrant, requiem mass will be celebrated for E. L. Doheny Jr. at St. Vincent's Church tomorrow morning. Bishop Cantwell will be assisted by Father O'Malley, pastor of St. Vincent's Church, which was Mr. Doheny's home parish. St. Vincent's was built by E. L. Doheny Sr.

Dr. E. C. Fishbaugh, the Doheny physician for many years, who arrived at the home a few minutes before Plunkett killed himself, said that reports to the effect that Mr. Doheny's father is in a serious condition from the shock of the tragedy are erroneous. The senior Doheny, the doctor said, continues to bear the strain of his grief as well as can be expected.

After officials today had completed marshalling all facts surrounding events which had led to the slaying, they again expressed their belief that Plunkett was mentally deranged.

When Plunkett arrived at the Doheny home in Beverly Hills, he called the house by telephone from the garage at the gates.

"Please don't come up now," Mrs. Doheny pleaded with Plunkett when she answered the telephone.

Apparently unbeknown to either Mr. or Mrs. Doheny, Plunkett entered the house by his pass key and retired to the guest chamber on the first floor.

Officials also revealed that Mr. Doheny when shot by Plunkett did not expire until a moment after Dr. Fishbaugh rushed into the room at the sound of the shot with which the secretary ended his own life.

TWO MORE IN BROOKLYN ON TRIAL IN GRAFTING

Grocer Testifies He Cashed City Checks for Employe of Street Cleaning Bureau.

Two more employes of the Brooklyn Bureau of Street Cleaning, who were indicted as the result of the investigation into charges of payroll padding in that department, were placed on trial yesterday before Judge Taylor and a jury in the Kings County Court.

Thomas Owen, a superintendent, was tried last week before Judge Vause, but the jury disagreed.

The men who were brought to trial yesterday were John McNeeney of 1,740 Sixty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, a superintendent, and Joseph Purcio of 100 Bay Forty-fourth Street, Brooklyn, a foreman. They are charged with auditing and paying a fraudulent claim of $30 against the city.

Commissioner of Accounts James J. Higgins, who investigated the charges last Summer, testified yesterday that Purcio admitted to him in his investigation that he had written on the city payroll sheets the name of Louis Scudello of 88 Bay Forty-fourth Street, Vito Mione of 90 Bay Forty-fourth Street and Joseph Matteo of 180 Nineteenth Street, all of Brooklyn.

A handwriting expert testified that the same hand wrote the names of the men in the column of the payroll sheet that showed they were hired and in the column that showed they were paid. The three men whose names appeared on the sheets testified that they had never worked for the department and had never received any money from it.

In Owen's trial the State was unable to locate the men who were alleged to have been fraudulently listed.

Benny Citrola, a grocer, of 2,464 Eighty-fourth Street, Brooklyn, identified three checks made out on city check forms to the order of Scudello, Mione and Matteo as having been cashed by him for Purcio. The trial will continue today.

EQUITABLE ACTION EXPECTED MARCH 4

Berry Says Trial Report Will Not Be Ready for Estimate Board for Ten Days.

EVASION BY MAYOR DENIED

Aide Says Walker Was Assured Florida Trip Would Not Halt City's Business.

Primarily because Deputy Controller Frank J. Trial has not yet completed his Equitable Coach Company investigation, with special reference to the $500,000 "slush fund" charge in connection with its contract with the J. G. White Management Company, the Board of Estimate will take no action on the bus company's application to amend its franchise before the first Monday in March.

"Mr. Trial's investigation is far from finished," Controller Berry said yesterday. "It will not be completed for ten days or two weeks. He has numerous persons to interview and his work has been interrupted from time to time by pressure of routine business."

A new development in the bus situation yesterday was the announcement by Corporation Counsel Nicholson that he would join Edmund L. Mooney, counsel for the Equitable, in asking the Supreme Court on Thursday to dismiss the summons in the injunction suit brought against the coach company and the members of the Board of Estimate by Jason Meth, taxpayer, at the instance of the Union Bus Corporation, attacking the validity of the original franchise and seeking to prevent official action on the applications for its amendment. The Union Bus Corporation was one of the unsuccessful bidders for the original grant.

Deny Mayor Evaded Issues.

From City Hall yesterday came vigorous denial of published reports that Mayor Walker had left for Florida to evade the bus, seven-cent fare and rapid transit unification issues. It was also denied that the meeting of the committee of the whole of the Board of Estimate, slated for yesterday, had to be postponed a week because of the Mayor's departure.

Mayor Walker, according to Charles S. Hand, his secretary, received assurances, before he left for the South, that the city's business would not be delayed. He was informed that there was little likelihood that the United States Supreme Court would hand down a fare decision yesterday. Controller Berry notified him that the Trial investigation was far from complete. From Democratic leaders in Albany he received word that the pending Untermyer unification measures would be watched carefully during his absence.

Examination of the records of the Board of Estimate and the Committee of the Whole yesterday showed that the board on Thursday adjourned for two weeks because of the holiday on the 22d, and that the Committee of the Whole on Feb. 11 adjourned until Feb. 25. At City Hall yesterday it was said that during the past five years the Board of Estimate has always omitted its formal session when it was scheduled for the day preceding or following a holiday. Adjournment of the formal session made it useless to hold the meeting of the Committee of the Whole, which is only for the purpose of recommending action by the formal meeting. Mayor Walker's decision to leave for Florida on Sunday was prompted by the adjournment instead of being the cause, according to Mr. Hand.

Equitable Action Awaits Mayor.

Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee said yesterday that the Committee of the Whole would meet next Monday, as scheduled, and that the formal session would be held the following Thursday, whether Mayor Walker had returned or not.

"It will be possible, under the rules, to act on the Equitable matter at those meetings," he said, "but there will be no action if Mayor Walker is not present. My policy in matters of major importance is to let them go over, as a matter of courtesy, until the Mayor is present."

Mr. McKee's statement spiked a rumor that the Equitable applications were slated for rejection next week while Mayor Walker's three votes, said to be favorable to the Equitable, were not available. It is conceded at City Hall that without his support the applications cannot hope to obtain the twelve affirmative votes required for their approval.

"I certainly would not be a party to any such proceeding," Mr. McKee declared. "Nor would I, regardless of my personal attitude toward the Equitable's petitions, seek to turn the issue one way or the other during Mayor Walker's absence."

In transit circles the delaying of action on the Equitable applications until early next month is seen as likely to bring the matter to a head soon after Mayor Walker's return. It is expected that the coach company, if successful in reported negotiations for reduction of its debt to the White group under the management contract, will then be prepared to make a last stand before the board. It hopes to be able to state that the reduction would require the expenditure of less money by the B. M. T. under the contract with the traction company for merging Equitable routes in Brooklyn and Queens with B. M. T. surface lines, and thus eliminate one of the chief objections to the proposed merger.

From the office of Deputy Controller Trial yesterday came a denial that there had been any intimation from that source that the Equitable investigation had revealed the company in either a favorable or unfavorable light. It was intimated in one of the published reports that word had been passed that the report would be unfavorable and that one of Mayor Walker's reasons for leaving when he did was to avoid receiving it.

$100,000 Scotch Malt Seized on Freighter; Boston Gives Tip on Shipping Board Vessel

Customs inspectors of the harbor patrol, working on a tip from Federal authorities in Boston, discovered nearly 5,000 gallons of Scotch malt yesterday in the holds of the American Diamond Line freighter Coahoma County after the ship had docked in Hoboken.

The malt, used for making whisky, is diluted many times for the bootleg trade and conservative estimates of its bootleg value were placed yesterday between $100,000 and $150,000 by customs officers. The malt was in 315 fifteen-gallon kegs and was not listed in any way on the ship's manifest.

Leaving Antwerp on Jan. 27, the Coahoma County docked at Boston on Feb. 13. There a government undercover agent reported to Boston customs authorities that there was contraband in the ship's hold, probably destined for New York or Philadelphia. William W. Lufkin, Collector of Customs, immediately notified New York officials.

The vessel arrived here on Sunday, but customs men deferred making a search until yesterday to allow time for apprehending those of the crew who might have been handling the contraband secretly. They watched the freighter, however, Sunday afternoon from the shelter of an innocent-looking customs craft. When the Coahoma County anchored off Weehawken preparatory to docking, the customs boat was hovering in the distance.

No arrests were made yesterday, but the crew will appear at the Custom House today for examination. A thorough inquiry has been begun, as the vessel is a United States Shipping Board boat, operated by the American Diamond Line.

WARNS OF COMPACT WITH CLOAK UNION

Manager of Employers' Group Asserts Renewal Would Ruin "Inside" Industry.

TELLS OF SWEATSHOP RISE

Labor Organization Fails to Keep Up Standards, He Declares at Annual Meeting and Dinner.

Renewal of the agreement between the Industrial Council of Cloak, Suit and Skirt Manufacturers, Inc., and the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union would spell ruin to the "inside" manufacturers unless the union guarantees uniform enforcement of its terms upon the entire industry, Samuel Klein, general manager of the manufacturers' association, said last night at the annual meeting and dinner of the organization at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Mr. Klein said the union was demanding higher minimum wage scales, "already abnormally high," curtailment of reorganization rights and re-establishment of the system of unemployment insurance. Not only were "inside" manufacturers unable to grant the added benefits demanded by the union, said Mr. Klein, but renewal of the agreement on the terms of its present provisions was out of the question.

"The further question presents itself whether it is moral to sign an agreement solely in the hope of bridging a difficulty when we know that its terms cannot be adhered to without commercial suicide," he continued.

Mr. Klein summarized the association's labor activities of the past year and said that the history of the industry since 1910 contained no parallel to the situation that has existed since the abortive strike of the left wing in 1926. He pointed out that the factional differences had weakened the union, with the result that sweatshops have again crept into the industry. New firms with substantial capital have entered the field intent on capitalizing the break in the labor ranks by building a business on destroyed standards, he declared.

As a measure of relief, according to Mr. Klein, the system of unemployment insurance was abolished because the "inside" shops refused to make payments when other groups in the industry evaded their obligations. Another source of relief by the "inside" manufacturers, he said, was the reorganization privilege embodied in the agreement. It was unnecessary for the manufacturers to avail themselves of the privilege of discharging 10 per cent of their workers a year, only 2½ per cent being discharged, Mr. Klein told the members.

Mr. Klein defended the "reasonable readjustment of wage scales" put into effect by the manufacturers and declared that "in the face of the present demoralized condition of the industry the wisdom of the members of the present administration in this respect saved for the industry the institution of the 'inside shop.'" Without wage adjustments and reorganization rights, he said, the "inside" shops would have been driven from the field. He asserted that the workers cooperated in the adjustment and thus escaped the necessity of seeking employment in sub-standard shops where they would have had to work sixty to sixty-five hours with earnings below those paid by the "inside" shop manufacturers.

Reports were made by other officers. I. Grossman, president of the association, presided.

DELIVERS BYRD MESSAGE.

Noville Calls on Prefect Helitas, Fliers' Host at Caen, France.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CAEN, France, Feb. 18.—Lieutenant George O. Noville, one of Commander Byrd's companions on the America's transatlantic flight in the Summer of 1927, visited today the coastal village of Ver-sur Mer, where his flight terminated, and later lunched here with Maurice Helitas, Prefect of the Department of Calvados.

He said Byrd charged him before leaving for the Antarctic to "Be sure to see M. Helitas and tell him I will never forget his kindness and hospitality." Byrd and his three companions spent the second night after their arrival in France at the Caen Prefecture as guests of M. Helitas. Lieutenant Noville is vice president of the Pan-American Airways Pacific Coast Line, linking North and South America, and is now making a study tour of all the European airports.

SARGENT MAY HOLD OVER.

Choice of Hoover's Attorney General Reported Delayed—Borah Talked Of.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Reports were current today that President-elect Hoover might be unable to select an Attorney General in time to send a nomination to the Senate on March 4 and that Attorney General Sargent had been asked to remain in the Cabinet for a short period. Mr. Sargent declined to discuss the rumor.

When asked whether this might be interpreted as significant he indicated that his refusal to discuss the matter should not be taken as either affirming or denying the report.

It was also reported that Senator Borah was under consideration for Attorney General, while the name of Silas W. Strawn was again brought into the discussion as a possibility.

QUESTION POLICE ON GANG MURDER

VICTIMS BURIED SIMPLY

Lavish Display Is Missing at the Funerals Except for 2,500 Roses Believed Sent by Moran.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Investigating the theory that city policemen or former members of the force may have engineered or participated in the machine gun killing of seven members of the George Moran gang, Police Commissioner William F. Russell and the State's Attorney's office were tonight examining the 255 members of the city's detective bureau squads in an effort to determine whether the murders is to furnish Chicago with a parallel to New York's famous Becker case.

Assistant State's Attorneys David Stansbury, Harry S. Ditchburne and Walter Butler sat in Police Headquarters and had squad after squad come into a room, separately and collectively, and every man was asked where he was and what he was doing between 10 o'clock and 11 o'clock on Thursday morning, when machine guns were sprayed against the gangsters in a garage on North Clark Street.

Killer's Front Teeth Missing.

Whether those persons who had a fleeting glimpse of the killers were watching tonight's procedure the prosecutors refused to state, but it was known that the chauffeur for H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the Board of Education, was to view men who have missing front teeth.

Mr. Caldwell and his driver saw the killers in what they thought was a police automobile and they noted that two of the occupants were in police uniform. The chauffeur later remarked that the man to the right of the driver was shy one or more front teeth.

While the authorities were bending their every effort to solve the Moran killings, a new outburst of gang warfare was halted this afternoon, the police believe, when a machine gun crew died from a policeman near Harrison and Halsted Streets amid a hail of police bullets. The gunmen's car was found abandoned a few blocks away.

Funerals Lack Ostentation.

Six of the dead Moran gangsters were buried today, but not with the ostentation of other gang funerals. Frank and Peter Gusenberg, brothers, were buried from a chapel amid many floral pieces, one of them a heart containing 2,500 roses made by the floral company in which Dion O'Banion was a partner until he was shot down.

This large piece bore no card, but it was believed to have been sent by the gang chieftain, "Bugs" Moran, who did not attend the services for any of his followers.

R. H. Schwimmer, the optometrist with gangster affiliations; Adam Heyer, John May and Albert Weinshank all had simple services with few in attendance. James Clarke, the seventh victim, will be buried tomorrow.

BYRD'S SUPPLY SHIP DELAYED BY STORM

Clearing Dunedin on Second Trip to Antarctica, Bolling Is Held at Entrance of Harbor.

DUNEDIN, New Zealand, Feb. 18 (AP).—The steamer Eleanor Bolling, supply ship of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition, cleared the port here late this afternoon, but was forced by a terrific South Sea storm to take shelter behind the heads at the entrance of the bay. At midnight she was awaiting the dawn in the hope that the storm would subside by then.

The vessel, heavily laden, is en route on her second trip to the Byrd base, Little America, in the Bay of Whales. Although there is need for her to make all possible speed, she must also conserve her fuel in view of her heavy cargo.

The storm has tied up all coastwise shipping here. It is the same blow which the City of New York experienced in the Bay of Whales last week and which made the Eleanor Bolling seventy-two hours late in reaching Dunedin from the south.

Richard G. Brophy of New York, business manager of the expedition, embarked on the Bolling so as to have a final conference with Commander Byrd before the Antarctic Winter sets in. He is serving as a coal passer on the ship in order to help fill out the crew, several regular members of which remained at the Bay of Whales. Both the City of New York and the Eleanor Bolling probably will return to New Zealand late in March.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. — The leave of absence of Lloyd V. Berkner, radio operator, who is attached to the Byrd Antarctic expedition, has been extended by Secretary of Commerce Whiting for a year. A request for this extension was received from Commander Byrd. Berkner's position with the Department of Commerce is in the Bureau of Fisheries.

ROUND UP SUSPECTS IN CRIME OUTBREAK

Whalen's Squads Start New Drive on Thugs as Series of Hold-Ups Stirs Hoyt.

MURDER SUSPECT SEIZED

A sudden outburst of criminal activities in New York last week-end, resulting in an unusually large number of hold-ups and burglaries throughout the city, caused Acting Commissioner Hoyt to order a new round-up of suspects, starting at midnight last Sunday. Up to early this morning 144 prisoners had been locked up in various station houses on charges ranging from vagrancy to homicide. They will be placed in the line-up at Police Headquarters today.

This latest dragnet was spread with the knowledge and approval of Commissioner Whalen, who, though at present on vacation in Palm Beach, has kept in constant touch with Acting Commissioner Hoyt by telephone. Commissioner Whalen has given orders that no respite is to be allowed criminals and that similar drives are to be conducted periodically until criminals either have been driven from the city or jailed.

Held for Police Killing.

Among those arrested last night was Patrick E. Brown, 32 years old, a photographer of 104 Bedford Street, who has been sought by the police since March 2, 1926, in connection with the killing of Patrolman McGuire of the West Sixty-eighth Street station. McGuire was mortally injured in a fight with a gang of rowdies in Sixty-second Street near Columbus Avenue. One of the gang struck the patrolman on the jaw, knocking him down and causing him to strike his head against the pavement.

Detectives Steppat and McGowan were passing Columbus Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street last night when they saw a man acting suspiciously. Steppat recognized Brown and arrested him. Later in the evening the same detectives arrested Frank Novarro of 216 West Sixty-seventh Street charged with burglarizing the dress shop of Florence Hirschfield at 2,215 Broadway early yesterday.

Two other arrests for homicide were made by Detective McLaughlin of the East 104th Street station. The men arrested were Joseph McNally of 6,661 Saunders Street, Brooklyn, and James J. Katz of 5,312 Woodside Avenue, Queens. They are alleged to have struck and killed a man while driving in an automobile. The name of the victim was not disclosed.

Most of Raids Made at Night.

Most of the arrests were made after nightfall yesterday. Up to 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon only thirty-one had been reported. By 9 P. M. there were seventy-three, and 100 by 10 o'clock.

A decided falling off in the number of crimes reported last night was noted by police officials who said that between 4 P. M. and last midnight only one hold-up was reported in New York, that being in the plant of Fisher and Axelrod at 449 Trautman Street, Brooklyn, where a $3,700 payroll was stolen.

In addition to detectives from the various precincts, all five gangster squads were active in the round-up. Most of the prisoners taken were men with police records and several of them had been picked up in previous round-ups.

By 10:30 P. M. the cells at police headquarters, which accommodate twenty-nine prisoners, were filled and word was sent out to headquarters men to take any additional prisoners to precinct station houses. Detectives of the narcotic squad were on their way to headquarters with four prisoners at the time. When they arrived there they were told to take their prisoners to the Clinton Street station. But the city-wide demand for patrol wagons was so great that the detectives were compelled to wait for nearly two hours before the transfer could be effected.

Harlem Resorts Are Raided.

In Harlem detectives made a tour of poolrooms, speakeasies and other haunts of criminals and between 9 and 11 P. M., arrested sixty negroes. The prisoners, most of whom had criminal records and no visible means of support, were locked up at the West 135th Street station charged with vagrancy.

"You people sure work fast here," was the comment of Jacob Grueber, 25 years old, of East St. Louis, Ill., who was arrested by detectives at Forty-first Street and Sixth Avenue. Grueber, who has been living in Chicago, had been in New York less than three hours when he was picked up. He had ridden on freight trains from Chicago to Albany and got a lift from Albany to the Bronx from a Federal prohibition agent who was driving down. He had walked downtown from the Bronx and was loitering in the doorway of a shop when the two detectives picked him up for vagrancy. "I left Chicago the day of the massacre," Grueber said. "It was getting too hot for me there." He admitted he had been arrested there once for disorderly conduct, but insisted that was the only time. The police took his fingerprints and sent them to Chicago to see if he could be identified there.

In Brooklyn detectives made twenty-four arrests. One of the prisoners taken there was an ex-patrolman from Boston, who is charged with being a fugitive from justice there. He is Vincent Daniels, 34 years old, and has been living at 315 Eighty-second Street, Brooklyn. On Feb. 11, 1928, he was indicted for accepting a $5 bribe from a motorist there. Charges also were brought against him in the Police Department, but while they were pending he resigned. Then he fled to New York. The Boston police have been notified.

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 18 (AP).—Cardinal Vico, second in point of age and creation in the order of Cardinal Bishops, is seriously ill of influenza coupled with heart disease. He received the last sacraments last night and, although slightly better today, was still gravely ill.

The Cardinal, who is 82, is prefect of the sacred congregation of rites, which passes on all "causes" for beatification and canonization.

Will Rogers Says Real Will Be Missed in the Senate

The war didn't scare the Senate as bad as Jim Reed's joke that he was going to tell who voted dry and drank not only wet, but anything (whether it was wet or not). Some have kept more he threatened to do it. No man that has left that Senate in many a day will be missed like Jim.

Ain't it funny how many hundreds of thousands of soldiers we can recruit with nerve. But we just can't find one politician in a million with backbone.

We got a new cure for the flu here in New York. Mayor Walker's doctor prescribed the Stribling-Sharkey fight.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

OSBALDESTON ENDS HIS LIFE BY BULLETS

Recluse, Over 90, Who Faced a Charge of Horse Theft After 45 Years, a Suicide in Hut.

NOTE BANS FUNERAL GLOOM

Adventurer Who Reminisced of the Crimean War, Garibaldi and Duels Requests Cremation.

Special to The New York Times.

ASBURY PARK, N. J. Feb. 18.—His zest for life quenched at last by the burden of his ninety-odd years, Dr. Edwin Pye Turner Osbaldeston shot and killed himself this morning in the tiny shack by the railroad tracks where for many years he had lived alone with his memories.

It was his memories—some said his fancies—which brought him nation-wide notice three years ago when a nonagenarian deputy sheriff arrested him for the theft of a horse and buggy forty-five years before.

Out of the yarns spun to fend off the "slanders, sir!" with which he was assailed, Dr. Osbaldeston wove a veritable Osbaldeston saga. In it there were episodes from the Crimean War—memories of Inkerman, Alma, Balaclava, of Garibaldi's red-shirted thousand; of explorations in the Australian bush of comradeship with the Prince of Wales who became Edward VII; of four duels upon a field of honor; of life lived to the utmost in many lands.

There were also memories of a scapegrace sometimes described as a half-brother, then as a nephew, again as a "son of the good-for-nothing who ran off with my sweetheart," whose remarkable resemblance to the doctor had time and again embroiled the latter in undeserved difficulties. Among them the doctor listed th horse-stealing charge, which brought him sympathetic letters and telegrams from all parts of the country and led former Governor A. Harry Moore to announce that he would not consider extradition proceedings.

Since then the doctor had lived peaceably in the two-room hut he had constructed of soap boxes and similar material in 1910. He granted interviews frequently; he amazed passers-by with his acrobatic antics from a fifty-foot railroad signal tower across the tracks; he announced the discovery of a method of molding his body by wooden globes and the discovery of a birth certificate which he said proved he had been born on July 27, 1829, instead of three years later, as he had previously asserted.

He had suffered from stomach trouble and lately he had visited local undertaking establishments to ascertain their rates and to try to arrange for his cremation at a cost not to exceed $100. His efforts met with little success and he became gloomy.

A newspaper man several years ago surprised the doctor in his hut with a pistol in his hand. Two weeks ago he was found unconscious on the floor, with the jets of his gas stove open. He was revived and explained that the door had blown open, extinguishing the jets.

Sunday he asked a neighbor to take a package and a note to John N. Burtis, a local funeral director. Early this morning Patrolman Frank Rowland noticed the door of the shack ajar and found the body of the doctor on the floor with bullet wounds in his neck and over his heart. His pistol was on a chair beside him.

Leaves Directions for Funeral.

The suicide theory was confirmed by the opening of the package and the note. In the package was a pair of blue silk pajamas; the note asked that the body be dressed in the pajamas and cremated. The note concluded:

"When the passing comes these are the outlines of my wishes. No funeral gloom, corpse-gazing, tears, black raiment, graveyard grimness. Think of me withdrawn in the dimness. Remember all the best of my past moments and forget the rest. I would wish my children, relatives and friends to observe when I die."

The local police notified a daughter, Mrs. A. T. Groves of 235 West Ninety-fifth Street, New York. Two other daughters were mentioned in the doctor's will, Mrs. Geneva A. T. Miller and Mrs. James H. Silver, both of River Edge, N. J. Word was received here tonight that the services would be held tomorrow or Wednesday and would be strictly private.

Dr. Osbaldeston was a son of the East of Onslow, and a grandson of Admiral Charles Pye Turner of the British Navy, according to one of the stories he loved to tell.

After serving with Garibaldi he went to Australia, where he obtained his medical education at Carleton University, Melbourne, and sought for the lost explorer Liechard in the wilds of Queensland. It was there he lost his first wife.

He practiced medicine for many years and the Duke of Luxembourg and President Grant were among his patients, he used to say.

ROAD RELIEF PLAN OUTLINED BY GREENE

State Superintendent Presents 'Super-Highway Construction' Program in Report.

CHANGES IN WESTCHESTER

Boston Post Road to Be Rebuilt for 4½ Miles—Hudson River Roads to Be Improved.

PROJECTS FOR LONG ISLAND

More Outlets for City Traffic in Mind—Jones Beach Causeway Will Be Paved.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Feb. 18.—A traffic relief program of road building, including "super highway construction," to eliminate street grade crossings and avoid congested districts by a relocation of route, is outlined for the Greater New York area and the Hudson Valley region of the State in the annual report submitted to Governor Roosevelt and the Legislature tonight by Frederick Stuart Greene, Superintendent of Public Works.

In Westchester County, close to the city line, although the portion of the route is not specifically designated, the Boston Post Road is to be rebuilt for four and a half miles on a scale which looks to the needs of the future. A fifty-four-foot pavement is planned with four traffic lanes, in addition to parking spaces on the sides. The project is contingent on the ability of the county to obtain the costly right of way.

The Boston Post Road as a main avenue for suburban and New England traffic is described as the most heavily used highway in the State.

New Long Island Outlets Planned.

On Long Island several new outlets for the increase of automobiles are contemplated. The Southern State Parkway, projected by the Long Island Park Commission, is now being extended to a point a short distance east of the Hempstead reservoir and will be carried further out on the island, linking with the Jones Beach Causeway via a forty-foot concrete pavement which is being laid on Wantagh Avenue, Wantagh.

A feature of this construction program for the next year would be the elimination of all existing highway grade crossings on the Southern Parkway so that an unimpeded express route will be established, according to the report.

The covering of the Jones Beach Causeway with a forty-foot concrete pavement and the completion of the Jones Beach Boulevard are among the companion plans. With ready access to it thus made available, Jones Beach State Park and its ocean front will become one of the most popular on Long Island, the department predicts.

The reconstruction of the North Hempstead Turnpike in Nassau County will be continued, and the reconstruction of the Jericho Turnpike extended as far as Smithtown Branch in Suffolk County.

Hudson Valley Project Cited.

The Conduit Boulevard in Kings, Queens and Nassau counties from Atlantic Avenue in Brooklyn to the Suffolk County line will be entirely completed over its twenty-four-mile route.

A major project for the Hudson Valley will be the reconstruction of the New York City and Albany route on the west side of the river, the renovation of the east side highway having been completed. The roadway will be realigned to avoid villages and eliminate bad curves which are a source of congestion.

The thirty-foot three-lane concrete pavement will replace the old macadam between Newburgh and Kingston. Further north a new route is planned to follow the old Kings Highway, a Revolutionary military road, from the north end of Coxsackie to Catskill. Three villages will be eliminated from the highway and its length decreased by three miles.

State Canal Tonnage Increased.

Tonnage carried on the State canal system last year was the greatest on record, according to Colonel Greene's report for the canal division. He remarked that railroad freight carloads had fallen off.

"The merchandise moved through canals amounted to 3,089,998 net tons, an increase of 508,100 tons, or 19.67 per cent, over the season of 1927," he said. "This, in view of the fact that the number of revenue freight cars loaded on steam railroads was considerably below the number loaded in either of the years 1926 or 1927, is strong evidence of the steadily improving condition of the canal channels as to depths and other navigation safeguards; of the increased terminal facilities; of the savings in transportation charges, and of satisfactory time in transit."

The wheat tonnage on the canal almost doubled, rising to 1,005,424 tons, it was brought out.

GET TENNYSON SCRIPTS.

Nephews of Poet's Son Acquire Treasures Under His Will.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Disposition of valued relics of Lord Tennyson, the poet laureate, was revealed today in the will of his son, Lord Tennyson, who died in December leaving an estate valued at $730,000.

The younger Lord Tennyson bequeathed his mother's secret diary, "condensed by her on foolscap paper," to his nephew, Charles Bruce Locker Tennyson, desiring that it should not be published. Manuscripts of his father's works, "Queen Mary" in one volume, "Harold" in two volumes and "Becket" in two volumes are left in trust for a nephew, Alfred Browning Stanley Tennyson, for life, then to his eldest son. Manuscripts of his father's published and unpublished poems are left to another nephew, Charles Bruce Tennyson, for life, then to his eldest son.

The will adds that Lord Tennyson already had given manuscripts of his father's chief poems to Trinity College, Cambridge, and desired that these be kept under glass in the library with other manuscripts of his father's previously given to the college.

RADIO CHAIN PLANS FOR INAUGURATION

Columbia System to Put Hoover and Curtis Ceremonies on Wide Network.

LARGE STAFFS WILL ASSIST

Two Former Radio Commissioners and Several News Correspondents to Be Among Announcers.

The inauguration of President-elect Hoover and Vice President-elect Curtis in Washington, D. C., on March 4 will be broadcast throughout the country by coast-to-coast radio networks assembled by the Columbia Broadcasting System and the National Broadcasting Company, according to announcements by the organizations. The ceremonies are scheduled to begin on the air at 11 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time.

Several Washington correspondents, two former members of the Federal Radio Commission and William S. Hedges, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, will be among the announcers heard over the Columbia system, Mr. Paley said yesterday. H. A. Bellows, former member of the Radio Commission, is now in Washington and will have general charge of the Columbia broadcasting activities during the inaugural ceremony. Frederick William Wile will give a word picture of the scene in the United States Senate Chamber, where the Vice President is sworn in. Norman Brokenshire will announce from the steps of the Capitol. Sam Pickard, former radio commissioner, and M. A. Leese, as his assistant, will handle the details of the inaugural broadcast for the network.

From 11 A. M. until about 3 P. M. the words of the incoming President and Vice President, the music of the bands and the cheers of the assembled crowds will be heard over WABC, WOR and the Columbia network.

About thirty microphones are to be used by the National Broadcasting Company for the ceremonies beginning at 11 A. M. and lasting about five hours. The National staff will include Graham McNamee, Milton J. Cross, John B. Daniel, William S. Lynch and others. A microphone will be placed in a special booth at the Senate Chamber and on the Capitol steps, through which David Lawrence, political writer and analyst, will describe the proceedings. This will be followed by a two-hour review of the parade, as it passes the Court of Honor at the White House. The National broadcast will be in charge of Senator George H. Moses. Linked with WEAF and WJZ in New York will be stations scattered throughout the country and a number of short wave transmitters.

Hurling, the national pastime of Ireland, will be played in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, and, for the first time, a play-by-play description of the ancient Irish sport will be broadcast over the radio. The microphone picture will be given by William Manger of the Gaelic Athletic Association, beginning at 8 o'clock over WMSG. The activities will also include two games of Gaelic football, which resembles the game of soccer.

BYRD 'DEEPLY MOVED' BY HUGHES MESSAGE

Explorer Sends Thanks for Words of Encouragement That Traveled 11,000 Miles to Antarctic.

Commander Richard E. Byrd and his companions in the Antarctic heard Charles E. Hughes and Bob Bartlett greet them by radio on Saturday night over station KDKA, according to an acknowledgment received yesterday and made public by G. A. Wendt, representative of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, owner of KDKA. The message as received from station WFBT, on board the City of New York, and addressed to Charles Evans Hughes, said:

I paused in our work of getting material ashore to listen to your message. I heard every word and recognized your voice here 11,000 miles away. I am going to admit to you that your talk has moved me very deeply. The day you consented to act as chairman of our committee I felt greatly encouraged by your acceptance of the chairmanship and inspired by what you said that day. I get from you today the same kind of encouragement and inspiration, only to an even greater degree. I don't believe you can imagine what your message means, coming, as it does, amidst our struggles down here.

You are always were big and liberal and generous. I don't even begin to deserve half of what you said, but you have filled me full of a desire to try to be worthy, but what moved me most was the way you said it. I would rather have had that talk from you than any man living, and so for the second time you have made one of the few really memorable days of my life.

You have drawn a picture of what I would like to be and I am going to shoot for the mark you have set, even though it may be beyond my reach. God be with you and bless you and yours. DICK BYRD.

Captain Bartlett received and made public yesterday the following acknowledgment of his broadcast on Saturday night:

Have wished for you a thousand times. We have had a dickens of a time with the ice. Congratulate you on your last trip. My best regards to you, old friend. We often talk of it. It was good to get your message today. I want to wish you the best of luck with your new project. It is great.

BYRD.

AGREEMENT REACHED BY WNYC AND WMCA

A conciliatory arrangement between Stations WNYC and WMCA concerning their time-sharing program schedule was made for the week of Feb. 24 at a conference yesterday between representatives of both stations.

Commissioner Albert Goldman, Department of Plant and Structures, which operates WNYC, was represented by John F. Fitzpatrick, acting director in charge of the municipal station, while Donald Flamm and W. K. Gillian represented WMCA. It was agreed by WMCA to discontinue the order to show cause now pending in the New York Supreme Court concerning WNYC's ultimatum to broadcast on alternating days.

The time arrangement for the week follows: WNYC will be on the air Monday from 10 A. M. to 12 noon and 5 P. M. to 8 P. M.; Tuesday from 10 A. M. to 12 noon, and 3 P. M. to 9 P. M.; Wednesday from 10 A. M. to 12 noon, 4 P. M. to 5 P. M. and 6:15 P. M. to 9:30 P. M.; Thursday from 10 A. M. to 12 noon, and 4 P. M. to 10 P. M.; Friday from 10 A. M. to 12 noon, and 4 P. M. to 5 P. M.; Saturday from 10 A. M. to 12 noon, and 8 P. M. to 8 P. M.; Sunday from 2 P. M. to 5 P. M.

Commissioner Goldman announced that these arrangements were made so that the public might not lose any of the radio features from both stations until the final decision of the Radio Commission at Washington, D. C.

BROADCASTS ON LOW POWER

KLCN, Blytheville, Ark., Reported to Be Using Only 2 Watts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Hal Smith of Washington, D. C., reported today that he had picked up radio station KLCN at Blytheville, Ark., said to be operating with a power output of three watts, early this morning.

Mr. Smith reports that on seven and a half was the station's strength was about the same as KFI, Los Angeles, and on three watts, about three-quarters that strength, all clear, except when there was fading.

Federal Radio Supervisor W. D. Terrell of Washington said yesterday that he never heard of a broadcaster getting as far as that on such low power, but before he would commit himself officially, he said, he would have to have proof that the broadcaster was using as low power as he said.

RADIO AIDE BACKS NOMINEES TO BOARD

Terrell Tells Senate Committee Two Experts Are Endorsed by Commerce Department.

CALLS THEM EXPERIENCED

He Says Batcheller and Jansky Would Round Out Federal Body—Television Licenses Issued.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—William D. Terrell, chief of the radio division of the Department of Commerce, testified before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee today in favor of the confirmation of the nominations of Arthur Batcheller, radio supervisor of New York, and Professor C. M. Jansky of Minneapolis to be members of the Federal Radio Commission. Mr. Jansky was also on the stand and will resume his testimony on Wednesday morning.

Mr. Terrell said both men were endorsed by the Department of Commerce, which had been asked by President Coolidge to inquire into various designees for the two nominations. He mentioned that Secretary Whiting had expressed the opinion the vacancies should be filled by radio experts, as the commission is at present composed of two lawyers and one business man.

Mr. Jansky, appearing on his own behalf, told the committee he had been graduated at the University of Wisconsin and since 1920 has been Associate Professor of Radio at the University of Minnesota.

Mr. Jansky, answering Senator Dill, denied that he had ever made a statement to the effect that small broadcasting stations should be taken off the air. He said he had voted both the Republican and Democratic tickets. The law makes it necessary that he qualify as a Democrat, as it provides that no more than three members shall be from one political party.

The Radio Commission today licensed J. Francis Jenkins of this city, the Pilot Electric Company of Brooklyn, WAAM of Newark, N. J., and WLIEX, Lexington, Mass., to use short waves for television experimental work.

HOGAN QUITS IRISH ARMY.

Free State Chief of Staff Was Formerly a Railroad Employe.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Feb. 18.—The Free State Government's policy of reducing the establishment and expenditure of the National Army has resulted in the retirement of many officers during the last few months. Among the senior officers to take the retiring gratuity is Lieut. Gen. Daniel Hogan, Chief of Staff. His resignation announced today, takes effect next week.

General Hogan was appointed a member of the Free State Army Council two years ago. He was formerly a clerk in the Great Northern Railway of Ireland, but lost his position during the early days of fighting with the British. During the civil war following establishment of the Free State when Senator Bagwell, general manager of the Great Northern Railway, was kidnapped and held as hostage, General Hogan issued mild reprisals earlier for his release, within twenty-four hours under threat of reprisals. Mr. Bagwell was released before the time limits expired and thanked his former discharged employee.

(General Hogan was largely responsible for reorganization of the Free State Army.

CANAL FLIGHT RULES ISSUED BY COOLIDGE

Zone, Including a Three-Mile Limit, Is Called a "Military Air Space Reservation.'

ROUTES TO BE DESIGNATED

American and Foreign Trade Planes Will Be on Equality in Regard to Facilities.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—The Panama Canal Zone, including its territorial waters within three miles of shore, was today declared to be a "military airspace reservation" by President Coolidge in an Executive order which defines the conditions under which aircraft, American and foreign, may operate in the Canal Zone.

The order, which long has been in preparation, places the flight situation in the Canal Zone on a standard basis for the first time and, while safeguarding all military requirements of the canal, throws the field of commercial aviation there open to Americans and foreigners on equal terms.

It is designed to operate for the benefit of all aviation and is expected, through a definition of flying conditions at the canal, where so many trade routes converge, to stimulate commercial aviation, including the air mail, in reaching out to link the United States with Central and South America.

Under the rules set forth aircraft other than military must enter the Canal Zone by prescribed routes, land at designated airports, submit to customs inspection and carry clearance papers. The carrying of munitions of war is prohibited, while the taking of photographs of military or naval defenses is permitted only on express permission of the Governor of the Canal Zone.

The order was issued after a thorough study of the situation by an interdepartmental committee consisting of Assistant Secretaries of State, War, Navy, Treasury, Postoffice and Commerce Departments. Before being signed it was approved by all members of the Cabinet.

Detailed regulations in conformity with it will now be prepared by the Governor of the Canal Zone setting forth routes which may be used and other details, and these, after being approved by the Secretary of War, will be promulgated by the Secretary of State.

The Executive order is in line with the Pan-American treaty on aviation which was concluded in May, 1927, and which recognizes the right of military reservations to be safeguarded against aviation. It also leaves undisturbed the Executive order of Sept. 28, 1928, under which all non-military fliers, whether Americans or foreigners, must obtain permission from the Secretary of State to enter the Canal Zone.

Henceforth, however, such aviators or aviation companies will not be required to obtain from the Governor of the Canal Zone in every case special routes which they must follow in traversing the Canal Zone.

HELD IN JEWEL ROBBERY.

Suspect Is Said to Have Admitted Part in $60,000 Hold-Up.

Arthur J. Armand, 31 years old, who gave the address 149 West 125th Street, was held in $50,000 bail for the grand jury when he waived examination yesterday before Magistrate Bushel in Tombs court as a suspect in the theft of $60,000 in gems on March 30, 1925, in the hold-up of the jewelry establishment of Sobel & Kaleko, then at 49 Maiden Lane but now at 68 Nassau Street. Four men participated in the robbery, and three of them are serving long terms in State's prison.

Armand was arrested yesterday on the complaint of Thomas Olsen, a storekeeper at Manhattan Avenue and 109th Street, that he had passed a worthless check for $110 on him. Detective Connelly learned that a general alarm had been sent out for Armand in the jewelry hold-up. Questioned by Assistant District Attorney Burns and Deputy Chief Inspector Mulrooney, head of the Detective Division, Armand was alleged to have admitted that he acted as "lookout" for the gunmen in the robbery. Armand also was alleged to have admitted that he received $4,000 as his share of the loot.

3 THUGS ADMIT MURDER.

Indicted for Slaying Furrier, They Plead Guilty in Second Degree.

Three men who had been indicted for murder in the first degree in the shooting last August of Isaac Goldman in the hold-up of the fur establishment on the second floor of 107 West Twenty-first Street pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree yesterday before Judge Nott in General Sessions.

The slayers, Benjamin Tuckel, 25 years old, of 236 West Forty-seventh Street, an ex-convict; George J. Guerrire, 23, of Underhill Avenue, White Plains, and Albert Diamond, 34, of 1,159 Colgate Avenue, the Bronx, were remanded to the Tombs without bail, pending their sentence next Monday. Each may receive a term of from twenty years to life imprisonment.

YUGOSLAVIA SETS UP LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

Seventeen Members in New Body Created by Decree—Queen to Go to Zagreb.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BELGRADE, Feb. 18.—Another step in the process of establishing absolutism in Yugoslavia has been taken by the creation of a supreme legislative body replacing Parliament. A decree creating this body was signed by King Alexander today.

The council consists of seventeen members, presided over by the president of the Court of Cassation, Mihailo Tuvonovitch. The former president of the Skupschtina, Ninko Peritch, was appointed rapporteur. Former members of Parliament, former Ministers, one Croat journalist and a university professor complete the council.

The duties of the new body are little more than advisory. Laws drafted by individual Ministries for royal approval will be submitted to the legislative council for expert opinion. The council will meet when summoned by the Premier, General Zivkovitch.

The impression this gives of a fresh tendency to extend the duration of the dictatorship is strengthened by an article in the Zagreb newspaper Novosti, which apparently is attempting to prepare the Croats for the worst. The article says that while the dictatorship is unlikely to last a decade the people must be prepared for a longer period than three years, proving the necessity for the complete rehabilitation of public life. It urges the people to proceed to the formation of new parties in order that the old parties may never be resurrected.

It is reported here that the court will be transferred temporarily to Zagreb and that the Queen intends to be there when her baby is born so that the Croats may have a Prince or Princess of their own.

2 RUSSIAN GEMS IN LONDON

Widowed Grand Duchess Is Reported Offering Them at $300,000.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Two more noted gems worn at the court of the Czars of Russia have found their way to London.

According to The Daily Mail, the gems were brought here by a courier of the court of Italy. They are a magnificent heart-shaped pink diamond and a circular brooch of brilliant diamonds, in the centre of which is a great, flat, lozenge-shaped emerald weighing seventeen carats.

These jewels were worn years ago by the Empress Catherine of Russia and from her descended to Grand Duke Nicholas, who presented them to his wife, the Grand Duchess Anastasia, sister of the Queen of Italy. The Grand Duchess, on the death of the Grand Duke, has now, through her sister, sent the rose diamond and the great emerald to London for private sale.

The story is told that when the Czar was on his throne $75,000 was offered for the rose diamond and refused. Today the two gems are being negotiated for at a price between $250,000 and $300,000.

LEGACY TO NORTHWESTERN.

$8,000,000 Left to Arts College by H. B. Wilson of Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—More than $8,000,000 was left to Northwestern University for the use of the College of Liberal Arts in the will of Hilton B. Wilson, one of the founders of Willson Brothers, manufacturers and wholesalers of men's furnishings, filed today in the Probate Court. The estate was about $10,000,000.

President Walter Dill Scott said that the university would use the gift in carrying out plans for increase in teachers, buildings and endowment.

Mr. Wilson died in Pasadena, Cal., on Feb. 10 at the age of 78. For many years he was a trustee of Northwestern.

Museum to Show Antarctic Films.

In connection with its school children's course the American Museum of Natural History will present on Feb. 23 and March 6 motion pictures in the museum auditorium under the title "What Byrd Will See in the Antarctic." Explanatory talks will be made by Dr. William Lord Smith. The performances, which will be held at 3 P. M., are free to school children when accompanied by their teachers or parents.

You don't go after stations They come to you... with AUTOMATIC TUNING

STATION after station... each one right on the hairline... from one to the other instantly... at the flick of a finger. That's Zenith Automatic Tuning. No more hunting or searching by hand, in the old-fashioned way. ALL stations... distant or local... come in instantly at the mere press of a button. Here is not only effortless radio operation... but also flawless radio operation... sharper tuning than was ever possible by hand-dialing... actually microscopic exactness.

only ZENITH has it!

Zenith Automatic Radio is 1930 Radio... a full year in advance of the field. See it TODAY, at your dealer... operate it... you'll never be content with anything else...

With Zenith Automatic Radio you simply press a button, and the wanted station comes in instantly... right on the dot.

No limit to the number of stations you can get... no need to tune in any station more than once... it will always be at the beck and call of your Finger Tip thereafter.

A child can tune more accurately... at the flick of a finger... than can an expert, tuning the old-fashioned way, in ten minutes.

You can "repeat" distant as well as local stations, at will.

Make system alkaline to ...Stop Colds QUICK!

Get Rid of Colds Before They Weaken You, Make You Liable to More Serious Troubles.

Nowadays it's important to stop your cold quick before it weakens your resistance to more serious trouble.

Any of the older treatments will bring relief—after a time. But thousands say this new way is the quickest of any.

Begin when you feel a cold coming. Take a tablespoonful of Phillips Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water, morning, noon, and night, the first day. Do same the second day. Then only at night. Colds reduce the alkaline balance of your system. That makes you feel achy, feverish, weak. Phillips Milk of Magnesia relieves this, and restores the alkaline balance.

Doctors prescribe Phillips Milk of Magnesia; hospitals use it. Millions know how it relieves sour stomachs, gas, indigestion, constipation and other symptoms of too much acid. Get the genuine.

The perfection of detail in an Apartment-Home, is not accidental nor incidental, it is the result of forethought and proplanning.

DR. HILLIS SLIGHTLY BETTER

But the Family Holds Out Little Hope for His Recovery.

The condition of the Rev. Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, which became so grave Sunday that his family gave up all hope for his recovery, improved slightly yesterday, although he still remains in a coma.

"His pulse seems better today," said his daughter, Miss Marjorie Hillis, who lives with her parents at 10 Gramatan Gardens, Bronxville.

"There seems to be no hope that he will get well and the doctor considers it a hopeless case, because there have been so many complications, but today his condition improved."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Nothing of particularly impressive character happened on yesterday's money or stock market. Call money, it is true, declined to 7 per cent, as against Friday's 10 per cent rate. But the demand loan rate is just now influenced by a variety of causes which operate irregularly. Only last week they drove that market back and forth between 6 per cent and 10. Undoubtedly, Wall Street's particular apprehension at the week-end arose from doubt as to how the warning by the Reserve Board and the Advisory Council, against rediscounts asked by member banks "for the purpose of maintaining speculative loans," would affect the $2,956,000,000 brokers' loans now existing at the banks. But even a sweeping change of Reserve Bank policy in this regard could not operate instantaneously.

If applied consistently, it would come into force as the sixty or ninety day bills which are now under rediscount should run out, and the borrowing member banks endeavor to renew their credits at the Reserve banks—a more or less gradual process. In the meantime, the extent to which the new attitude would compel member banks to cut down heavily on their speculative loans would partly depend on requirements of trade. It had already become evident that a season of active mercantile borrowing could not again occur, in the face of the present brokers' loan account, without gravely deranging the whole money market. The crucial test of the new Reserve Bank policy will therefore be encountered probably in the Spring trade season, certainly in the Autumn. An impending situation of the kind is usually more or less anticipated in the market; but the only definite indication at the moment is the tightening of time loans on Stock Exchange collateral to 7¼ per cent, the highest of the period.

The recovery in yesterday's stock market was popularly ascribed to the lower call-money rate. It more probably resulted from repurchases by professional "bear sellers" who put out stocks in last week's 10 to 30 point declines of active shares. A break of that scope does not continue uninterruptedly, unless either the large professional speculators or the speculating outside public shall have taken such fright as to cause panicky liquidation. That not wholly unfamiliar picture has not yet been presented; yesterday's partial recovery of its lost ground by the market followed naturally. It can hardly be doubted that the Federal Reserve would prefer a gradual and orderly retreat of the speculators to a sweeping and sensational collapse. Whether or not the circumstances will admit of this remains to be determined. It will be decided less by the action of the Reserve banks than by the conduct of the stock market itself.

Advances in the more active shares yesterday ranged from 1 to 12 points; most of them lost a third or a fourth of the day's extreme advance before the close. Transactions were the smallest of any full business day this year; less by a million shares than last Wednesday and two million under the active days of the first week in January. This of itself indicated hesitant "leaders" and an uncertain "outside public." Sterling slipped off a fraction; London money rates held firm, and practically no gold went into or out of the Bank of England. The Labor Department's report on employment and pay rolls in manufacturing industries during January showed increase, as compared with a year ago, of nearly 4 per cent in the men employed and of 5½ per cent in their earnings. Last year's monthly employment averages rose 4⅝ per cent between January and October, and the present average is 4⅞ per cent below that for the whole of 1926.

CHILDS RAISES ISSUE WITH HARRY S. BLACK

He Denies Company's Papers Show Record of Negotiation With United States Realty.

William Childs, chairman of the board of the Childs Company, questioned yesterday in an open letter to Harry S. Black, head of the United States Realty and Improvement Company, statements made by the latter last week regarding the intended lease of space to the Childs Company in the extension of the Savoy-Plaza Hotel.

The negotiation, Mr. Black said on Feb. 14, "had progressed to a point where Mr. Barber and I had agreed on all the essential features and made a memorandum which we signed. A draft of the lease was prepared and was to be submitted to the executive committee on the very day when you [Mr. Childs] seized control of the board of directors and prevented the holding of such a meeting by abolishing the executive committee itself."

It is now asserted by Mr. Childs in his letter to Mr. Black that the Childs Company's files contain nothing whatever regarding this negotiation. "In all the papers that Mr. Barber and his law firm turned back to Childs Company, as required by the resolution adopted by the latter's board of directors on Jan. 31, 1929, there is not a single reference to this important negotiation," Mr. Childs said.

Inter-Allied Aeronautics, Inc.

Formation of Inter-Allied Aeronautics, Inc., with a capitalization of $5,000,000 for underwriting aircraft securities and financing aeronautical projects was announced yesterday by its president, Colonel George R. Shanton. The offices of the company are at 524 Fifth Avenue. Among the directors are General Milton F. Davis and Peter J. Brady.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Although movement of prices on the the Stock Exchange yesterday was irregular, there was a spirited recovery in the afternoon which heartened the Wall Street element committed to the advance. Prominent operators were credited with saying the market was oversold, so much so that they were willing to risk a buying demonstration. It was apparent to the sophisticated that professionals were trying to rally the market, apparently on the theory that the traders who were short would be driven to cover on any sign of an advance. Brokers confirmed the general impression that "bear covering" accounted for much of the strength in the afternoon.

Market Turns Dull.

Transactions on the Stock Exchange yesterday were the smallest in volume since Dec. 21. The turnover was 3,475,550 shares, which Wall Street now looks upon as "slow trading." About 450,000 shares changed hands in the first half-hour, which was the most active period of the day. During the rest of the morning trading was so light that the ticker was able to keep up with the market, printing the volume on most trades. The market speeded up somewhat in the afternoon, but without ever getting into a rush. Traders long of stocks professed to regard the dullness as a favorable sign, indicating that liquidation was being halted.

Course of Money Rates.

The decline in call money rates, first to 8 per cent and then to 7, as compared with the 10 per cent touched on Friday, was commonly ascribed to other than banking lenders. The position in that respect was recognized, however, as obscure, and no one in Wall Street was willing to predict what would be the course of the call-money market during the next few weeks or months. Last year call money, which had been 3½ per cent in January, went to 4½ in February, reaching 5 per cent at the end of March and 6 in April and May. Advances in the bank rate had their effect on that occasion. In 1927, when the February call-money rate was as low as 3¾ per cent, it went to 5 at the end of the month and touched 5 again, despite the prevailing easy money conditions at the end of April. Opinion yesterday was mixed about action on the New York Reserve bank rate. Stock brokers expressed conviction that no change would be made; opinion among bankers was more reserved.

"Interpreting" News.

One student of the ticker remarked yesterday that formerly dissension in the management of a company was kept quiet for fear of depressing the organization's stock. Now, he continued, rumors of dissension were frequently sufficient to cause a sharp rise. The new argument is that whenever directors disagree, they fly out to a brokerage office and attempt to buy control from their opponents.

A "Street Mystery."

Seldom has Wall Street been interested in so engaging a mystery as the future of the American Railway Express Company, it was remarked yesterday, when the executives of that company were elected to official posts of the new express agency formed by the railroads. This step will leave the old organization presumably without a president. It is already without a business, since that has been acquired by the railroads. Nevertheless, it has cash assets of about $40,000,000 and a charter, the latter useful in the event that the company wishes to carry merchandise by highway. Wall Street has therefore made several inquiries as to what is in store for American Railway Express and echo has made the usual answer.

Course of Passenger Traffic.

The fact that in 1928 passenger traffic on the railroads continued its downward trend and reached its lowest level in twenty years did not cause surprise in railroad circles yesterday. Practically every annual report for 1927 noted a decrease in passenger traffic and this movement will be shown again in reports for 1928. What was more interesting to railroad men was the question of what was being done to meet the situation. In answering their own question, it was asserted that reports this year would show greatly increased mileage by the economical motor passenger cars and also probably would make reference to efforts to stimulate passenger travel. Chief among these stimulants is the use of elaborate equipment to tempt the passengers from the highway to the rails. The New York Central and, more recently, the New Jersey Central, have been among Eastern roads to install expensive coach equipment.

Municipal Stock for Bonds.

In view of the trend in new financing from bonds to stocks, with the consequent dullness in the bond market, dealers in municipal securities have been bewailing their inability to sell obligations representing an interest in a city rather than its obligations. Curiously enough, New York City describes its long-term obligations, of single maturity, as "stock," to distinguish them from serial bonds or notes. Whether stocks or bonds, however, municipal obligations are in slack demand, with little hope for any considerable change in the outlook in the near future.

MONEY.

Monday, Feb. 18, 1929.

Demand loans renewed at 8 per cent., as compared with the closing rate of 10 per cent Friday. Funds were offered freely at the Stock Exchange lending table, and the call loan rate was reduced to 7 per cent in the afternoon. Concessions from this figure were reported in the unofficial market. Time loans remained unchanged at 7¾ per cent for shorter maturities and 7½ to 7⅝ per cent for longer dates.

The Company has no funded debt.

The following is summarized from the letter signed by the Directors and from other sources:

HISTORY: The Company has been formed to take over the Gramophone Record Factory at New Malden, England, one of the best equipped in Europe with a capacity of 20,000,000 highest quality records per annum and, through purchase of over 95 per cent of its issued capital, The Decca Gramophone Company, Ltd., with the exclusive use of the name "Decca" for Gramophone Records.

The business of The Decca Gramophone Company, Ltd., was founded in 1832 for the manufacture and distribution of all classes of musical instruments. It was incorporated as a Company in 1901 as Barnett Samuel & Sons, Ltd., and the name was later changed to The Decca Gramophone Company, Ltd. In 1915 the Company began the production of the Portable Gramophone called the "Decca," probably the best-known instrument of its type in Europe. It is protected by patents and trademarks which have been taken out or applied for in 52 countries. Recently the "Salon Decca," a Cabinet Audioscopic Gramophone considered an achievement in sound reproduction as regards volume and tone, was perfected. The Decca Gramophone Company, Ltd., still maintains its successful business in the manufacture of dance band and other musical instruments, which are sold under the name of "John Grey & Sons," throughout the musical world. The Company's plant is situated in South London and has a floor space of over 2¼ acres.

BUSINESS: The Decca Record Company, Ltd. represents the combination of one of the most modern European gramophone record plants with a world-wide selling organization. Through The Decca Gramophone Company, Ltd. the services of 65 wholesale distributors and travelling representatives throughout the world, in addition to 7,000 retailers in the Home Trade, are available from the outset. The reputation of The Decca Gramophone Company, Ltd., is the result of 28 years' experience in the production and marketing of gramophones. No less than 21.9 per cent of the total number of gramophones exported from the United Kingdom in 1927 (the last year for which the figures are available) were manufactured by that Company.

EARNINGS: The average annual net profits for the past three years of The Decca Gramophone Company, Ltd. were $309,182, of which the proportion

MANAGEMENT: The Management of the Company is in the hands of J. H. Balfour, Esq., Managing Director, together with Sir George Fowler, Sir Stanley Machin, Sir S. Mendl, S. J. Avidon, Esq., and William Francis Lloyd, Esq., constituting the Board of Directors.

Ordinary Shares of The Decca Gramophone Co., Ltd., are dealt in on the London Stock Exchange and application has been made for permission to deal in the Ordinary Shares of The Decca Record Company, Ltd. It is expected that delivery will be made on or about February 28, 1929 in the form of Interim Receipts or American Shares to be issued by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, Depositary. Application will be made to list the American Shares on the New York Curb Market.

THE UNDERSIGNED WILL RECEIVE SUBSCRIPTIONS, SUBJECT TO ALLOTMENT, FOR AMERICAN SHARES IF, AS AND WHEN ISSUED AND RECEIVED BY THEM.

Northwest Cities Gas Company

First Mortgage Six Per Cent Gold Bonds

Dated January 1st, 1929 Due January 1st, 1949

Principal and semi-annual interest (January 1st and July 1st) payable at the office or agency of the Company, in either New York City or Chicago. Coupon bonds in interchangable denominations of $1,000 and $500; registerable as to principal. Redeemable as a whole or in part at any time upon thirty days' published notice, to and including January 1st, 1933, at 105 and accrued interest; thereafter, to and including January 1st, 1938, at 103 and accrued interest; thereafter, to and including January 1st, 1943, at 102 and accrued interest; thereafter, to and including January 1st, 1948, at 101 and accrued interest; thereafter, but prior to maturity, at par and accrued interest. Interest payable without deduction for any normal Federal Income Tax not in excess of two per cent. Refund of certain state taxes, upon timely and proper application, as provided in the Mortgage. The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, New York City, Trustee.

Business: Northwest Cities Gas Company, a wholly owned subsidiary of Union Utilities, Inc., owns and operates the gas manufacturing and distributing systems in the cities of Astoria and Pendleton, Oregon; Walla Walla and Yakima, Washington; and Lewiston, Idaho. The properties include gas holders and modern gas manufacturing plants with a daily capacity in excess of 1,600,000 cubic feet. The distribution system includes 147 miles of city mains and 8,933 consumers' meters. The cities served have a population estimated in excess of 83,000 and are located in prosperous and growing territories as has been reflected in the development of the properties. These properties enjoy satisfactory public relations and have been in continuous and successful operation for various periods up to 46 years.

Security: These bonds, in the opinion of counsel, constitute a direct obligation of Northwest Cities Gas Company and are secured by a first mortgage on its entire fixed physical properties. The replacement value of the Company's properties, as appraised by independent engineers, is in excess of $2,300,000.

Earnings: The Gross Income of Northwest Cities Gas Company for the 12 months ended November 30th, 1928, was $361,730. The balance after deducting Operating Expenses, Maintenance and Taxes (excluding Federal Income Tax) was $124,036, which is equivalent to over twice the maximum annual First Mortgage interest charges on this issue.

Ownership and Management: Union Utilities, Inc., owns all the capital stock of the Northwest Cities Gas Company and in addition, through wholly owned subsidiaries, owns the gas manufacturing and/or gas distributing systems in the cities of El Paso, Galveston, Waco, Paris and Brenham, Texas; Guthrie, Oklahoma; and Council Bluffs, Iowa. The above mentioned properties include artificial gas manufacturing plants with a total daily capacity in excess of 17,775,000 cubic feet, gas holders with an aggregate storage capacity of 4,395,000 cubic feet, and distributing systems consisting of 679 miles of city mains and 54,859 consumers' meters, serving a combined population estimated in excess of 400,000.

QUERIES COOLIDGE ON RESERVE ACTION

Black Asks That President and Mellon Tell Whether Board Seeks to Aid England.

QUESTIONS NORMAN'S VISIT

Three Resolutions Ask Details on Possible Meetings of Directors With British Banker.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon were asked today to explain to the House what relations, if any, exist between the Federal Reserve Board and the Bank of England, through three identic resolutions offered in the House today by Representative Loring M. Black Jr. of New York, Democrat.

Mr. Black offered his new resolutions after Speaker Longworth had ruled out of order a like measure, presented last week, calling upon the Federal Reserve Board to explain whether it had held any conferences with Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, prior to the issuance of its statement of Feb. 6, warning against excessive loans for speculative purposes. The Speaker ruled that the measure had been improperly addressed.

Mr. Black had addressed the resolution to the Federal Reserve Board. The Speaker held that to be in order it should have been addressed to the head of a department. Accordingly Mr. Black offered today three resolutions, one addressed to the President, another to Mr. Mellon, as Secretary of Treasury, and third to Mr. Mellon, as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

Charged Board Aided England.

Mr. Black charged, in a speech last week, that the Federal Reserve Board was trying to build up the British gold reserve. He now wants to know whether Mr. Norman, as the representative of the Bank of England, had anything to do with the board's "warning" of Feb. 6.

Mr. Black said today that he regretted that the Speaker's ruling compelled him to draw President Coolidge into the controversy over the Reserve Board.

The identic resolutions he offered follow:

1. Did the Federal Reserve Board confer with Mr. Montagu Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, during the month of February, 1929?

2. Were such conferences, if any, solicited by Montagu Norman or by the Federal Reserve Board?

3. What was the subject matter of such conferences and what agreement, if any, was entered into by the Federal Reserve Board and Montagu Norman, and what was said at such conferences?

4. Were notes made of such conferences, and, if so, what were they?

5. Did the Federal Reserve Board confer with any individuals other than Montagu Norman prior to and concerning the public statement issued by the Federal Reserve Board on Feb. 7, 1929, and what was said at such conferences, if any?

Says Public Should Know Motives.

"The President," said Mr. Black, "should let the country know whether the Administration has decided on a deflation policy to assist Great Britain. He should ascertain for the Congress whether or not the Federal Reserve Board is more concerned about European financial progress than it is about a continuity of American prosperity.

"It is highly unfair to the incoming administration that the outgoing administration should allow violent depression to American business. It is ridiculous to draw a tariff bill against European products if the Federal Reserve Board is to put an embargo on domestic credits in the interest of European business. Congress and the public should be advised of the administration's attitude.

"The Federal Reserve Board has received my resolution of interrogatories from Chairman McFadden of the Banking and Currency Committee. If its arrangement with Governor Norman of the Bank of England is in the public interest, it should not have withheld details from the House committee.

"Near Panic" Is Discerned.

"I intend driving on this inquiry in this Congress, and if I do not get results now, will take it up at the special session. I wish to see Mr. Hoover have a successful administration and regret that the Federal Reserve Board, functioning under the Coolidge Administration, meets Mr. Hoover on the threshold of his Presidency with a near-panic. If there is any justification for the Federal Reserve Board's violence in the matter of securities buying, the public should know the details. It is plainly the duty of the White House and the Congress to have light cast on the visit of Governor Norman.

"The Secretary of the Navy could not give the British Admiralty a row boat, the Secretary of War could not give the British Army a cartridge, and there is no reason why the Federal Reserve Board should help British business at the expense of American industry."

Under the House rules, Mr. Black will have the privilege of calling up his resolutions for action if at the end of a seven-day period no response has been made by President Coolidge or Secretary Mellon.

Warning Followed Norman Visit.

The "warning" issued by the Federal Reserve Board on Feb. 6 was virtually concurrent with an increase in the Bank of England discount rate from 4½ to 5½ per cent, both actions coming after Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, had spent a week in New York and Washington conferring with banking authorities and Treasury officials. No connection between any of these occurrences has been admitted by those concerned.

Wall Street viewed Mr. Norman's arrival in New York late in January with a certain amount of misgiving, owing to the heavy flow of gold at that time in progress from London to New York. The gold shipments were made profitable by the decline of sterling exchange below the gold shipment point, and it appeared likely that they would continue because of the heavy cable transfers of funds from London to this market to take advantage of the higher money rates prevalent here.

Although the gold shipments were a favorable development from the point of view of the American speculative community, they were recognized as a matter of grave import for British finance. The special war currency of Great Britain had been fused late last year with the older Bank of England currency, and made a part of the English Bank's obligations. This necessitated the maintenance of the Bank's gold stock above £150,000,000, but the gold drain to America brought the holdings perilously close to this level.

Mr. Norman on his arrival was noncommittal as to the reasons for his visit. In Washington early in February the impression was gained that he had come to the United States for a general discussion of international financial conditions with Secretary Mellon and members of the Federal Reserve Board.

Board Statement Caused Selling.

The Reserve Board warning of Feb. 6 was foreshadowed on the previous day by the statement in Washington that an important announcement was to be made. This caused a good deal of selling in Wall Street and turned the trend of stock prices downward. The statement itself on Feb. 6 was viewed as an emphatic one, directed against the growing use of credit to finance the speculation in securities.

Previous cooperation between the Federal Reserve banks and foreign central banks is a matter of record. When sterling was brought up to gold parity and a free gold market re-established in England several years ago, the Federal Reserve banks established a credit of $200,000,000 in favor of the Bank of England. Advances of smaller size for the same purpose have since been made to other European central banks.

It is assumed in Wall Street that the lowering of the Federal Reserve rediscount rate in 1927 to a lower figure than was prevalent at the European central banks was to foster an outflow of gold from America to Europe to aid in reconstruction there. This was the main factor in the shipments of the latter part of that year, which resulted in a net loss of about $500,000,000 of gold to European banks.

Peru Calls $125,000 Bonds.

Holders of Republic of Peru 6 per cent external sinking fund bonds, due Oct. 1, 1961, are being notified that $125,000 principal amount of these bonds has been drawn for redemption for April 1 at par. Payment of the drawn bonds will be made at the offices of J. & W. Seligman & Co. or the National City Bank.

BOND FLOTATIONS.

Public Utility and Real Estate Securities to Be Marketed by Investment Bankers.

Offering of a new issue of $9,000,000 Florida Power Corporation first mortgage 5½ per cent bonds, Series A, due on Jan. 1, 1979, will be made today at a price of 94, to yield more than 5.87 per cent. The banking group is headed by E. H. Rollins & Sons and Howe, Snow & Co., Inc., and includes the Old Colony Corporation, Hill, Joiner & Co., Inc.; Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc.; Hemphill, Noyes & Co.; Coffin & Burr, Inc.; Otis & Co., Stroud & Co., Inc.; the Emery, Peck & Rockwood Company, and Eastman, Dillon & Co. Proceeds from the sale of this issue, and also of a block of additional common stock which is to be offered, will be used to retire the utility's present funded debt and for other corporate purposes. The company is a part of the Middle West Utilities System.

Republic of Panama.

The Royal Financial Corporation of Vancouver, B. C., was the successful bidder for an issue of $1,000,000 National Bank of Panama 6½ per cent twenty-year bonds today and will make public offering of the bonds, which are guaranteed unconditionally by the Republic of Panama. The proceeds are to be used for investment in mortgages on city and farm properties. This is the second instance in which the Vancouver institution has competed successfully with New York and other bond houses.

Northwest Cities Gas Company.

P. W. Chapman & Co., Inc., have placed a new issue of $1,000,000 Northwest Cities Gas Company first mortgage 6 per cent bonds, due on Jan. 1, 1949. The company, a subsidiary of Union Utilities, Inc., was formed recently to own and operate gas manufacturing and distributing systems in five cities in Oregon, Washington and Idaho. This financing was done in connection with the acquisition of these properties.

Ernesto Breda Company.

Initial financing in this market for the Ernesto Breda Company, manufacturer of locomotives and other railway equipment in Italy, will be undertaken shortly by a syndicate headed by Dillon, Read & Co. and E. H. Rollins & Sons. The offering will consist of $5,000,000 of first mortgage twenty-five-year 7 per cent bonds, with stock purchase warrants attached. The company, in addition to its manufacture of railway equipment, is engaged also in shipbuilding and airplane construction.

Real Estate Mortgages.

Offering of real estate mortgages totaling $985,000 will be made today by the Lawyers' Mortgage Company at prices to yield 5½ per cent. The offering consists of guaranteed first mortgage certificates, due from Dec. 21, 1933, to April 16, 1934, secured by improved property in Brooklyn, the Bronx and Queens.

Central Zone Building.

S. W. Straus & Co. are offering at par and accrued interest an issue of $2,000,000 first mortgage 6 per cent sinking fund gold bond certificates of the Central Zone Building, Inc., dated Feb. 15, 1929, and maturing on Feb. 15, 1941.

Realty Foundation.

A new issue of $1,000,000 Realty Foundation, Inc., 6 per cent guaranteed participating bonds, due on Feb. 1, 1939, will be placed on the market at par today by the National American Securities Company, Inc. The issue will be guaranteed both as to principal and interest by the General Surety Company. It is secured by a group of real estate mortgages and blocks of listed and unlisted stock deposited with a trustee. This is the fifth series of bonds issued by the corporation.

MUNICIPAL LOANS.

Announcements of New Bond Issues to Be Offered to the Public.

A call for sealed bids on a new issue of $850,000 school bonds, to be opened on March 14, has been issued by York (Pa.) School District. The issue will consist of 4¼s, maturing serially on April 1, 1930 to 1958.

New Britain, Conn.

Award of an issue of $540,000 City of New Britain (Conn.) 4¼ per cent school bonds, due on Aug. 1, 1929 to 1958, was made yesterday to H. L. Allen & Co., Inc., at a price of 99.15. The second bid was 99.08, made by R. L. Day & Co., with the National City Company third with a tender of 98.21.

Brighton, N. Y.

The Town of Brighton, N. Y., will open bids tomorrow on a new issue of $79,500 5 per cent bonds, maturing on Sept. 1, 1929 to 1940. The bonds are issued for sidewalk and sewer improvements.

50,000 Shares*

Berliner-Joyce Aircraft Corporation of Baltimore, Md.

Class A Voting Stock

(Non-callable, Preferred and Participating as to Dividends)

No Par Value

*Of which 5,000 shares are being issued for material and equipment of the Berliner Aircraft Corporation and 10,000 shares are under a 3 year option at $20 per share.

Berliner-Joyce Aircraft Corporation's capitalization is 50,000 shares Class A stock and 40,000 shares Class B stock. (Class B stock is being distributed for services.) Class A stock is entitled to preference dividends of $1.50 per share per annum, cumulative after January 1, 1930, and in addition thereto is entitled to participate, share for share, with Class B stock in all other dividends. Both Class A and Class B stock have voting rights share for share. Class A stock is non-callable, and in the event of liquidation or sale of assets of the Corporation, whether voluntary or involuntary, is entitled to preference of $20 and accrued dividends per share over Class B stock, and shares equally with Class B stock, share for share, in all additional assets.

History and Business: Berliner-Joyce Aircraft Corporation, incorporated under the laws of Maryland, is the outgrowth of Berliner Aircraft Company, Inc., located in Alexandria, Va. and organized by Henry A. Berliner, son of Emile Berliner, inventor of the telephone transmitter and disc talking machine. Henry A. Berliner, graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has had more than twelve years' experience in aircraft construction and operation.

Recent developments in the production of military aircraft have led to re-capitalization of the company.

Mr. Temple N. Joyce received his education at the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute and Lehigh University, and during the war, in his capacity of test pilot for the U. S. Army, flew and tested practically every type of aircraft constructed by the Allied Nations and the Central Powers. He has been connected with the aeronautical industry since 1919, having been chief test pilot and Washington representative of the Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Company, and more recently sales manager of the Chance Vought Corporation.

Program for 1929: Following a survey of thirty possible locations, Berliner-Joyce executives have acquired five and a half acres at the Baltimore, Md., Airport, favorably situated because of its proximity to Washington, D. C.

Plans for buildings to cost $150,000 have been drawn and a $100,000 expenditure for machinery has been specified.

Completion of the factory is scheduled for May 1st, 1929.

In addition to the three-passenger plane now being produced, the new Baltimore plant will complete tests on a new low-cost metal propellor, an experimental monel metal pontoon being built for the United States Navy and an all-metal two-passenger cabin monoplane which is designed to retail at $2,900.

Military Aircraft Program: It is to be noted that two years ago Congress inaugurated the so-called "Five Year Program" which provides that at the end of five years the Army and Navy should be equipped with approximately 3,000 modern airplanes.

Under this program, practically all new Government aircraft are designed today by individual companies, working under contracts. Production of a successful experimental plane, moreover, is invariably followed by a substantial production order. It is of distinct advantage to a commercial company to have their design staff available for commercial projects, yet supported in the main by military contracts.

The additional value of military plane production in conjunction with commercial plane manufacture, lies in the fact that costs of production for both branches are reduced when a single supervising staff directs the two.

Engineering Skill Keynote of Success: Success of today's leading automobile producers has been the result, in large measure, of the skill and ingenuity of their engineering departments in the early years of the industry. In like manner, the far sighted aviation executives are today bending every effort to attain leadership through the creation of superior engineering departments.

The roster of Berliner-Joyce engineers and designers is impressive. Among the nationally known experts, aside from the Messrs. Berliner and Joyce, will be:

FRANK S. HUBBARD, Chief Engineer. Massachusetts Institute of Technology, '16, recently head of Technical Department, Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Company. Formerly Bureau of Aeronautics, U. S. Navy, where he collaborated in the design of the NC-4 which flew the Atlantic Ocean. Also directed designing of winners in Schneider Cup Races 1923, 1925 and the winners in Pulitzer Cup races of 1922-25.

WILLIAM H. MILLER, Engineer in charge of Research. Master of Science in Aeronautical Engineering, M.I.T., designer of M.I.T. wind tunnel. Lately in charge of Research Laboratory of Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Company. He is considered one of America's foremost aero-dynamic experts.

WILLIAM WAIT, JR., Chief of Design, who, while with Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Company was project engineer of the famous racing planes which won world championships. More recently design engineer with Chance Vought Corporation.

EARL P. OSBORN, Engineer in charge of Structures. Graduate of Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Mechanical Engineer, 1921. During the war trained as Reserve Military Aviator. Received R. M. A. rating. Employed with the Curtiss Company March, 1922 as engineer. In charge of Propellor Department, 1924-1927, collaborating in the design of propellors used by Pulitzer and Schneider Cup Racers and Italian Cup Racers 1925-1926. Head of Structural Section of Curtiss Company since October, 1927.

T. E. PELL, formerly factory superintendent, Naval Aircraft Factory, Philadelphia, will hold the same position with Berliner-Joyce Aircraft Corporation.

Directors: Directorate of Berliner-Joyce Aircraft Corporation will include:

HENRY BERLINER
Vice-President in charge of Construction and Production of the Berliner-Joyce Aircraft Corporation.

COL. B. F. CASTBE
President, First Federal Foreign Banking Corp.; Treasurer, Aeronautical Industries, Inc.; Director, Great Lakes Aircraft Corp.; Treasurer, Nat. Aeronautic Assoc. of U. S. A.

J. J. PELLEY SLATED TO HEAD NEW HAVEN

KNOWN AS OPERATING MAN

The selection of John J. Pelley, president of the Central Railway of Georgia, to be president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad to succeed the late Edward J. Pearson was learned unofficially in railroad circles yesterday. Edward G. Buckland, chairman of the New Haven, who has been performing the duties of president since Jan. 3, declined last night to give official confirmation, but it is expected the announcement will be made at the next directors' meeting on Feb. 26 or sooner.

In selecting Mr. Pelley, the New Haven has followed a policy of placing an operating man in the presidency of the road. Mr. Pearson is an engineer by profession, and as head of the Central of Georgia, a subsidiary of the Illinois Central, Mr. Pelley's duties were largely concerned with operation.

In assuming the highest position left vacant in the Eastern railroad field since the death of Chauncey M. Depew, president of the New York Central, Mr. Pelley is following a precedent set by other Central of Georgia officials. L. A. Downs, president of the Illinois Central, was formerly president of the Central of Georgia, and L. W. Baldwin, president of the Missouri Pacific, is a former vice president of the Central of Georgia.

The selection of Mr. Pelley to the New Haven's headship comes as a surprise to railroad circles here. It was at first thought that a successor to Mr. Pearson would be chosen from within the New Haven organization. While this view had been changed recently, no intimation had been forthcoming that New Haven officials would go to the Illinois Central organization for a new leader.

Special to The New York Times.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 18.—J. J. Pelley, at present president of the Central Railway of Georgia, will resign tomorrow when he will be elected president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad. The New Haven board will announce his election following its meeting in New York and the Central of Georgia board will announce his resignation and will also announce the name of his successor. Who this is to be was not known here tonight.

Mr. Pelley will also resign as president of the Ocean Steamship Company, an auxiliary of the Central of Georgia, with ships plying between Savannah, New York and Boston.

Mr. Pelley came to Savannah in 1925 from the Illinois Central Railway to succeed L. A. Downs, who at that time became president of the Illinois Central. He has literally worked up from the tracks, having been employed as a young man in the construction department of the Illinois Central. He has reduced the operating cost of the Central of Georgia materially. It is not known exactly when Mr. Pelley will go East to assume his duties.

RAILWAY EARNINGS.

Preliminary Reports of Results of Operations Last Year Are Issued.

Preliminary reports of earnings in 1928 issued yesterday by railroads showed gains in net income and, in one case, also in gross revenue.

The offering will comprise 50,000 shares of participating convertible stock of no par value, priced at $49 a share, and 14,000 shares of common stock of no par value, priced at the market. The activities of the corporation and its subsidiaries include book publishing and loose leaf service.

TO HOLD CHEMICAL STOCKS.

Company Formed to Acquire Westvaco and Other Concerns.

The formation of United Chemical, Inc., as a holding company to acquire control of chemical companies, was announced yesterday. The company's first step will be to acquire 51 per cent of the outstanding stock of the Westvaco Chlorine Products Corporation, consisting of at least 102,000 shares of common stock and $1,156,800 of preferred stock. No offer will be made to the minority shareholders at present. The common stock of Westvaco will be obtained by an exchange of shares, and $6,000,000 of participating $3 preferred stock of United Chemical will be sold to the public to provide funds for the purchase of the Westvaco preferred stock. This will leave nearly $5,000,000 in the treasury of United Chemical to be used in acquiring other companies.

Westvaco's indicated net earnings last year were $3.14 a share on the common stock. In January, 1928, the company acquired all the stock of the Warner Chemical Company.

Directors of United Chemical include W. B. Thom, president of Westvaco and Warner Chemical; Matthew C. Brush, Edwin A. Potter, H. Hobart Porter and Clifford B. Ewart.

New Diesel Corporation Chartered.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, Del., Feb. 18.—A charter was granted today to the General Super-Diesel Motors Corporation, capitalized for 250,000 shares of common stock at $10 par value. The corporation will engage in the manufacture of a new high-speed, two-cycle supercharged Diesel engine, using highly heated fuel to obtain from rapid ignition greater power with economy of operation.

RAILROADS ACQUIRE OLD EXPRESS STAFF

President Cowie and Others Taken From Present Company to Direct New Agency.

NO LAPSE IN OPERATIONS

70,000 Employes Also Will Be Transferred on March 1 to Carriers' Payrolls.

The directors of the Railway Express Agency, Inc., organized recently by the railroads to acquire the business of the American Railway Express Company, yesterday placed the chief executives of the latter in corresponding positions in the new company. This assured a continuity of operation and management when the business formally changes hands on March 1. It also will leave American Railway Express without a business or executive but with about $40,000,000 of cash.

Robert E. M. Cowie, president of American Railway Express, was elected president of the Railway Express Agency. When a boy, Mr. Cowie decided to go ostrich farming in South Africa, but after a friend had backed out of the project he spent half of his savings for a railroad ticket from Boston to Cleveland. In the latter city he became a junior clerk for the American Express Company. He rose from that position to the presidency of American Railway in 1923.

About 70,000 exployes of the American Express Company will find themselves working for the railroads on March 1. American Railway Express was formed when the business of the express companies, already affected by parcel post competition, was further depressed by war conditions. Under government control the railway business of the express companies was merged into one organization in 1918. The existence of this concern was made permanent by the transportation act of 1920, with the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and thus the company became a legal monopoly. It moves 98 per cent of the nation's express business through a system extending all over the country. It handled 178,447,000 individual shipments and operated 25,052 offices last year. Its railway mileage is 258,766 and its air mileage 7,748.

American, Adams, Wells Fargo and Southern were among the express companies represented by the American Railway Express Company. American and Adams, however, emerged as holders of 70 per cent control in American Railway Express, and the decision of what will be done with the $40,000,000 cash lies with the managements of these two companies. American Railway Express still possesses its charter, which could be used in the operation of a highway express service.

Marcus L. Bell and F. C. Nicodemus were appointed vice presidents and Henry W. Clark assistant secretary of the new agency. These men were members of the railroads' legal committee that drew up plans for acquisition of the express business.

Other appointments to executive and managerial positions in the Railway Express Agency, Inc., were: W. A. Benson, executive ice president; Charles A. Lutz, vice president, general accounting department; W. B. Clark, vice president and treasurer; L. R. Gwyn, vice president, personnel department; G. S. Lee, vice president, traffic department; H. S. Marx, vice president and general counsel; E. R. Merry Jr., secretary, all with headquarters in New York.

EMPLOYMENT LEVEL 3.9% ABOVE YEAR AGO

Manufacturing Payrolls Higher by 5½%—Both Lower Than Average of 1926.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Employment decreased 0.6 per cent in January, as compared with December, and payroll totals decreased 2.9 per cent, as reported by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor. Inventory-taking, weather conditions and reaction from the trade activities of December make such decreases customary in January.

This report is based upon returns from 23,735 establishments having in January more than four and one-third million employes whose combined earnings in one week were $115,141,698. The classes of employment included were: Manufacturing, anthracite and bituminous coal mining, metalliferous mining, public utilities, wholesale and retail trade and hotels.

Employment in manufacturing industries decreased 0.3 per cent in January, and payroll totals decreased 3.3 per cent, as shown by returns from 12,138 establishments in fifty-four of the principal manufacturing industries of the United States. These establishments in January had 3,321,227 employes, and payroll totals in one week of $87,564,382. These employes represent 51 per cent of all wage earners in the fifty-four industries considered.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics' weighted index of employment in manufacturing industries for January, 1929, is 95.2, as compared with 95.5 for December, 1928, and 91.6 for January, 1928. The weighted index of payroll totals in January, 1929, is 94.5, as compared with 97.7 for December, 1928, and 89.6 for January, 1928. The monthly average for 1926 was 100.

The level of employment in manufacturing industries in January, 1929, was 3.9 per cent higher than in January, 1928, and payroll totals were 5.5 per cent higher. Sixty per cent of the separate industries showed a gain in employment in this comparison over a twelve-month period, gains having been reported in the following industries: Machine tools, automobiles, agricultural implements, brass, electrical machinery, foundries, tires and stoves; the iron and steel industry gained 7.5 per cent in employment and 14.4 per cent in payroll totals.

Per capita earnings in January, 1929, were 2.9 per cent lower than in December, 1928, and 1.5 per cent higher than in January, 1928.

Changes in employment and payrolls during Januarv as compared with December in other industries than manufacturing were as follows:

	Employment Per cent.	Payrolls Per cent.
Anthracite mining	— 1.5	—10.7
Bituminous coal mining	+ 0.9	— 1.8
Metalliferous mining	+ 0.3	— 4.0
Public utilities	— 2.1	— 0.8
Wholesale trade	— 2.4	— 1.6
Retail trade	—20.4	—14.7
Hotels	+ 1.3	+ 0.2

	Jan. 1929.	Dec. 1928.	Jan. 1928.
Food and kindred products	98.4	102.1	96.8
Textiles and their products	96.9	97.7	99.9
Iron and steel and products	94.8	95.0	86.1
Iron and steel	95.4	92.8	86.9
Cast iron pipe	73.5	74.2	79.8
Structural ironwork	97.7	101.2	89.7
Lumber and its products	85.2	87.6	94.8
Leather and its products	91.0	87.8	95.6
Paper and printing	99.6	101.2	100.2
Chamicals, allied products	94.4	95.1	91.4
Stone, clay, glass products	81.6	87.3	83.7
Metal products, other than iron and steel	97.2	98.6	85.8
Tobacco products	86.5	98.0	91.2
Vehicles for land transp't'n	99.8	94.6	86.8
Automobiles	121.1	110.0	91.2
Carriages and wagons	69.2	77.3	65.3
Miscellaneous industries	102.8	97.9	92.0
Electrical machinery, app. and supplies	103.4	102.5	90.5

The Bureau of Labor Statistics has changed its basis of comparison. Hitherto it has reckoned the monthly average of 1923 as 100; it now uses the monthly average of 1926. The change will be somewhat annoying in making long comparisons. Allowing for the increase of 3.9 per cent in employment last month as compared with January, 1928, the following comparisons show the average for previous Januarys, reckoned on the basis of 1923:

1928	84.2	1925	90.0
1926	92.3	1923	980.

Payroll totals last month were 5½ per cent greater than in January of 1928. On the 1923 basic average, payroll totals for preceding years compared as follows:

1928	85.8	1925	90.0
1926	98.9	1923	98.0

During 1929 Invest in TUDOR CITY and Profit by this Fully Proven New Neighborhood

THE FRENCH PLAN offers you a partnership in the ownership and profits of New York's most interesting real estate development.

In 34 Months!

In December, 1925, the Fred F. French companies startled the real estate world by announcing the purchase of some five acres of property on Prospect Hill—a large part of the area between 40th and 44th Streets, First and Second Avenues. A record purchase in the heart of mid-town Manhattan.

Tudor City was then an idea—the idea of rebuilding New York, not a building a time, but by complete neighborhoods—the idea of creating a "city within a city" to bring a new convenience to thousands of New Yorkers.

Today—Tudor City is an actuality, with a record of success that surpasses the most optimistic predictions made for it. Six great buildings—ranging from ten-story apartments to two great 23-story apartment hotels—are completed and occupied. A 34-story apartment hotel will be ready for occupancy May 1st, 1929. Additional units are under construction—all to meet a steadily growing demand that promises to exceed the accommodations that will be available for many years to come.

Hundreds of New Yorkers are now enjoying the thrill of this new manner of living. Busy men are walking to work and adding hours to their productive day. Wives are enjoying the comfort and convenience of beautiful apartments, isolated from dirt and traffic, yet within easy walking distance of midtown Manhattan!

A Remarkable Investment Opportunity!

Tudor City—managed by the organization that benefits from the skill and experience gained during eighteen years in the construction and operation of large income-producing properties—represents an exceptionally sound investment.

Each individual Unit is carefully planned and constructed to meet a known demand and is operated individually as an income-producing property. Sound and economical construction makes for high earning power per dollar of investment. A known market, tenants eager to occupy on completion, assures steady and generous earnings.

Further—the completion of each new Unit adds instantly to the value of all completed Units!

Finally—as traffic congestion increases and long travel becomes more and more difficult, the advantages of Tudor City must increase.

THE FRENCH PLAN

You can participate in the ownership of any Tudor City Unit and can share in the profits distributed from its operation—and from its inevitable increase in value—by the investment of any convenient sum—$100 to $100,000.

THE FRENCH PLAN gives you a safeguarded investment—plus 6%—plus the repayment of every dollar of your original investment—plus 50% of all profits distributed from the operation of the property, thereafter.

Thousands of New Yorkers have invested millions of dollars in income-producing properties under this plan and are now sharing in the profits from their operation.

Consider the fundamental advantage of Tudor City—a unique rental situation that assures steady and generous earning power, and inevitable increase in value. Compare the earning power of your investment dollar under THE FRENCH PLAN with that offered by any other real estate investment. Then ask yourself this question:

"Is there any safer, sounder or more profitable investment for a portion of my funds during 1929?"

From a letter of Mr. Harry Reid, President of the Company, dated February 4, 1929, we summarize below as follows:

Business: Seaboard Public Service Company, incorporated under the laws of Delaware, will control through stock ownership companies furnishing electric light and power, gas, water and/or ice services to 509 communities in states along the Atlantic seaboard, namely: Virginia, Delaware, Maryland, North Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and West Virginia. Through these companies 124,492 customers are being served, of which 112,415 are electric, 11,591 gas and 486 water. The system also furnishes electric railway and bus service in sections of Virginia and North Carolina.

The electrical systems have an installed generating capacity of 178,675 H.P., and 2,655 miles of high tension transmission lines. The gas systems include plants with a combined daily capacity of 3,175,000 cubic feet, and 174 miles of gas mains. The ice plants have an aggregate daily capacity of 1,510 tons. The electric railway systems consist of 87 equivalent miles of single track. During the twelve months ending November 30, 1928, a total of 278,476,924 KWH. of electric energy were generated and purchased; 435,119,000 cu. ft. of gas were manufactured, and 181,908 tons of ice were produced.

Equity: The present issue of preferred stock amounting to 50,000 shares will be followed by 600,000 shares of Common Stock with a paid in value of $24,000,000.

Management: This company is part of the system of National Public Service Corporation and (subject to the control of its Board of Directors) is under the control of the National Electric Power Company, and is a part of the Middle West Utilities System which includes subsidiary operating companies serving 3700 communities in 30 states.

Earnings: Consolidated earnings statement of the System for twelve months ended November 30, 1928, after giving effect to present financing:

Gross Earnings, including other income	$12,843,460
Operating Expenses, including Maintenance and Taxes other than Federal Income Taxes	7,361,997
Net Earnings	$ 5,481,463
Prior charges of Subsidiary Companies: Comprising interest charges on debt held by public (less interest charged to construction), depreciation, amortization and dividend requirements on Preferred Stocks	4,279,730
Balance of consolidated net earnings available to the Seaboard Public Service Company before provision for Federal Income Taxes	$ 1,201,733
Annual Dividend Requirements on 50,000 shares $6 Preferred Stock (this issue)	300,000

Earnings available for Federal Taxes and Preferred Dividends of the Company of $1,201,733 as above, during the twelve months ended November 30, 1928, were in excess of four times annual dividend requirements on the total Preferred Stock to be presently outstanding.

Over 83% of the above net earnings were derived from electric operations.

First Mortgage 5% Gold Bonds, Series A

Due December 1, 1958

The Company will agree to reimburse the holders of Series A bonds, if requested within sixty days after payment of the Tax, for the Pennsylvania 4 Mills Tax and for the Massachusetts Income Tax on the interest of the bonds not exceeding 6% of such interest per annum. Coupon bonds will be in interchangeable denominations of $1,000, $500 and $100, registerable as to principal.

Cumulative Sinking Fund calculated to retire not less than $611,000 principal amount of this issue by maturity will be applied semi-annually to the purchase or retirement of bonds. Bonds so acquired will be cancelled and not re-issued.

Hydro-Electric Corporation of Virginia, a Virginia corporation, owns a site on the James River about six miles east of Glasgow, Va., and five miles below the Balcony Falls power plant of the Virginia Public Service Company, on which it is now constructing a thoroughly modern hydro-electric generating station with an installed capacity of 12,500 horse power. The project includes a reinforced concrete dam approximately 1600 feet in length, together with the power house of brick and reinforced concrete. The property has been leased to Virginia Public Service Company for a fixed term of 30 years from date of operation of completed station.

Earnings: Earnings of the Company will be derived from rentals received from Virginia Public Service Company. After estimated deductions for items of replacement, insurance and taxes to be paid by lessor the balance of rentals will be equivalent to more than 3.8 times the maximum annual interest requirement on funded debt presently to be outstanding and equivalent to approximately 3.1 times the maximum combined interest and sinking fund charges.

Security: These bonds, in the opinion of counsel, will be a direct obligation of the Company and will, together with all other bonds at any time outstanding under the Mortgage, be secured by a first mortgage on all the permanent property, rights and franchises of the Company now owned and on all such property hereafter acquired on account of which bonds are issuable under the Mortgage.

Management: Virginia Public Service Company which will operate the stations when completed, as lessee, is a subsidiary of National Public Service Corporation and (subject to the control of its Board of Directors) is under the control of the National Electric Power Company and is a part of the system of the Middle West Utilities Company.

Rubber Shares Improve on British Exchange—Anglo-American Group Displays Weakness.

LONDON MONEY PLENTIFUL

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Rubber shares provided the only cheerful market on the Stock Exchange today following a week-end spurt in the price of the commodity to 1s ¾d a pound. Today spot rubber advanced further to 1s ¾d a pound, London stocks are 24,757 tons, a decrease of 656 tons as compared with last week. The stocks stood at 63,769 tons a year ago. Liverpool stocks were 4,085 tons, a decrease of twenty tons in a week. The stock decreases brought in fresh buyers and share prices advanced, Anglo-Dutch shares rising to 41s 6d, Anglo-Java to 4s 9d and London Asiatics to 5s 7½d. Other markets were flat.

It was contango day, while week-end weakness in New York made itself manifest among "Anglo-American" issues. British funds were steadier. Dealing commenced in the new Rumanian loan at 1 per cent discount. Home railroad shares were unchanged, but Argentine rails were a quarter better. Oil shares showed no material changes, the new Shell shares being quoted at £4 9/16.

Loans were in good supply in Lombard Street, credit being available at 4¼ to 4½ per cent. Business was small in the discount market, which remained firm, 5¼ to 5 1/16 being quoted for fine three months' bank bills. The dollar rate, after improving to 4.85¾, relapsed to 4.85 9/32.

French Rentes Fluctuate.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—The opening of subscriptions for conversion caisse d'amortissement and national defense obligations today marked the beginning of government action in reducing France's burdensome internal debt, and it drew large crowds to all the issuing offices.

The operation will produce no fresh capital, since only those holding sinking fund defense bonds are permitted to exchange them for the new 4½ per cent thirty-year bonds which were offered at 93.65. No date has been fixed for closing the subscriptions, but it will be set when the receipts are sufficient. Predictions today were for an early closing.

The Bourse was dull today. Trading was practically non-existent during most of the session, though there was a slight improvement just before the closing hour.

Rentes at first declined but recovered late in the session to close with 5s at 71.60, 1917 4s 86.50, 1918 4s 85.15, 1915 5s 97.20, 1920 amortizable 5s 117.45 and 6s 102.

Berlin Speculators Unload.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Feb. 18.—The Boerse opened weak when speculators, disappointed by the complete lack of purchasing orders, began to unload, causing a general drop which averaged 2 points. Shares with an international interest, however, such as Polyphone, artificial silks and Svenska Chade, lost more heavily. Glanzstoff textile lost as much as 10 and Bemberg and Polyphone 6 points each.

The continuing tightening of the money market, the weaker tendency of the London Stock Exchange and the meeting of the directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, which it was feared presaged an increase in the rediscount rates, had depressing effects.

The second hour brought a slight improvement when a Western group showed interest in the mining market, with Harpener and Rhenish brown coal leading.

The Boerse closed somewhat firmer. Call money was offered at 6½ to 8½ and the private discount rate was 5⅞.

STRAUS NATIONAL BANK AND TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Trustee

Price: Par and Accrued Interest to Net 6%

We summarize as follows from a letter from the president of the borrowing corporation:

MORTGAGED PROPERTY: These certificates are secured by a closed first mortgage on land in fee and 24-story loft and office building, to be constructed on the site located on the north side of East 45th Street, 100 feet east of Second Avenue, with a frontage of 125 feet on 45th Street and running through the entire block, a distance of 200 feet 10 inches, with a frontage on East 46th Street of 100 feet. The building will provide manufacturers with showroom space, together with warehouse and factory facilities adjoining. The building is to be constructed immediately and completion is guaranteed. The ownership is in strong and experienced hands.

LOCATION AND RENTAL DEMAND: The building is located in the Grand Central Terminal zone and is well suited to the rental demand in its neighborhood, with excellent transportation. Within the last two years buildings valued at approximately $50,000,000 have been erected in this immediate section. Other similar buildings nearby are well rented and successful.

VALUATIONS: The following appraisals have been received:

Appraiser	Value Land	Total Value Completed Property
1. Kenneth Slawson Hobbs, Inc. (Walter Stabler, Consultant)	$675,000	$3,025,000
2. Cushman & Wakefield, Inc.	563,000	3,000,000

EARNINGS: Net annual rental earnings are estimated at $370,500, more than three times the greatest annual interest charge on this issue and more than twice the principal and sinking fund requirements.

SINKING FUND: Through the operations of a sinking fund certificates will be retired either through purchase in the open market or called by lot, at 101 and interest, leaving a balance maturing February 15, 1941 of $1,763,500.

We recommend these certificates. Call or write for

Mr. A. E. Peirce, President of Central Public Service Corporation, has summarized in part his letter to us as follows, copies of which will be furnished on request:

Central Public Service Corporation, incorporated in 1923, furnishes through subsidiaries electric light and power, gas, water and/or transportation service to 197,000 customers in 337 communities located in 20 states of the United States and in two provinces in eastern Canada. The population of the territories served is estimated to be in excess of 1,400,000.

The consolidated capitalization of the Corporation and its subsidiaries as of November 30, 1928, after giving effect to the present financing and the recent sales of $25,000,000 5½% Convertible Gold Debentures and 60,000 shares of Class A Stock, and the application of the proceeds thereof, is as follows:

	To be Outstanding With the Public
Central Public Service Corporation
Common Stock (No Par Value)	200,000 shares
Class A Stock (No Par Value)	306,962 shares
Preferred Stock (No Par Value):
$7 Cumulative Preferred Stock	76,952 shares
5½% Convertible Gold Debentures, due 1949	$25,000,000
Subsidiary Companies' Bonds and Preferred Stocks*	$37,202,970

* At par or if without par value at $100 per share.

The consolidated gross revenues and other income of the Corporation and its subsidiaries for the twelve months ended November 30, 1928, after giving effect to the present and recent financing, were $14,452,514. The balance, after operating expenses, maintenance and taxes and after annual interest and dividend requirements on subsidiary companies' bonds and preferred stocks and annual interest requirements on funded debt of the Corporation, was $2,452,837. This balance before provision for Replacements, is approximately 2.6 times the annual dividend requirements on the Preferred Stock of the Corporation to be outstanding, and after providing for both maintenance and replacements at the initial rates to be required in the Indenture under which the 5½% Convertible Gold Debentures are to be issued, is over 1.9 times such dividend requirements.

The Class A and Common Stocks of the Corporation outstanding, both of which are junior to the Preferred Stock, have an aggregate value, estimated on the basis of current quotations, of approximately $20,000,000.

$95 per share and accrued dividend

This Preferred Stock is offered for delivery when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to approval of counsel. It is expected that delivery will be made on or about February 26, 1929.

Investment Trust Securities

WE HAVE been identified with the financing of a number of investment trusts of the general management type, and we believe their obligations offer excellent opportunity for profitable investment. We direct attention to the bonds of such companies which yield about 5.75% income, and particularly to those which, selling at somewhat higher prices, bear warrants giving the holders the right for several years to purchase stock of the company at very advantageous figures.

$438,000 NEW BASIS OF EXCHANGE SEATS

Value of Rights Established at $109,500 Each by Deals With Sixteen Members.

OTHERS AT $110,000 EACH

Price Is Sharp Reduction From $125,000 Fixed Last Week—Active Market Expected.

Arrangements were made yesterday for the sale of four and a half of the 275 additional seats on the New York Stock Exchange that were authorized on Feb. 7. The transactions will be completed by the transfer of eighteen "rights" now held by that number of members, each representing a 25 per cent interest in an additional seat. For sixteen of the "rights" the purchasers will pay $109,500 each, while the other two will bring $110,000 each.

These dealings in "rights" established a price for seats well below that at which they were selling before the increase in memberships was voted. The last sales of seats prior to the increase were arranged at $325,000. Last week, however, a seat carrying the right to purchase a 25 per cent increase in an additional seat was sold for the same amount, which fixed a valuation of $125,000 for the "rights" and $500,000 for seats without "rights."

At the price involved in the sale of the first sixteen "rights" yesterday, which was $109,500, the buyers paid $438,000 for each seat. This represented a sharp reduction from what seats were expected to bring. Yesterday was the first day that trading took place in the "rights." The secretary of the Stock Exchange had received offers to buy and sell the "rights" and these received precedence in the order of their receipt.

It was announced at the Exchange that a large number of applications for the transfer of "rights" was before the committee on admissions, tentative transactions having been arranged privately. The completion of these transactions was held up, pending the establishment of a price for the "rights." It was indicated that an active market in the "rights" was about to develop. The Exchange authorities are hoping that a large number of the 275 additional seats will be disposed of immediately through the sale of the "rights," as it is desired to increase the number of floor brokers.

An applicant for membership, in order to receive consideration by the committee on admissions, must arrange to purchase a seat outright or four "rights" covering one seat.

CITY BANK RAISES CAPITAL.

Increase to $100,000,000 Effective as Rights to Shares Expire.

With the expiration of rights to subscribe for new capital stock of the National City Bank, the largest bank in the United States, that institution now has $100,000,000 of capital stock, represented by shares of $20 par value. Prior to the increase the capital was $90,000,000. The rights expired on last Friday.

Of the proceeds derived from the new issue, $10,000,000 has been used to pay in the additional capital, $35,000,000 has been applied to surplus, increasing it to $100,000,000, and $5,000,000 has been applied to raise the capital stock of the National City Company, the bank's investment affiliate, to $50,000,000.

THE design of an air port is as technical a problem as the design of a railroad terminal and should not be undertaken without the studies and advice of trained and competent engineers. It is not only a matter of choosing a site, building hangars and laying out runways, but is vastly more complicated and consideration should be given not only to the immediate problems involved, but to the future development of the community as well. Such factors as aerial approaches, wind directions and velocities, topography of the site and adjoining terrain—these, and all other elements should be considered to the end that a maximum volume of air traffic may be handled with safety and a minimum amount of congestion.

To be dated February 1, 1929 — To be due February 1, 1939

Unconditionally guaranteed as to principal and interest by endorsement by

GENERAL SURETY COMPANY

Capital and Surplus $12,500,000

Interest will be payable semi-annually on February 1st and August 1st of each year at the principal office of the Trustee, in the City of New York. Coupon bonds will be in denominations of $1,000 and $500 registerable as to principal only and interchangeable. Redeemable as a whole at the option of the Company on any interest date upon thirty (30) days' published notice at 102 and accrued interest plus profit participation.

Interest will be payable without deduction for any Federal Income Tax up to 2% per annum which the Company or the Trustee may be required or permitted to pay thereon. The Company will reimburse, upon application, various state taxes, as will be more specifically set forth in the Trust Indenture.

BANK OF THE MANHATTAN COMPANY, TRUSTEE

Security: These bonds, direct obligations of Realty Foundation, Inc., will be unconditionally and irrevocably guaranteed as to principal and interest by General Surety Company with Capital and Surplus of $12,500,000 and will be secured by (1) a group of diversified real estate mortgages of an aggregate face value, which, together with any cash substituted therefor, must at all times equal the principal amount of outstanding bonds, and (2) a participation fund consisting of a group of diversified shares of stock (for which cash may be substituted) listed on the New York Stock Exchange and New York Curb Market, and stocks not so listed of insurance companies, banks and trust companies, which, at the time of deposit with the Trustee, must have a value of $200,000 determined by the market cost thereof to the Company.

Analysis of Security: An analysis of the collateral which will secure these bonds shows that the appraised value of the real estate covered by the mortgages plus the original cost of the stocks, will afford a total security equivalent to at least $1,450 for each $1,000 bond.

Distribution of Participation Fund: When the bonds become due at maturity or by declaration or otherwise, or are redeemed, the profit created by the investment and reinvestment of the participation fund and the income derived from dividends, interest and other benefits accruing on said shares of stock, is required to be distributed by the Trustee ratably to the bondholders to the extent that such fund exceeds the original market cost of the shares of stock to the Company and an amount reserved to the Company equal to 6% per annum thereon.

We offer these bonds when, as and if issued and accepted by us, and subject to approval of legal proceedings by counsel. The validity of all titles to mortgaged properties will be insured by title insurance companies of independent financial strength, approved by General Surety Company. All improvements on properties will be protected by fire insurance and, where deemed necessary by the Guarantor, by other essential forms of insurance. All legal details pertaining to the issuance of these bonds will be passed upon by Messrs. Simpson Thacher & Bartlett, New York City.

WILL HEAR MINORITY ON GOLDMAN SACHS

Ralph Jonas to Meet Holders of Financial and Industrial Securities Stock Today.

DEFENDS TERMS AND AIMS

Issues Statement Explaining Deal for $235,000,000 Merger—J. J. Farber Heads Opposition.

Ralph Jonas, chairman of the Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation, and one of the leaders in negotiating a proposed $235,000,000 merger of that institution with The Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation, will meet a committee of minority stockholders at 11 A. M. today to go over in detail the terms of the consolidation, which is scheduled to be voted on by the stockholders of both organizations on next Thursday.

The conference, which will bring to a showdown the fight against the merger led by J. J. Farber, an insurance broker of 75 Maiden Lane, was agreed on last evening after Mr. Jonas had sent a letter to stockholders of the Financial and Industrial disclosing that he and his immediate associates would be the largest stockholders in the combined company and predicting overwhelming approval at the meeting on Feb. 21, and after the minority had held an organization meeting at which an executive committee was appointed to deal with Mr. Jonas.

Resources of $1,000,000,000.

Under the plan of consolidation the combined company would have the guiding voice in the administration of resources of more than $1,000,000,000, as the companies propose to put in their own assets, totaling $117,500,000 each, and to maintain the control, now held by the Financial and Industrial, of the Manufacturers Trust Company and the National Liberty group of insurance companies. As agreed upon by the executives of the two companies, the combined organization would be the largest financial holding company in the world.

In his letter to the stockholders Mr. Jonas indicated that one of the reasons for the merger was that Financial and Industrial, which has increased its resources from about $27,000,000 to well over $100,000,000 in three years, was almost in the position of a "one-man" organization and that a wider distribution of responsibility was essential. In speaking of the opposition stockholders, he wrote that "one of these gentlemen appears from our records to hold fifteen shares of your company's stock and several others do not appear as stockholders at all." There are 1,700,000 shares of Financial and Industrial stock outstanding.

After detailing the negotiations for the merger and saying no commissions or special compensations were being paid to anybody in connection with it and that all stockholders were being treated alike, Mr. Jonas's letter follows, in part:

"Neither my relatives nor associates nor I have changed our holdings in F. & I. because of these negotiations, nor do we expect to do so.

"I and my immediate associates will be the largest stockholders in the combined company, as we have been in F. & I. I have never personally owned, nor has any one owned for me, a single share of the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation, and the same applies to every other director and officer of F. & I. F. & I., Manufacturers Trust Company, National Liberty Insurance Company, Baltimore American Insurance Company and Peoples National Fire Insurance Company subscribed for and received original allotments of this stock, and the stockholders will get the full benefit of the increased value thereof.

"Mr. Nathan S. Jonas as president, Mr. Henry C. Von Elm as chairman of the executive committee, and the other officers of the Manufacturers Trust Company as well as the officers of the National Liberty group of insurance companies will continue as they now are, and the staff of the Financial and Industrial Securities Corporation will work with the staff of the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation, the name of which is intended to be changed to the Goldman Sachs Trading and Financial Corporation.

Provision for the Future.

"For a considerable time I have felt very keenly the personal responsibility to our stockholders in the event of the illness or death of myself or any one of my immediate associates. Two of my associates have broken down under the strain. A third is now ill, and I m[illegible]self have not had a day's vacation in two and a half years. It is not prudent to trust new associates with large responsibilities until they have been tried. Under these circumstances it seemed wiser to rather combine with some existing organization of standing and tried and tested ability and success.

"No member of the firm of Goldman Sachs & Co. will receive compensation from the combined company except as provided in the existing management agreement between Goldman Sachs & Co. and the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation. No one has any options or calls on stock of any sort.

"All of our officers and directors and a considerable number of our large stockholders, who were consulted after the fullest consideration, felt that our stockholders would get the greatest possible measure of protection in the stability of their earnings, in broader and better market conditions and greater appreciation in value by reason of the consolidation."

Mr. Jonas added that the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation had agreed to reduce its assets from $122,000,000 to $117,500,000 so that both companies would go into the combination on an equal footing.

At the minority meeting, held at 75 Maiden Lane, Mr. Farber was chosen chairman of the executive committee. The other members are James A. Emmons, vice president of the Emmons Coal Mining Company of Philadelphia; Samuel Unterleider, a member of the New York Stock Exchange; Harry Sahlman, cotton goods converter, of 159 Madison Avenue; L. Lawrence Stearns, publisher, of 415 Lexington Avenue; Jacob M. Schoenfeld, attorney, of 299 Broadway; Emanuel Schwarz, vice president of the New York and Community Financial Corporation; H. A. Kuffler, investment broker, of 281 Broadway; Max Wolff of Bernstein & Wolff, commission merchants; David Tarsheff, chain store operator, of 918 Third Avenue; Irving H. Isaacs of 270 West End Avenue; S. G. Rosenthal, real estate, of 215 West Ninety-eighth Street.

The meeting, at which Mr. Farber said 200,000 shares were represented, voted unanimously to appeal for a postponement for a week of the meetings scheduled for next Thursday to ratify the merger. This petition will be placed before Mr. Jonas today.

$2,000,000 COTTON CAPITAL.

Besides These Debenture Shares British Merger Will Have Others.

LONDON, Feb. 18 (AP).—The Lancashire Cotton Corporation, formed recently to amalgamate spinning and weaving concerns, will have debenture capital of $2,000,000 beside preference and other shares of an unstated amount.

The Bank of England, which will appoint the chairman and half of the directorate, will be trustee for the debentures.

CANADA'S GRAIN BIN is overflowing

CANADA grew in 1928 the world's largest quantity of the best bread-making wheat... more than 500,000,000 bushels, enough to provide bread for 75,000,000 people.

The wheat was poured into about 5,000 elevators that make up Canada's immense grain bin—one that includes the greatest terminal storage capacity at any one point on the globe. Shipments are being rushed across the seven seas to fifty or more countries.

And now the golden tide is turning . . . money and credits resulting from the sale of wheat are flowing into New York, Canada's financial settling centre. A large part of this great fund—it may be as much as $300,000,000—will be disbursed or drawn through The Canadian Bank of Commerce and its 800 Canadian branches.

And this Bank will also act as an important intermediary when Canadians use much of their new wealth in the purchase of American materials, goods and securities. If you have already arranged or desire to share in this great scheme of continental trade you will find invaluable assistance in the service of The Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Over 800 branches in Canada.

Branches also at:
Seattle
Portland, Ore.
San Francisco

Banco Nacional de Panama

(National Bank of Panama)

6½% 20 Year (Series "D") Gold Bonds

Dated February 1, 1929 Due February 1, 1949

Bonds $1000 and $500 denominations. Callable as a whole at 101 on any interest date after February 1st, 1939. Interest August 1 and February 1. Principal and Interest are payable in Canadian or United States gold coin of the standard of weight and fineness existing on February 1, 1929, and are payable in time of war as well as in time of peace, whether the holder be a citizen of a friendly or hostile state. Principal and Interest payable at any branch of the Royal Bank of Canada in Canada or at the Agency of the Royal Bank in New York, or at the principal office of the Banco Nacional in the City of Panama, without deduction for any taxes, duties or levies of any nature now or at any time hereafter imposed by the Republic of Panama or by any province or municipality thereof. Bonds may be registered as to principal at the office of the Montreal Trust Company in Vancouver, Canada.

Republic of Panama

The population of the Republic is estimated at 500,000, exclusive of over 37,000 Americans living in the Canal Zone and in the Cities of Panama and Colon. The area is 32,380 square miles.
The Atlantic Coast line is 477 miles in length and the Pacific, 767 miles. As the Canal is the gateway between the Pacific and Atlantic, the shipping brings to the Cities of Panama and Colon an enormous trade. These Cities are also visited yearly by tens of thousands of tourists. The pay roll in connection with the operation of the Canal and the American Army amounts to approximately $25,000,000 per year.
Panama has great natural resources. It chief agricultural products are bananas, cocoanuts, sugar, cocoa, coffee and tobacco. There are valuable mineral and potential oil deposits which are at the present time largely undeveloped. A system of roads is now being constructed which, together with railway extensions under way will make available the great natural wealth of the Republic.
The Cities of Panama and Colon as well as the Cities of Balboa, Cristobal and Ancon in the Canal Zone, are all provided with paved streets, electric light and power, street cars, water and sewers. Excellent up-to-date hospital facilities have also been provided.

Relations with the United States

Under the terms of the treaty ratified between Panama and the United States on February 26, 1904, in connection with the construction of the Panama Canal, the United States guarantees and will maintain the independence of the Republic of Panama. The Republic of Panama grants to the United States in perpetuity the use, occupation and control of a zone of land—for the construction, maintenance, operation, sanitation and protection of said Canal for the width of 10 miles, together with other concessions in the Cities of Panama and Colon and in adjacent waters and islands. As compensation for the rights granted, the United States Government paid to the Republic of Panama the sum of $10,000,000 of which $6,000,000 is now invested in real estate mortgages in New York City, and is known as the Constitutional Fund; and further the United States Government under the provisions of the treaty makes the Republic of Panama an annual payment of $250,000.

Security

The proceeds of these bonds will be used for investment in real estate mortgages. They are a direct obligation of the Banco Nacional de Panama and are guaranteed by the Republic of Panama. In addition they are secured by Real Estate Mortgages given for loans made by the Bank in an aggregate principal amount not less than 110% of the amount of bonds. Banco Nacional de Panama was organized in 1904 under the laws of the Republic of Panama and its entire issued Capital is owned by the Republic. On December 31st, 1927, the paid up capital of the Bank was $837,446.70, and Reserve Fund $939,563.99.

Sinking Fund

Beginning February 1st, 1930, a Sinking Fund of $50,000.00 per year (or more at the option of the Bank) will be paid to the Trustee to be used for buying bonds at the market or calling bonds at the call price.

BILL MARKET ACTIVE DESPITE HIGH RATES

Acceptance Total on Jan. 31 Was $1,279,271,163, a Decline of Only $5,214,617 in Month.

BIG RISE IN IMPORT CREDITS

Disturbed conditions in the discount and money markets have had little effect on the acceptance business, the total volume of bills as of Jan. 31 amounting to $1,279,271,163, according to the report of the American Acceptance Council, prepared by Robert H. Bean, executive secretary. This is a reduction of only $5,214,617 from the record total of Dec. 31, as compared with a drop of $22,000,000 for the similar period of 1927-28.

This performance is considered highly satisfactory by the council, as acceptance rates are now at the highest level since 1921. Predictions had been freely made that the present report would reveal a sharp check in acceptance business, but any effects of the present high rates will not be apparent until the figures for the February month-end are compiled, as the new January business was contracted for, to a substantial extent, at the easier rates of December. The present report shows, however, that a very heavy volume of credits opened in September and October, to mature in January, must have been replaced by new credits during the past month, notwithstanding the existing high rates.

From Aug. 31 to Oct. 31, 1928, there was an increase of $170,000,000, a large part of which was of January maturity, and it is this business that has been kept in acceptances despite the added cost.

Special significance is seen by the council in the trend of the uses to which the acceptances are put. Export credits declined $29,000,000 during January, while credits based on goods stored in or shipped between foreign countries increased $24,000,000, while import credits increased $35,000,000.

A gain of $6,500,000 in bills to create dollar exchange and nearly $2,000,000 in credits for domestic shipments were more than offfset by a decline of $11,400,000 in domestic warehouse credits, which are now beginning a normal seasonal reduction.

The information revealed through this survey strengthens the belief of the council that the dollar acceptance business of American banks is in a strong and permanent position. Whatever may be the solution of the problems of the discount market, there is said to be no doubt of the intention of the banks to make use of acceptance credits whenever the circumstances permit.

In 1928 the volume of business financed by acceptances amounted to $7,019,164,000, of which 36 per cent was for export purposes, 29 per cent for imports, 16 per cent for foreign storage and shipments and 13 per cent for domestic warehouse uses. About 51 per cent of the total foreign trade of the United States in 1928 was financed by dollar acceptance credits of American banks.

"A business of such impressive totals, developed within the span of a few years, is of tremendous importance to American commerce, a fact that is now beginning to be appreciated by the bankers and those engaged in foreign trade," the report says. "The present difficulties of the discount market are, of course, intensified by the unsettled affairs in the call loan market and for the first time the bill market becomes a strong competing factor.

"The action of the Federal Reserve banks in putting the bill market on its own resources, while looked upon with concern early in December, was the most helpful step that could have been taken, as the market today, despite the surrounding disturbances in the quick call market, is rapidly and surely finding its own strength and ability to stand alone."

NUMBER SEVEN OF A SERIES OF FACTUAL ESSAYS

A Drama In Itself

IN one evening the entire population of Albany, N.Y., Hartford, Conn., or Nashville, Tenn., could be comfortably seated in the theatres that cluster on and around the Great White Way...the largest theatrical district in the world.

Here in the heart of all New York are located 94 theatres, seating 139,500 people and delivering in one year over 18,000,000 tickets to pleasure seekers. Total annual receipts are in excess of $72,000,000.

Our theatres attract innumerable people to the stores, to the hotels and to the restaurants of Mid-Manhattan. And they form a market of vast importance for the various and many industries contributing to all phases of theatrical equipment.

These figures represent only the surface of this giant business of entertaining the thousands who are constantly seeking diversion in Mid-Manhattan.

It is interesting to know that New York really supports its own theatres. A dependable estimate declares that 75% of this huge revenue is paid by residents of this city and its suburbs.

And few in the throngs crowding the play-house lobbies stop to think of the drama itself portrayed through thousands of situations and in thousands of roles ...the genuine drama of everyday life in the streets of Mid-Manhattan.

The Great American COMPETITION

The Great American Competition is the competition of Brains. Not so much the brains of Genius as the brains of matured Vision, Judgment, and Understanding.

Back of all our material progress in business are these mental capacities—to see the need of better things, to sense the right, and to know how. In their fullest possession is a power that defies material competition. Between their grades of excellence is the great struggle — the Competition of Brains.

Among brains, the enlightening facts and figures of Modern Accountancy are recognized as stimulants to right thinking, quite as much as material factors in management and control.

ACTIVITY BROADENS IN UNLISTED STOCKS

After a quiet opening, a decidedly stronger tone developed yesterday in the over-the-counter market. While trading was below normal because of recent declines in the leading issues, there was a broadening of activity. A few strong spots were offset by numerous losses in the chain-store group. Industrial issues showed greater strength, despite some minor recessions. Bank and trust shares closed strong, while communication issues were firm and quiet. Sugar stocks were fractionally lower.

In the industrial group declines were registered by A. O. Smith, Central Distributors, preferred, Superheater, J. B. Stetson, Bancroft common, Bunker Hill, Industrial Finance, West Virginia Pulp and Paper, Bowman Biltmore second preferred. Central Distributors common and Hudson River Navigation. Advances were scored by Likly Luggage, Zieley and Curtis Publishing new shares.

In the chain store group recessions took place in Great A. & P. Tea Company common, J. C. Penney common, Knox Hat common, James Butler preferred, Leonard Fitzpatrick & Mueller common and preferred, while advances took place in Schiff preferred, Metropolitan Chain new and I. Silver preferred.

In the bank group gains were made by Guaranty, Commerce, Central Union, Traders National, and Bankers and Bank of New York and Trust, while losses occurred in United States Mortgage & Trust, Chemical, New York Title and Mortgage, Penn Exchange, Manhattan Company, Hanover, Park, Interstate, Municipal and Nassau National.

There were mixed trends in the insurance list, advances being scored by Lloyds Plate Glass, Rhode Island and Columbia National, while losses Globe and Rutgers, National Fire, United States Casualty, Home, United States Merchants and Shippers and Springfield F. and M.

CURB PRICES RALLY AFTER EARLY SELLING

Morning Trading Irregular, but Afternoon Dealings Bring Net Gains Up to 20 Points.

Stocks on the New York Curb Exchange yesterday followed closely the trend on the Stock Exchange, rallying sharply after an early period of heaviness. The day's low levels seamed to stimulate buying interest. The closing quotations revealed net gains ranging from a fraction to 20 points.

Leaders of the advance in the afternoon included Deere, Central Atlantic States, Electric Bond and Share, Checker Cab, United Gas, Zenith Radio, Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line, Aluminum Company of America, National Manufacturers and Stores and Safe-T-Stat. There were sizable declines in such active issues as Pines Winterfront, J. C. Penney, United Gas Improvement, Sparks Withington, Niles-Bement-Pond and Goldman-Sachs.

The market was irregular in the morning after a flurry of selling. Around noon it firmed up, only to meet a brief selling rush in the early afternoon. The dealings between 1:30 and 2 P. M., however, saw a brisk advance in all departments of the list. Closing prices in most instances were at or near the best levels of the day.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The monthly meeting of the British Empire Chamber of Commerce will be held tomorrow at 12:15 P. M. at the Whitehall Club, 17 Battery Place. The speakers will be E. E. Filsinger and Sir Alfred B. Morine.

CORPORATION REPORTS.

Statements of Earnings Issued by Industrial and Other Companies.

The American Rolling Mill Company and subsidiaries report for 1928 a net income of $6,075,034, after interest, depreciation and Federal taxes, equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $5.39 a share earned on 1,200,999 common shares. This compares with $3,748,564, or $2.98 a share on 980,214 shares outstanding at the end of 1927.

Quaker Oats Company.

The statement of the Quaker Oats Company and subsidiaries as of Dec. 31 1928, shows total assets of $61,566,399, compared with $57,644,508 at the end of 1927, and a surplus of $29,307,367 against $25,761,026. Current assets were $34,546,419 and current liabilities $6,197,556, contrasted with $31,719,132 and $6,067,702, respectively at the close of the preceding year.

F. & W. Grand Stores.

Net profit of F. & W. Grand 5, 10 and 25 Cent Stores, Inc., for 1928 was $1,174,915, after all charges and Federal taxes, equal, after preferred dividends, to $3.87 a share on 268,532 common shares outstanding. This compares with net profit in 1927 of $861,444, or $3 a share on 260,000 shares of common then outstanding. Current assets on Dec. 31 amounted to $5,904,000, against current liabilities of $629,000. Cash totaled more than $2,100,000, with inventory valued around $3,200,000.

American Can Company.

The annual report of the American Can Company, issued yesterday, shows for 1928 a net income of $19,863,836 after depreciation, interest and Federal taxes, equivalent, after 7 per cent preferred dividends, to $6.88 a share earned on 2,473,998 common shares of $25 par value each. This compares with net earnings of $13,055,199, or $4.11 a common share, in 1927.

In a statement accompanying the report H. W. Phelphs, president, said the company's volume of sales in 1928 had been greater than in any previous year. Growth during 1929 at the same rate would necessitate expenditures for new construction to keep pace with it. Expenditures on this account in 1928 had amounted to $7,245,151.

Patino Mines and Enterprises.

Patino Mines and Enterprises Consolidated, Inc., report for 1928 a net income of $5,224,226 after depreciation, depletion, taxes and other charges, equivalent to $3.78 a share on the outstanding stock. This compares with $4,800,071, or $3.47 a share, in the preceding year.

Crosley Radio Corporation.

The Crosley Radio Corporation shows for 1928 a net income of $3,690,978 after depreciation, taxes and other charges, equivalent to $6.93 a share earned on the 520,000 shares of capital stock now outstanding after payment of the recent stock dividend. This compares with $756,162, or $1.41 a share, earned on an equivalent amount of stock for 1927.

Tishman Realty and Construction.

The Tishman Realty and Construction Company, Inc., and subsidiaries report for 1928 a net profit of $2,165,-865 after all charges, depreciation and Federal taxes, equivalent to $5.41 a share on 400,000 capital shares outstanding. This compares with a net profit for 1927 of $2,017,082, or $5.04 a share.

WHEAT PRICES RISE ON WEATHER NEWS

Fear of Damage to Crop Brings a Wave of Buying and the Close Is at Net Gains.

WINNIPEG IS STRONGER

Corn Is Affected Little and Trade Is Light, With a Heavy Undertone—Rye Gains.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 18.—A rush of buying by houses with Southwestern, Eastern and foreign connections swept wheat prices up to within a fraction of the highest level of the season today as the result of general apprehension of damage to the new Winter wheat crop in the West and Southwest. While the best prices were not maintained, the finish was at net gains of 1¼ to 1⅝ cents, with July leading.

Selling against offers and for profits checked the upturn, and later there was selling on the decrease of only 740,000 bushels in the domestic visible. The latter is now 123,629,000 bushels, against 124,369,000 bushels the previous week and 74,217,000 bushels last year.

Winnipeg reported exporters on the buying side there with net gains of ⅞ to 1¼ cents. Liverpool was unchanged to ⅞ pence lower, and the pressure of Argentine grain there and on Continental markets tends to offset everything of a bullish character. Export demand in all positions was decidedly slow. The market is regarded as a weather affair and erratic price changes are expected. The country was reported as buying July wheat at Kansas City.

Primary arrivals today, 1,971,000 bushels; week ago, 1,357,000 bushels; last year, 1,3.2,000 bushels. Shipments, 678,000 bushels; week ago, 653,000 bushels; last year, 440,000 bushels.

Corn showed a heavy undertone and closed unchanged to ⅛ cent lower after a range of only ⅝ to ¾ cent for the day. Local bulls made numerous efforts to advance prices, but the increase of 3,702,000 bushels in the visible supply led to selling, and outside trade was light. Total visible is 31,665,000 bushels against 27,963,000 bushels the previous week, and 38,456,000 bushels last year. The spot basis was ⅞ cent higher to ½ cent lower, the latter on the poorer kinds. Country offerings remain light. Buenos Aires closed unchanged to ⅛ cent lower for the day.

Oats finished ¼ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher, the latter on the July, cent higher, the latter on the July. The spot basis was steady to 1 cent lower with the country showing more disposition to ship. Rye gained ½ to ⅝ cent in sympathy with wheat and on strength at Winnipeg.

Primary arrivals today 1,841,000 bushels; week ago 1,938,000 bushels; last year 1,659,000 bushels. Shipments 643,000 bushels; week ago 854,000 bushels; last year 866,000 bushels.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

ASKS CENTRALIZATION IN DRESS INDUSTRIES

At the annual meeting last night of the Associated Dress Industries of America, representing a trade membership with a capital of some $800,000,000, David N. Mosessohn, executive chairman, in his annual report said the industry had had one of its most prosperous years and that 1929 promised to be "the banner year."

"This industry," he asserted, "is dependent largely upon the general industrial activity and prosperity of the country. Indications point to a great improvement in economic conditions in the basic industries and a continuance of the employment of labor at good wages."

Mr. Mosessohn urged a program of centralization of the dress trade. That duplication and multiplicity existed, he said, had been proved by a recent survey which disclosed an overabundance of private agencies and collection bureaus which had insinuated themselves into the industry and brought a "grave" condition of decentralization. "This multiplicity," he continued, "is decidedly an evil, the correction of which is definitely a function of our association, for our members must be made to realize that the idle scattering and general throwing about of important trade facts should not be indulged in loosely and lightly."

The following members were elected to the executive council of the association: Joseph Barnett, Sidney G. Biesenthal, Matthew J. Kane, Louis J. Mallas, Magnus Myres, Joseph Nemser, Herbert Sondheim, M. E. Zipser, David Bender and Arthur Cohen.

MOVEMENT UPWARD IN COTTON FUTURES

March Position Loses 1 Point on Day but More Distant Ones Make Gains.

Although price changes were limited on the Cotton Exchange yesterday, a substantial volume of contracts changed hands as interest in the March position was reduced. Liquidation prior to notice day on Feb. 26 increased the discount under May, and the transfer of holdings into July narrowed the March-July spread to nearly $1 a bale. Absence of new business permitted the execution of swapping orders around Saturday's closing levels, and final quotations showed a loss of 1 point to a gain of 6 points on the day. For the first time in weeks, foreign prices ended the session unchanged from those prevailing at the close of the preceding week. There was an increase in the local stock over Sunday, bringing the account to 31,000 bales, the largest figures since last July.

The question of acreage is coming under discussion, and advices indicate that an increase is contemplated by growers west of the Mississippi River. According to a prominent Alabama spot firm, replies from correspondents reflect probable increases of about 3 per cent in Oklahoma and Texas and 1 per cent to 3 per cent in Louisiana and Arkansas, with the possibility of a slight reduction in the Eastern belt owing to increased land for tobacco, truck farming and stock raising.

Cold Worked Manganese Steel Described at Mining and Metallurgical Session.

ZINC 99.99% PURE IS SHOWN

Transformation of manganese steel at low temperature to form a product which withstands heavy wear in such equipment as stone crushers and steam shovels about ten times as long as ordinary steel was described yesterday by John Howe Hall, metallurgical engineer of the Taylor-Wharton Iron and Steel Company of High Bridge, N. J., at the first day's meeting of the convention of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers at the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street.

The convention, which will last until Friday, has attracted more than 1,500 engineers from all parts of the country. Those who attended yesterday's sessions heard papers describing the production of zinc of the highest purity yet attained commercially, the elimination of "bad iron" in blast furnace operations, the mining of soapstone, and the results of three years of government exploration of the Permian salt basin of Texas and New Mexico.

Forty-two papers were read during the day's meeting on the general subjects of iron and steel, ground movement and subsidence, non-metallic minerals, milling methods, non-ferrous metallurgy and engineering education.

Explains "Cold" Manganese Process.

The belief once current that manganese steel, through treatment at low temperatures, cannot be transformed has no basis of truth, Mr. Hall said in his paper, which was the annual Howe lecture given by the iron and steel division of the institute. He said that for a long time the metal puzzled metallurgists and engineers, due to the peculiar formation of the lines produced in the steel by "cold" work.

The investigation of manganese steel, he said, began three years ago and was carried on by himself with the cooperation of Francis F. Lucas of the Bell Telephone Laboratories and E. C. Bain, metallurgist of the United States Steel Corporation.

It was found that by annealing manganese steel for many hours at comparatively low temperatures, and reheating after cooling, the tensile strength, elongation and reduction of area of the steel are greatly improved.

The elimination of "bad iron" by regularity of furnace operation and close observation as to chemical analysis, thus removing one of the chief sources of complaint by manufacturers of steel, was discussed in a paper by C. H. Herty Jr. and J. M. Gaines Jr., physical chemists of the Pittsburgh Experiment Station, United States Bureau of Mines. "Dirty iron," it was said, is due to high silicon content, which is higher when the furnace is operating irregularly.

Tells of Zinc 99.99% Pure.

The new process of producing zinc of 99.99 per cent purity by the use of lead alloys was described in a paper by research metallurgists of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mining Company of Kellogg, Idaho. An exhibit of the zinc in various forms was shown.

The exploration of the Texan salt basin resulted in the discovery of a large group of saline minerals of the same potash family as those found in Germany and Alsace. The subject was presented in two scientific papers by members of the technical staff of the United States Geological Survey, W. B. Lang and G. R. Mansfield, who described the extent and geology of the new potash fields, and Waldemar T. Schaller and Edward P. Henderson, who described the mineralogy.

Of the more important minerals found, those in abundant quantities were halite, anhydrite clays, polyhalite and sylvite. Lueneburgite, described as a phospho-borate of magnesium, was found in minute quantities, and was said to be the second known occurrence of this mineral. The area has an extent of 25,000 square miles.

$38,000 for Cotton Exchange Seat.

The New York Cotton Exchange membership of Leopold Spingarn has been sold to L. B. Lowenstein for another for $38,000, a decrease of $2,000 from the preceding sale.

URGES CREDIT MEN TO STUDY SELLING

Dr. Brisco of Retailing School Says Contacts With Buyers Are Helpful in Work.

EDUCATION OF PUBLIC ASKED

Employes in credit departments of retail stores should have experience in sales contacts with customers to appreciate the psychological factors in their credit work, according to Dr. Norris A. Brisico, dean of the School of Retailing of New York University, speaking at the annual New York State Conference of Retail Credit Managers in the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday. In losing sight of the human element, he said, many credit workers alienate valuable accounts from their stores.

Speaking on "The Customer's Viewpoint, or the Modern Conception of Retail Credit," Dr. Brisco explained that consumers are independent and avoid stores which regard the extension of credit as a favor.

"Credit has become as much a part of retail store service as sales and delivery," he said.

Guy H. Hulse, secretary of the National Retail Credit Association, in an address on "Problems of the Bureau Manager," advocated advertising campaigns to educate the general public to the necessity of paying debts made by contract. He asked greater cooperation between credit men and their local bureaus, asserting that much of the trouble with bad accounts was due to failure to use the bureaus.

Prosperity in the United States, he said, is largely due to intelligently extended credit, and blamed the existence of "dead-beats" on the extension of loose credit by retailers, bankers and weak-kneed credit executives.

Cooperation of the credit men in a prospective governmental survey to determine how far various divisions of consumers are mortgaging their futures through instalment buying and charge accounts was asked by Gorton James, Chief of the Domestic Commerce Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, who was another speaker. The survey, he said, would be undertaken during next Spring or during the Summer.

At the morning session Leonard Berry, credit manager of B. Forman & Co. of Rochester, said the credit office affords the best medium with which to meet competition of cash and carry stores. Charge accounts, he said, do more than anything else to retain customers and increase their purchases.

Robert Adamson, vice president of the Bank of United States, asked closer cooperation between banks and retail credit men in the exchange of information.

Acting Mayor Joseph V. McKee arrived promptly at 10 A. M. to welcome the delegates, but most of them had not appeared, so he sent a greeting by telegram later.

United States District Attorney Tuttle will speak on "Fighting Bankruptcy Frauds and the New Plan of Receivership" at a dinner which will close the conference tonight. At the business session during the day a report on the organization of a State association of credit men will be submitted by a committee headed by Fred Waite of Rochester.

TIN PRICES DECLINE.

Market Closes 30 Points Off, With Day's Trading Active.

Trading in tin on the National Metal Exchange yesterday was the most active in some time. A turnover of 340 tons resulted, and the market closed steady, with a uniform decline of 30 points from the close of last week. Prices were only ¼ cent a pound above the lowest since the local exchange has been in existence. The brisk business continued all day, although as usual the last hour was the most active, with 210 tons changing hands.

The market here was stimulated by the definite move in prices at London, after the deadlock of last week. It was announced that Straits shipments to the United States for the first half of February were 4,320 tons, while stocks of tin in warehouses of the United Kingdom gained 517 tons, bringing the total to 8,306 tons.

	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Close
February	48.90	48.60	48.80	49.10
March	48.75	48.75	48.70-.80	49.00
April	48.75	48.75	48.70-.80	49.00
May	48.85	48.75	48.70-.80	49.00
July	48.80	48.70	48.75	....

The National Metal Exchange will organize a statistical bureau for public dissemination of authoritative information regarding the tin industry, both here and abroad, Erwin Vogelsang, president of the Exchange, announced yesterday.

"The National Metal Exchange appreciates that there is a dearth of accurate statistics relative to the tin industry," Mr. Vogelsang said, "which would permit both the consumer and the merchant as well as the trade speculator to make intelligent use of price insurance facilities of the Exchange."

LIVE STOCK AT CHICAGO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Shippers were good buyers of hogs and prices advanced 10 to 15 cents early, but packers refused to follow the upturn and a good part of the bulge was lost. Top was 15 cents higher at $10.50 and the day average was up 5 cents at $10.25. Packers paid $10.10 to $10.25 for their droves, while shippers secured the bulk of requirements at $10.25 to $10.40. Packing sows brought $9.40 to $10. Shippers bought 16,000 and packers 31,200, with 10,000 left over. Receipts 53,000, with 29,000 estimated for tomorrow.

Yearling cattle, including heavy steers, were show. Best hand weight steers were slow. Best hand weight to $18.50. Bulk of best cattle sold at $10.50 to $13. Receipts 16,000.

Fat lambs sold slowly with prices 25 to 50 cents lower. Main sales were at $16.25 to $16.50, with a top of $16.85. Sheep weak to 25 cents lower at $6 to $8.50. Receipts 18,000.

New Costume Course Announced.

Announcement of the fifth intensive training course in costume art, which is to be held from June 3 to 22 under the auspices of the bureau of costume art of the National Retail Dry Goods Association, was made yesterday by Hubert M. Greist, director. Most of the sessions will be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Cooperating are the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Pratt Institute, metropolitan stores and manufacturers. "The necessity for intensive training, such as is given in the course, is meeting with increased recognition," said Mr. Greist. "This is evidenced by the fact that the last course had a bigger attendance than any of the preceding ones."

Fur Sale Gets Strong Start.

Active bidding and good prices for foxes and martens featured the opening session of the annual Winter fur sale of the New York Auction Company, Inc., here yesterday. Top price for the day—$235—was paid for fine cross fox from Northwestern Canada. This fur showed a rise of 20 per cent over the company's Fall sale averages. Other important percentage advances yesterday follow, the figures in parentheses being the highest prices received for the varieties named: White fox, 10 ($71); red fox, 20 ($76); blue fox, 20 ($215); baum marten, 10 ($40); stone marten, 15 ($22.50), and marten, 20 ($75). Eight other articles also were sold and sales reached $800,000. Today's schedule calls for beaver, ermine, Japanese mink and wolf.

Think Well of Sales Merger.

The announcement from Philadelphia that after March 1 the products of the George W. Blabon Company and the Sandura Company would be sold through a new concern to be known as the Blabon-Sandura Company, Inc., caused a good deal of comment here yesterday. The merger is for selling only and is the first of its kind to be effected in the floor coverings industry. Both companies will retain their identity as manufacturers, and it is this angle of the matter that has centred trade attention upon it. The consensus of opinion here is that the plan is logical and should work out successfully. A previous report in the market, which was denied, was that the Sandura Company had taken over the Blabon concern.

To Hold Cotton Goods Meeting.

With a view to furthering the interests of the cotton goods industry, Secretary George A. Sloan of the Cotton Textile Institute has issued invitations to representatives of the trade press to attend a meeting at the institute's offices on Tuesday next, at which executives of trade associations in the cotton goods field will be present. President Walker D. Hines of the institute will preside, and members of the staff will also attend. Various cooperative activities now in effect in the trade or in contemplation will be discussed. Among the association executives who have so far expressed their intention of being present are Secretary R. T. Fisher of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers and Secretary W. M. McLaurine of the American Cotton Manufacturers Association.

Novelties Lead in Stationery.

New holiday lines of stationery are being prepared and will be offered within the next month. Manufacturers say business thus far this year has been active, owing to the good sales in December that cleaned out stocks and swelled replacement business. Novelty papers dominate. Much interest is shown in fancy finishes, lined envelopes and modernistic containers. There is talk of a return to favor of vellum papers and also genuine parchment types. Real parchment is now being featured in greeting cards. In colors new tans and grays are popular, with some decline in favor for orchid reported.

Hatters' Fur Still Firm.

While prices of hatters' fur are now some below last year's peak, the market is firm. Hat manufacturers are buying cautiously, but stocks here are not particularly great. Indications of the probable size of the Australian crop are expected about April. Whether the shortage of last year, which resulted in the price rise, will be duplicated remains to be seen. Fur experts see no turning to substitutes on the part of hat manufacturers, cloth hats having made little headway here.

***

Offers Kindergarten Toys.

Believing that children of kindergarten age have not had their toy needs adequately taken care of, a manufacturer here is introducing items especially designed for them. One is a crayon and drawing set in which the crayons are of large size. Small children, it has been found, cannot hold the ordinary size crayons, but find the larger ones entirely suitable. The drawings are large, simple outlines. Another item is an animal set having cut-out spaces into which small, wooden blocks of different sizes are fitted. Its object is to stimulate the recognition and comparison of different shapes. The merchandise is priced to retail up to $1.

Trade-Marking Raw Furs Now.

One of the interesting developments of fur farming in this country is the steps now being taken by some of the larger farm operators to identify their merchandise to the consumer, even though it is sold in the raw state. More than 7,000 silver foxes were sold at auction in this city last month with an identifying tag attached to the ear of each pelt, and this week one of the biggest muskrat farms in the South will sell at auction here a large quantity of pelts bearing its trademark. The spread of the identification idea among other furs taken from farm-grown animals was said here yesterday to be probable. Among the advantages of branding or tagging pelts is that it makes it possible to advertise them to the consumer.

Gray Goods Trading Light.

Gray goods trading was light in this market yesterday, with most of the limited attention of buyers given to printcloths. February-March deliveries of 39-inch 68-72s were sold at 8 7-16 cents by first hands, who also let out near-by 38½-inch 48-squares at 8 11-16 cents. Other first-hand sales of printcloths included 3 March 38½-inch 64-60s and spot 38½-inch 60-48s at 7½ and 6¾ cents, respectively. For 37-inch 48-square four-yard sheetings buyers paid 8 1-8 cents in a small way, and they also bought 40-inch 3.60-yard sheetings at 9¼ cents. In the fine-yarn cloths there was some trading in 40-inch 96-100 seven-yard combed lambs at 15¼ cents.

CHURCH SELLS PROPERTY.

Harlem Congregation to Buy New Home on East 69th Street.

The Reformed Low Dutch Church of Harlem, at 123d Street and Lenox Avenue, in an order signed by Supreme Court Justice Edward J. Glennon, received permission to sell the four five-story apartment houses at 1,227 and 1,229 Madison Avenue and 48 and 50 East Eighty-ninth Street, being the southeast corner, which the church purchased in 1927 for $425,000, to Anthony Clinchy for $700,000.

According to the petition, the church contemplated erecting either a church or combined church and apartment building on the site, but abandoned the project when the cost was deemed prohibitive. With the proceeds of the sale the church intends to purchase the Church of the Beloved Disciple, at 61 to 67 East Eighty-ninth Street, for $415,000.

Good Outlook for Silk Coats.

Indications continue to point to a strong vogue for silk coats this Spring and Summer. Orders for them from Southern and Pacific Coast stores have been of good volume, with reorders already being received in some instances. It is believed that if the weather proves favorable there will be a fair amount of retail activity in the garments in the East and Middle West before Easter, although demand is generally greatest in these sections after that holiday. Satin, new types of velvet and ribbed silks are the outstanding cloths. Black ranks high in color preference.

Oil, Fat and Grease Prices Higher.

Prices of miscellaneous oils, fats and greases had a rising trend during the week ended Feb. 16, according to the Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter. The index number of prices was 147, based on 100 in August, 1918, compared with 146.8 a week earlier and 139.2 in the corresponding week last year. Purchasing was generally in moderate quantities, consumers being disinclined to anticipate in view of the uncertainty regarding tariff action on imported products.

GUNTHER BUILDING IN $1,500,000 DEAL

EAST 42D ST. PARCEL SOLD

An important Fifth Avenue deal, representing nearly $1,500,000, the sale of a large plot at Forty-second Street and Second Avenue and the purchase of an old upper Park Avenue apartment house for a high class improvement were among the chief features which opened the realty week in an active manner yesterday.

The Fifth Avenue transaction involved the purchase by Benjamin Winter, Inc., of the seven-story commercial building at 391-393 Fifth Avenue from Tiffany & Co. The structure, which occupies a plot 41.8 feet on the avenue by 111.8 feet in depth, is known as the Gunther Building, having been under lease to C. G. Gunther's Sons, furriers, for many years. The lease expires in October, when the firm will move to its new home at 666 Fifth Avenue, on the site of the former Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt Jr. residence, purchased some time ago by John D. Rockefeller Jr.

The Gunther Building is between Thirty-sixth and Thirty-seventh Streets. The property, with the adjoining Tiffany Building plot on the southeast corner of Thirty-seventh Street, was bought in 1900 by the late George Boldt for $1,250,000, the Fifth Avenue frontage being 158.8 feet. The present purchase by the Winter Company reveals the sharp advance in values, as the Gunther Building plot was held by the Tiffany company at $1,500,000. The structure was erected in 1909, conforming in architecture to the Tiffany Building.

In the rapidly developing industrial area east of the Grand Central station, the eight old tenements and houses at 236-236 East Forty-second Street and 776-777 Second Avenue, forming an ell around the southwest corner of those thoroughfares, was purchased by an investing syndicate from the Tishman Realty and Construction Company. The property has a frontage of 150 feet on Forty-second Street by 49.6 on Second Avenue, containing about 19,000 square feet.

The plot is one of the largest in that locality available for immediate improvement. Adjoining on the west is the site on which the thirty-six-story Daily News Building is about to be erected. To the east is the Tudor City residential development. In the same block, on the north side of the street, near Third Avenue, is the new twenty-story Bartholomew Building and at Lexington Avenue is the new fifty-six-story Chanin Building, while excavation is in progress for the sixty-eight-story Chrysler edifice on the easterly Lexington Avenue block front between Forty-second and Forty-third streets.

The sale of this Forty-second Street property was closed through the office of Douglas L. Elliman & Co. The new owners, it is said, have no immediate plans for improvement.

On upper Park Avenue Frederick Brown, operator, purchased the old five-story Sunnyside apartment house at the northwest corner of Park Avenue and Seventy-third Street, 102.2 feet on the avenue by 87.6 on the street.

The property was bought from Margaret A. and Martha A. Jamison, nieces of the late Charles Arbuckle, the coffee and sugar merchant. Mr. Arbuckle bought the property in 1889 and ever since that time it has been held by the family as an investment.

Church Society to Construct 26-Story Offices Near Tunnel

The Protestant Episcopal Society for Promoting Religion and Learning in the State of New York filed yesterday with the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings plans of a sixteen-story office structure to be erected at the southwest corner of Hudson and Franklin Streets, in the Holland Tunnel zone. The cost will be about $850,000, according to an estimate by V. Mapper, the architect.

A five-story building and a six-story loft are now on the site, which is 101 by 99 feet.

COSTLIER BUILDINGS BEING PLANNED HERE

54 Manhattan Plans Filed Last Month to Involve Total of $40,681,300.

$17,906,720 GAIN OVER 1928

Decrease of 251 in Structures Due to Decline in Garages and Stables —Construction Gains.

Plans for the erection of fifty-four new buildings in Manhattan at a cost of $40,681,300 were filed last month, as compared with plans for 315 buildings at a cost of $22,774,580, filed in January, 1928, according to a report yesterday by Charles Brady, superintendent of the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings. This year's figures show a gain of $17,906,720 in money involved but a loss of 261 in the number of buildings to be erected. The decrease is accounted for mainly by the fact that last month plans were filed for only nine garages and stables, against 264 of the same class of buildings in January, 1928.

The report shows that plans were filed last month for one dwelling to accommodate two families, twenty-three tenements to house 1,643 families, six hotels, one other residence, five store and loft buildings, five office buildings, one school, one place of amusement, one hospital, nine garages and one other structure.

Applications were filed for making alterations to 220 buildings at a cost of $2,324,350, against 251, costing $2,138,760, in the same month last year. This is a loss of thirty-one in number of buildings to be improved, but a gain of $190,590 in money involved.

The week of Feb. 9-15 showed a 36 per cent increase over the preceding week in new construction started in the metropolitan area, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation.

Last week's contract total, $18,154,400, included the following items: $11,714,000, or 65 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $1,947,000, or 11 per cent, for commercial buildings; $1,577,100, or 9 per cent, for educational projects, and $1,306,200, or 8 per cent, for public works and utilities.

During the first thirty-eight business days of this year $123,615,700 worth of new building and engineering work was contracted for in the metropolitan area, making a daily average of $3,253,000. The daily average of contracts awarded during the first two months of last year was $5,132,600.

Contemplated projects reported last week in this territory reached a total of $45,015,100. This figure brought the amount of new proposed work reported since Jan. 1 up to $327,902,600, or a daily average of $8,631,400, against a daily average of $11,634,500 for new work reported in contemplation during January and February, 1928.

Syndicate Assembles Group of Structures on Upper Madison Av.

The Edburn Realty Company has sold to a syndicate represented by Amos R. E. Pinchot 1,573 Madison Avenue, a five-story tenement occupying a plot 25 by 100 feet on the southeast corner of 106th Street. The same syndicate recently purchased 55-57-59-61 East 106th Street, four five-story tenements comprising a plot 100 by 100 feet; also 1,575-1,577-1,579 and 1,581 Madison Avenue, immediately adjoining to the north, four five-story store and tenements comprising a plottage 100 by 100 feet. The last reported sale completes the assemblage of a plot of 22,500 square feet comprising a frontage on Madison Avenue of 125 feet and a frontage on 106th Street of 200 feet.

Negotiations are under way for the resale of this entire plot, or its resale in two plots to builders. Cyrilla Carreau negotiated the transaction Leon S. Altmeyer being associated with him in the sale of 1,573.

The four-story tenement at 202 East Seventy-sixth Street, 18 by 82 feet, adjoining the southeast corner of Third Avenue, has been purchased by Runyon S. Baldwin, operator, from Charles Daly.

The Jadwin Realty Company purchased from Ida Mondschein 1,867-1,869 Seventh Avenue, adjoining the southeast corner of 114th Street, a five-story apartment house, on a plot 50 by 100 feet. The property was conveyed subject to a mortgage of $138,000.

The Robert Burns Realty Corporation (Bing & Bing) purchased from the Kennebago Realty Corporation the five-story tenement, 25 by 100.4 feet, at 324 East Seventieth Street. The purchaser owns 320-322 and 326 to 334, and with the latest acquisition now controls a plot 211 by 100 feet between First and Second avenues.

Jacob Alban sold to the Huestis Realty Corporation 641 First Avenue, adjoining the southwest corner of Thirty-seventh Street, a five-story tenement on a lot 24 by 80 feet.

The Anndis Realty Corporation purchased from Annie M. Mortimer 331 East Fifty-second Street, a five-story tenement, 18.9 by 100.5 feet.

A. J. Waldron sold the five-story double flat at 1,403 Third Avenue, near Seventy-ninth Street, through Louis F. Sommer and the Monday Realty Company. The lot is 20 by 73 feet.

VACANT PLOTS SOLD.

As a site for an apartment house a client of Samuel A. Herzog purchased from William H. Douglas the plot 100 by 100 feet on the north side of West 179th Street, adjoining the Holyrood Church at the northeast corner of Fort Washington Avenue.

The Verplanck Realty Corporation, represented by L. S. Hochstein, purchased from the Coronet Properties, Inc., the plot 100 by 100 feet at the northwest corner of Nagle Avenue and Elwood Street.

Leases Brooklyn Building.

The Long Hat Stores Company, Robert Montgomery, president, has leased for twenty-one years the two-story building at 100 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, opposite the Long Island Railroad depot. The brokers, Tankoos, Smith & Co., recently arranged several other leases in Brooklyn, Manhattan and the Bronx for the same company.

ROCKEFELLER TO HELP FINANCE RADBURN, N. J.

A. C. James, Arthur Lehman and A. M. Bing Also Aid 'Traffic-Free' Community.

John D. Rockefeller Jr., Arthur Curtiss James, Arthur Lehman, Alexander M. Bing and others have agreed to underwrite a large part of the total capital requirements for developing Radburn, N. J., "a new community recognising modern traffic conditions," according to an announcement yesterday by Mr. Bing as president of the City Housing Corporation. The balance of the capital needed will be raised through a public offering of 6 per cent limited dividend stock, an arrangement ratified by stockholders at a special meeting yesterday, according to Mr. Bing.

The settlement, which is only seventeen miles from New York, is planned to house 25,000 persons and the designers of it contemplated an expenditure of between $50,000,000 and $60,000,000. The venture is one not pointed toward unlimited profits, dividends being limited to 6 per cent. This feature of it, with its novel plan for handling the automotive problem with special relation to children and their safety, interested many groups and individuals.

Motor highways are to be separated from the areas and garden courts which will constitute the residential parts of the community. Hence children will be able to play with complete safety, and to get back and forth to school and elsewhere without crossing the motor thoroughfares. A two-mile pleasure stroll will be possible within the limits of the town without meeting automobile road grade crossings, when finished.

The new community lies between Paterson and Hackensack. About 200 houses are nearing completion in the development. A large store and office building is under construction, and streets, water and gas mains, electricity and sewers are being installed. The first houses will be occupied within two months, it is said, and a population of several thousand persons is expected by the end of the year. It is planned to increase the construction program to about 1,000 houses annually.

Most of the main roads are already completed, it was learned last night, and all side roads necessary to serve the first group of 200 homes, which are just about ready for occupancy.

The City Housing Corporation, organized in 1924, has constructed Sunnyside Gardens, a community for families of moderate income in Long Island City.

BUSINESS PROPERTY DEALS.

Ownership Changes Reported in Mercantile Structures.

J. A. Kohn, representing the Forty-seventh Street and Eighth Avenue Corporation, purchased from the 783 Eighth Avenue Company (D. J. Theophilatis), the three-story business building on a lot 25 by 100 feet at 783 Eighth Avenue, between Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth Streets. The property was sold subject to a mortgage of $130,000.

Anna M. Weiser sold to the Magna Radio Company 343 West Thirty-fourth Street, a four-story building on a lot 20 by 98.9 feet. The purchaser acquired the two buildings at 341 and 345 last week, and now controls a plot 60 by 98.9 feet.

In an all-cash transaction Ernest C. Shortmeier sold the five-story business building at 202-204 Pearl Street, northwest corner of Maiden Lane. This property has been in the hands of the Shortmeier family for upward of forty year. It is diagonally opposite the site of a twenty-two-story office building to be erected on the west side of Pearl Street from Maiden Lane to Cedar Street. The new owner will make substantial improvements to the property and hold it for investment, according to Ryan-Brady, Inc., the broker.

EAST SIDE SPACE LEASED.

National Cash Register Company and Coal Concern Rent Space.

As part of an expansion program the National Cash Register Company has leased the west store space in the new Bartholomew Building, 205 East Forty-second Street, for a term of twenty-one years at an aggregate rental of more than $1,000,000.

The building, which was erected by the Rhinestein Construction Company, is one of the largest commercial structures in the new business section east of Third Avenue. The structure is now more than 70 per cent leased, according to the agents, the Cross and Brown Company.

The Cash Register Company will abandon its present quarters at 30 East Forty-second Street.

The Shanferoke Coal and Supply Corporation, which has been in the Equitable Building, 120 Broadway, for a long period, has leased a floor in the new Lefcourt National Building, Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street, for new headquarters. The lease was arranged for a long term with the A. E. Lefcourt Realty Holdings.

Chicago Concern Moving to Bronx.

The Furolin Fireproofing Corporation has leased the four-story structure at 570 to 580 East 133d Street, containing 40,000 square feet, and plans to operate there its manufacturing business now conducted in Chicago, according to Thoens & Flaunlacher, Inc., the brokers. The Marks Brothers Holding Company, Inc., is lessor of the structure, which is served by a siding of the New Haven Railroad.

To Build in the Bronx.

A two-story taxpayer structure with thirteen stores and offices above is planned for a vacant plot at the southeast corner of Westchester and Manor Avenues which Joseph Sager & Son, Inc., operators, have bought from Friedseid & Feder. The site, 102 by 100 feet, adjoins the new Bank of United States building on Westchester Avenue. The project represents an investment of more than $275,000, according to the buyers. H. Oscar & Co. were the brokers.

Sells in Cooperative House.

Frederick T. Hepburn, a stock broker, has sold his apartment of thirteen rooms and five baths in 960 Fifth Avenue, a cooperative house recently completed by Anthony Campagna on the north corner of Seventy-seventh Street. Douglas L. Elliman & Co., Inc., were the brokers.

$1,500,000 Factory Planned For Site in East 45th Street

A twenty-four-story factory building to be erected at 305-13 East Forty-fifth Street and 312-16 East Forty-sixth Street will cost $1,500,000, according to plans filed yesterday by H. I. Oser, architect, for Central Zone Building, Inc., of 271 Madison Avenue, which assembled the plot.

The site is between First and Second Avenues. The Forty-fifth Street parcel, 125 by 100 feet, is improved with five five-story buildings. Another five-story structure and a parochial school are on the Forty-sixth Street parcel, which is 75 by 100 feet.

BRONX PROPERTIES SOLD

New Dealings in Improved and Unimproved Holdings.

A plot 100 by 100 feet on the northeast corner of Yonkers and Seminary Avenues has been sold by Morris Luskin to a builder for improvement with a taxpayer. The Bilnabro Realty Corporation acted as broker.

The K. T. & S. Realty Company purchased from J. B. Ikelheimer a plot of sixteen lots fronting on Eastern Boulevard, Pugsley and Houghton Avenues. The Adams-Rubinstein Company acted as brokers.

The M. O. M. Realty Company sold a five-story apartment house for thirty-seven families at 2,100 Roberts Avenue through John J. Ferrara. The plot is 75 by 100 feet.

Julius Fine purchased 1,550 Townsend Avenue, a new six-story elevator apartment house on a plot 150 by 100 feet. It was held by the Brokaiz Building Corporation for $375,000. Gould & Newman, attorneys, represented the purchaser and Michael Winter represented the seller. The brokers were Max Kuperman and David Ancowitz.

BACON HOUSE TRANSFERRED

Numbering of Residence at 5 Park Avenue Had Been Disputed.

The three-story residence at 5 Park Avenue, northeast corner of Thirty-fourth Street, has been transferred by Mrs. Martha W. Bacon of Westbury, L. I., to the Old Acres Corporation of 23 Wall Street, according to an instrument filed in the Recorder's office yesterday.

For several years Mrs. Bacon, who is the widow of a former Ambassador to France, had fought in the courts to retain Park Avenue as the designation of the house. About a year ago the Court of Appeals upheld a 1924 resolution by the Board of Alderman changing Fourth Avenue between Thirty-second and Thirty-fourth Streets into Park Avenue, with a consequent change of building numbers.

Greenwich Residence Resold.

One Elm, in Greenwich, Conn., the former residence of John and Herbert Locke, known as the "playboy brokers" of Broadway, has been sold for the third time in the past three months to a syndicate with offices in Larchmont, N. Y., headed by Sidney Cardozo of New York and L. H. David of Mamaroneck. The property was purchased from Mrs. George S. Wallen for a price said to be about $125,000. Frederick J. Wheland, Richard H. Flaherty and Peter Elopuch negotiated the sale.

Plan Crosstown Move.

James H. Matthews & Co. (Meyer-Jensen branch), manufacturers of marking devices, have leased space in the Maltz Industrial Building, Canal and Hudson Streets, for combined offices and plant. The firm is now at 145 Lafayette Street. Brown, Wheelock; Harris Vought & Co., Inc., arranged the lease.

OWN-YOUR-HOME SHOW TO OPEN TOMORROW

Exposition to Contrast Old-Time Devices and Modern Labor-Saving Equipment.

Modern labor-saving devices for every phase of housekeeping will be exhibited beside old-fashioned home equipment in the eleventh annual Own-Your-Home Building and Equipment Exposition which will open Wednesday evening in Madison Square Garden.

The Master Plumbers' Association, heating and ventilating experts and architects of the American Institute will maintain bureaus to study home builders' problems in modernization of homes. Robert H. Sexton, manager of the exposition, declared yesterday that more than 1,000,000 families in the metropolitan district were living in houses and apartments planned in the styles of ten, fifteen and twenty years ago.

Reproductions of kitchens, bathrooms, cellars and laundries as far back as thirty years ago are to be exhibited along with service room models of similar size decorated in modernistic style and under a system of "efficiency engineering" similar to that mapped out for large factories, Mr. Sexton said. Clothes closets and under-the-staircase cupboards are to be shown remodeled as modern bathrooms.

LEASEHOLD DEALS.

Manhattan Parcels Reported Under New Control.

Mrs. Edith Boyce leased for three years the four-story and basement house at 38 West Ninety-seventh Street to Bert Simon and Mrs. Helen Fair. The Harrison Realty Service was the broker.

The Cyndan Realty Corporation represented by S. Daniel, attorney, purchased from the Binyon Realty Company, Jacob Glass, president, the leasehold on the five-story apartment house at 138 West Seventy-second Street.

Queens Realty Exchanged.

The Stromros Construction Corporation, Morris Strominger, president, has sold a four-story apartment house recently completed on the east side of Ninety-fifth Street, 206 feet south of Fillmore Avenue, in the section of Queens north of Elmhurst. The plot, about 100 feet square, formerly belonged to the Leverich estate. Alfred L. Golsh, buyer of the apartment, gave in part payment a plot on the south side of Washington Avenue, between Academy Street and First Avenue, in the Long Island City section. Fred G. Randall and D. Allesandro were the brokers.

To Discuss Lien Law Revision.

Proposed revision of the New York State lien law will be discussed by Cornelius J. Sullivan of Eidlitz & Hulse, attorneys, at a luncheon meeting of the New York Building Congress in the Hotel Commodore next Thursday, Feb. 21. It is expected that a draft of the revision now before the State Legislature will be acted upon within the next few weeks.

LINE READY TO GIVE SHIPS TO CHAPMAN

Winchester Company Awaits Call for Transfer of American Merchant Vessels to Buyer.

WILL REMAIN IN THE FIELD

Official Explains That the London-New York Service Was Only Small Part of Business.

J. B. Smull, vice president of the Winchester company, which operates the American Merchant Line, said yesterday the company was prepared to turn the ships over to the Shipping Board for transfer to the Chapman group, which bid for them and the United States Lines, at any time fixed by the board. The contract which Chapman has made with the board includes pier leases. The American Merchant ships now use Pier 7, North River, which is leased from the Lackawanna Railroad, and a pier in London.

Mr. Smull said he would not change his office organization until the ships were out of his hands. If new connections are made and the Winchester company takes the agency of other ships the present strength of the office force may be maintained.

"The American Merchant Line," said Mr. Smull, "is only a small part of our business. Its loss will not necessitate any drastic change in our force and it is always possible that some other agency will be taken on to fill its place."

The problem of future docking space for the American Merchant ships has arisen because of the expiration of the Shipping Board lease on Pier 7 on June 30. The pier is old and its future is uncertain. The Lackawanna has been willing to lease it for only one year and Mr. Sheedy has not obtained a renewal, he said yesterday.

The Winchester company has been praised in shipping circles for its accomplishments with the American Merchant Line, which included the leasing of a well-located pier in London despite objection by the London port authorities.

FRIED BACK AFTER TOUR.

After having spent the past two weeks touring the country and receiving the praise of Mayors and officials of eight cities, Captain George Fried of the United States liner America was back yesterday at his home, 4,906 Broadway, preparing to return to the sea when his ship sails Saturday, March 2. She is scheduled to dock next Saturday after a trip in the command of Captain Harry Manning, whose work in the rescue of the men of the Florida was outstanding.

Captain Fried made his tour accompanied by Mrs. Fried, and George S. Mabee, assistant general manager, and Martin L. Petry, director of public relations of the United States Lines. His itinerary included Washington, where he was greeted by President Coolidge, and Worcester, his home town, where he visited the public school that he attended as a boy. He was fêted also at Boston, Providence, Philadelphia and Cincinnati with the Mayors of the cities in charge of the affairs, and at Chicago at a Union League Club dinner. He also visited the Culver Military Academy at Culver, Ind., as guest of General L. R. Gignilliat, commandant, who is a personal friend.

GERMAN INSURANCE ACTION.

Decision on the Valorization Law Pleases New York Life.

The decision of the Recourse-Senate of the Reich's supervision office for foreign insurance companies that the New York Life Insurance Company's former German business is under German State supervision in the application of the valorization law, is looked upon favorably by the company, although it is purely a governmental affair, according to Walker Buckner, vice president of the company.

"This action means," said Mr. Buckner, "that the company being under the supervision of the German Reich, automatically comes under the revaluation law. A trustee will no doubt be appointed for each American company involved to make a revaluation of its liabilities, somewhat similar to the revaluation of the assets which has already taken place. The New York Life Insurance Company is therefore obliged to compensate German policy holders only to the extent of its depreciated holding of German investments."

Girl Missing Since Feb. 9.

Mary Zelman of 612 West 188th Street disappeared from her home on Feb. 9 and her family has had no word from her since. The police have been unable to get trace of the missing girl. She left the store where she worked at 6 o'clock on the evening of Feb. 9 saying she was going to a restaurant for supper and then vanished. She is 24 years old, about five feet tall and weighs little more than 100 pounds. She is of light complexion, has brown hair and gray-blue eyes. When she disappeared she wore a dark brown felt hat, a tan sport coat, tan stockings, brown oxfords and a navy blue taffeta dress.

CRUDE PRICES AVERAGE OFF

Declines to $1.668 a Barrel, Against $1.683 a Week Earlier.

The average price of crude petroleum in ten producing fields was lower again last week, at $1.668 a barrel, as compared with $1.683 in the preceding week. The average for the corresponding period last year was $1.347 a barrel, according to the Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter.

Gasoline was also reduced, averaging 8.313 cents a gallon at four principal refineries, compared with 8.386 cents the previous week and 7.218 cents in the same week of 1928. Service station prices in ten leading markets were unchanged from the previous week at 18.72 cents a gallon.

Domestic production of crude petroleum from Jan. 1 to Feb. 16 was estimated by the trade publication at 128,863,000 barrels, against 110,869,000 barrels in the corresponding period of 1928.

ELECTRIC EQUIPMENT SALES

Orders for electrical equipment, both for central station and industrial service are reaching high levels, especially in the eastern district, Electrical World reports. A central-station company in Ohio placed an order with a New York maker for a steam turbo-generator to cost $360,000. A power company in New Jersey has contracted for transformers to cost $225,000. There is a strong demand for cable for underground service and for overhead transmission lines.

Sub-station equipment is moving freely in the New England district. Power and light companies are buying in a large way in the Southeast, and a good volume of industrial business is pending. Utility budgets in the St. Louis district are said to be considerably higher than those of last year. Jobbers' sales are about normal throughout the Middle West. The Pacific Coast area reports a substantial volume of electrical equipment orders, with one transaction in transformers involving $100,000.

Marmon January Sales Increase.

Retail sales of the Marmon Motor Car Company during January were more than 25 per cent higher than in the corresponding month of last year, according to company officials. Business in the first half of February, they added, indicates an increasing gain over last year.

Old Gold wins second place at Harvard

Breaking its string of victories, this 2-year old brand runs second to the cigarette established at HARVARD more than 14 years

Two years against fourteen. A comparatively new cigarette against three veteran brands. Youth against age and habit.

Yet OLD GOLD, the youngster, almost won! It defeated two out of three of its veteran contenders . . . and nearly defeated the third!

This is the story of the Public Cigarette Test conducted recently at Harvard, under the supervision of Edward T. Batchelder of the Harvard Crimson Editorial Board.

Time after time, in these comparative taste-tests of the four leading cigarette brands, OLD GOLD has won . . . and won decisively. In fact, with the single exception of the test at Harvard, OLD GOLD has scored an unbroken string of victories.

At Harvard, where pipe smoking is a tradition and the taste is for heavy tobaccos, smooth and mellow OLD GOLD faced its hardest contest. 148 undergraduates were asked to smoke and compare the four leading cigarettes. The brand names were concealed, but the cigarettes were numbered. Only one question was asked: "Which cigarette do you like best?" Answers were given by number, not by brand name.

Yet in the final score, OLD GOLD stood second in its total of "first choices" and barely missed defeating the brand established at Harvard more than fourteen years!

Man o' War, the greatest horse of his time, lost one race. And in its first and only defeat, OLD GOLD, the two-year old, felicitates the fourteen year old victor.

On Harvard Yard, where the cigarette test took place. MASSACHUSETTS HALL is the oldest building on "The Yard," and one of the most picturesque colonial structures in New England. Harvard men have lived and studied in these rooms since 1718.

The four leading cigarettes, "masked" with numbered paper sleeves to conceal their brand names. The four cigarettes were smoked and compared with the names unknown. The students merely chose, by number, the one that most appealed to the taste.
